Moscow Charges Kidnapping

Britain Frees Red Scientist

LONDON (AP) — The British returned a Soviet scientist to Russian diplomats Monday after satisfying themselves he wants to go home. But Moscow levelled a formal charge he had been kidnapped to undermine relations between the two countries.

The Soviet foreign ministry said in a note to the British Embassy in Moscow that Britain would be held responsible for any recurrence of the violent incident at London airport that brought a weekend of recriminations and diplomatic protests.

The foreign office said the note had not yet reached London.

Officials said, however, that the last thing the British government wants is to undermine relations with Moscow. Improvement of these relations, they said, is a cardinal principle of Prime Minister Wilson's foreign policy.

British police and secret agents removed Vladimir Tkachenko, 25-year-old Soviet physicist who had been studying low temperature physics at Birmingham University, from a Soviet airliner late Saturday on the suspicion he was being kidnapped by Russian agents.

He was released Monday after the British government was satisfied he wanted to return home rather than seek asylum here.

"In accordance with medical advice, and with his own wishes now freely expressed, Dr. Vladimir Tkachenko is going to the Soviet Embassy," said the home office.

He and his wife will return to the Soviet Union today, the Russians said.

British officials, meanwhile, puzzled over the reasons for the Soviet action in apparently trying to smuggle the postgraduate student out of Britain.

There was some speculation

Saanich Weighs Award

McRAE PRICE 'WITHIN REACH'

By JOHN MATTERS

Saanich councillors, in Prince George for a convention today, will weigh an arbitration board award that sets $1,200,000 as the price their taxpayers should pay for the McRae estate.

"It is higher than I hoped, but lower than I had feared," Reeve Hugh Curtis said of the award, which is about $450,000 more than Saanich's offer for the 132.6-acre property.

He said council could not meet formally in Prince George but "I have a copy of the adjudication coming special delivery, and we will be going over it today." They are at the annual Union of British Columbia Municipalities convention.

The three-member board, which heard evidence for five weeks at Victoria Law Courts, in effect disputes the claims of both Saanich and the McRae family, which has owned the site for about 80 years.

DISENCHANTMENT?

Louis Lindholm, special counsel for Saanich, observed:

"The award is 50 per cent higher than the offer made by Saanich, but it is (about one third) the value the owners put on it. Only they can say, but this may be a measure of the relative disenchantment of the parties to the award."

Robert Price, counsel for the McRaes, was out of town and could not be reached for comment.

"STILL ATTAINABLE"

Saanich wants to acquire the property, part of which is Cedar Hill golf course, for recreational purposes. A capital spending budget adopted by ratepayers in December, 1965, set aside about $900,000 for the deal.

However, Reeve Curtis explained in the telephone interview that the $1,200,000 award still leaves the site in "an attainable category."

"It's not like $2,000,000," he added.

NO EARLY DECISION

The reeve said council has "two or three alternatives" to consider and there won't be an early decision. Councillors will have to wait until they can have a talk with Saanich's lands commissioner, planner, engineer and comptroller.

"We will want to review the other components of the capital budget . . . and not necessarily with a view to abandoning them."

SAANICH PAYS COSTS

Saanich was also ordered to pay the costs of the action, which some estimates place as high as $70,000.

The adjucation summarized:

Saanich assumed the land would be sold in a single block. The arbitrators said it could be sold in several parcels.

Saanich said it was unlikely the property would be severed.

Crashed Flyers Bruised

Three Greater Victoria men escaped with only a few bruises Monday when their light plane crashed in a field about 30 miles south of Portland, Ore., the Associated Press reported.

They were A. J. Gillan, pilot, 2931 Ilene Terrace, Saanich; his 19-year-old son, James, and a friend of the family, Wayne Smith of Brentwood, who is also a pilot.

The single-engine Beechcraft Musketeer, partly owned by Mr. Gillan, was demolished in the crash near Woodburn.

Saigon Bomb Kills Two, Hurts 30

Chiang Embassy Shattered

SAIGON (UPI) — Viet Cong terrorists exploded a powerful bomb inside the Nationalist Chinese embassy Tuesday morning in an abortive attempt to assassinate Ambassador Hu Lien.

The blast killed at least two persons and wounded 30. It made a shambles of the three-storey building about a block away from the U.S. embassy, and damaged a bank next door. (See also Page 3.)

First reports said no Americans were among the casualties.

Authorities said the bomb, made of pastique explosives, was planted under the floor of Ambassador Hu's office on the second floor. He was attending a meeting in an adjacent conference room when the bomb exploded with a roar that was heard in a wide area of the city.

Hu was shaken up but otherwise unhurt.

South Vietnamese police traded shots with several men running away from the building seconds after the blast, killing one and arresting another who was armed with a pistol.

The explosion sent a rain of concrete, bricks and glass into the street from the embassy.

It was the first terror attack on a foreign diplomatic mission here since March 30, 1965, when Viet Cong bombers raided the U.S. Embassy and all but destroyed it in an assault that killed 17 persons, including two Americans.

Arrests Now 181 In Egypt

From UPI

Tuesday morning editions of the semi-official Egyptian newspaper Al Ahram said President Nasser has arrested 181 military officers and civilians in connection with a coup plot and an inquiry into reasons for Egypt's loss of the Mideast war.

The Cairo newspaper said prisoners included the commander of the air force and the former chief of the secret service.

The report identified one of the arrested men as Salah Nasr, the director of intelligence services, and said he was placed under house arrest on June 5—the day that Israeli forces blitzed Egyptian air bases and knocked out most of the Arab nation's air arsenal. (See also Page 7.)

Hellyer Moves Seat Closer To Grit Throne

OTTAWA (CP)— Prime Minister Pearson confirmed Monday in a statement that Transport Minister Pickersgill, 62, will become president of the Canadian Transport Commission and will be succeeded by Defence Minister Hellyer, 44.

Associate Defence Minister Leo Cadieux, 59, will succeed Mr. Hellyer in the defence portfolio.

Mr. Pearson made public an exchange of correspondence with Mr. Pickersgill concerning the latter's retirement from the cabinet.

Mr. Pickersgill's letter said he had discussed possible retirement with Mr. Pearson some time ago and been assured that if he wished, his appointment as president of the Canadian Transport Commission would be made.

SAME MIND

"After a good deal of reflection, I have come to the conclusion that, if you are still of the same mind, I would like to become president of the commission."

His letter said that while his general health was excellent, he had found the pressures of

Stanfield Visits Diefenbaker

Greeting Minus Song As New Calls on Old

By RICHARD JACKSON
Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — "I can't sing — but happy birthday anyway."

This was new Conservative leader Robert Stanfield, Monday at noon, standing with his hand out at the doorway to old (72) Conservative leader John Diefenbaker's Centre Block suite of offices.

It was a great line, and for once the old chief was caught off guard.

He grabbed Mr. Stanfield's outstretched hand: "Hello, hello, good to see you; come on in."

'LOTS OF TIME'

Together they went behind the big Diefenbaker desk and for a moment exchanged some painfully awkward small talk.

The chief volunteered that he was "in the process of moving," and although "tons of stuff" had been hauled out of the file rooms to the National Archives, it was still a sizeable job.

"Of course, you know," Mr. Stanfield comforted him, "there's lots of time for it."

The chief shooed everybody out and in private the two men had what couldn't have been

"Happy Birthday — And Stay In"

Territorial Capital Happy, Proud

Yellowknife Hails New Status

YELLOWKNIFE, N.W.T. (CP) — Someone said there probably wasn't more excitement here in 1934 when gold was discovered.

Yellowknife then was little more than a tent town.

Monday it was the flag-bedecked capital of the Northwest Territories and an estimated 1,000 persons, more than a fifth of the total population, jammed the airport to greet the arrival of commissioner Stuart Hodgson and his staff.

"It's great to be home at last," Hodgson said to cheers.

In all, there were 76 persons aboard the DC-7, 50 of them territorial employees who will work in temporary quarters in a former school.

Mayor G. M Wilkinson said the town had many red-letter days this year — the visit of Princess Alexandra and earlier Northern Development Minister Laing's visit to proclaim it the capital. But the arrival of the government staff topped them all.

"Yellowknife wanted the capital, asked for the capital, and got the capital," the mayor said.

"We appreciate the responsibility and accept it."

Mr. Hodgson thanked the crowd for its "tremendous welcome" and said the territorial employees accompanying him were the best to be found anywhere. He hoped northern Canada would accept them as citizens.

R. J. Orange, N.W.T. MP, said he was sure he spoke for Mr. Laing in saying this was only the start of self-government for the north. He looked to the day when the Territories assumed all the powers of a provincial government.

Earlier the chartered craft carrying the employees touched down at Churchill, Man., for a 30-minute stop.

"We really didn't have to stop but we thought we would show them a real northern frontier town," Mr. Hodgson said.

"After Churchill, we are sure Yellowknife will look like a million bucks."

any more than a two-minute chat.

Then out they came to tour the Conservative offices on the fourth floor of the Centre block, making their way through the paint cans and ladders littering John D's new two-room suite currently being re-decorated for the old chief to occupy as a private MP.

They parted in a moment of strained silence at the elevators, and when asked what they had said in private, the old chief snapped, "Why should I tell you—Ask him, he's the new leader."

Downstairs near the main entrance, Mr. Stanfield allowed there hadn't been much time for confidences.

HEADING WEST

He had seen some of the files and found them "interesting," and was looking forward to "sorting them out for the useful material."

It was John D's last day — and his birthday.

Today he is heading west to "consult my constituents, meet old lawyer friends of my day and generation, go fishing" and ponder the future.

Would he be back for Parliament's opening?

He would not.

SPEAKING DATE

Saturday he would be in Saskatoon to speak at the opening of the University of Saskatchewan's law faculty.

And the following Wednesday, two days after Parliament's opening, he'd be in Prince Albert for a reception.

Would he ever be back?

That was "a determination for my constituents to make."

But sitting there amid a stack of telegrams and letters, with a big "happy birthday" bouquet from his staff on the desk, he reported that from his mail he could say that "90 per cent of the constituents I've heard from want me to remain in Parliament as their member."

But even though he wouldn't commit himself, the clues all firmly pointed to his early return from the west to the hill.

Best clue was his mention of his memoirs, "The story that needs telling," as he described it.

STAFF NEEDED

Chapter one wouldn't get into production until he was given "adequate staff."

As ex-leader he was moving from his six-room suite to the two rooms occupied by his former press secretary, Thomas Van Dusen.

Moving with "just one stenographer."

His staff as leader had numbered 16.

To "tell the story as it must be told" he related, he would need "a trained research assistant, some top-flight secretarial staff as well as the usual stenographic assistance."

In view of what he described as "the great proliferation of senior civil servants," recruited by the government in recent years, he didn't think the taxpayers would consider it either wasteful or extravagant if he were provided with "the staff to do the job."

What stories might he tell?

There would be chapters, he promised on:

● What he called the "raid" by American interests on Canadian reserves at the critical point of the 1962 election that cut him back from a majority to minority position in Parliament.

● What he pledged would be "the facts" — and not the "rumor and conjecture we have had so far" — of the events of the 1963 election, including the cabinet "revolt" that toppled him from power after six years as prime minister.

LESS CONTENTIOUS

There would be other less contentious chapters on such things as "the color-blind Commonwealth that I brought into being," multi-million dollar wheat sales to Communist countries and a few other topics.

What did he think the greatest contributions in his 27 parliamentary years?

"Making it possible for all Canadians regardless of race or creed to live in equality in all parts of the country — and the equating of opportunity for the Maritimes and the Prairies with the wealthy central provinces."

It had been a good and rewarding life on balance, and he was "well content."

Beulah Veers

BROWNSVILLE, Tex. (AP)—Hurricane Beulah, death and destruction behind her, veered slightly south late Monday and the weather bureau said her heaviest winds would miss the Texas coast. Latest aircraft reconnaissance indicated she was taking a westerly course that would bring her centre inland just north of Tampico, Mexico, today. About 24 hours earlier, she was on a more northerly course.

it might be a Russian move to reduce contacts between Britons and Russians by serving as a warning to Soviet students, scholars and even diplomats in Britain against forming too close associations here.

The Soviet note charged that throughout his year in Britain as an exchange student, "Tkachenko had been intimidated and blackmailed by special British services."

It added: "The aim of this was to try to induce him to cooperate with the above-mentioned British services and not to return to his own country.

"Tkachenko's wife, too, was approached with a proposal not to return to the Soviet Union. She rejected this brazen proposition with indignation."

British officials said Foreign Secretary George Brown will discuss the case with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko during the United Nations General Assembly session in New York. They said Brown will emphasize what the British called the outrageous and unlawful behavior of Soviet diplomats in apparently trying to kidnap and smuggle Tkachenko and his wife out of the country.

The couple was being kept in isolation at the Soviet Embassy.

Evgeney Rogov, the embassy's press attache, told correspondents: "He is an ill man and we are worried about his health. He is in a pretty bad state."

Rogov then ordered the reporters off the premises and threatened to call the British police if they didn't go.

The Russians have contended all along that Tkachenko had a mental illness and was being sent back to the Soviet Union for treatment.

The incident began Saturday morning when bystanders in Bayswater Road saw a young man rush out of the Soviet consulate. He was caught by consular officials and dragged protesting back into the building. British police said he called out, "Help me, help me," to passers-by.

Later in the day, police said, he was driven in a Soviet embassy limousine to the airport and out across the apron to a waiting Soviet jet airliner.

But a fleet of police cars ringed the plane so it was unable to take off. Scotland Yard detectives and secret servicemen boarded the airliner and after a struggle with embassy officials, Tkachenko and his wife were taken from the plane.

The British government said Tkachenko had been drugged.

Tkachenko was placed under medical supervision. He was ordered released to the Russians by Brown and Home Secretary Roy Jenkins after a study of reports by the attending doctor and "an eminent psychiatrist."

But British officials made little effort to hide their anger about the incident and what they called intolerable behavior by Soviet diplomats.

Tkachenko has been here eight months as an exchange post-graduate physics student at Birmingham University, where he was studying the properties of helium. He was to have moved on shortly for further study at Cambridge. He already holds a Soviet doctor's degree in physics.

Acquaintances at Birmingham said he is a competent scientist who was not working on secret or classified studies.

Gromyko made a refuelling stop in Scotland on his way to New York and was given a 90-minute report on the incident by Soviet Charge d 'Affairs Vladillen M. Vassev. News of the British decision to release Tkachenko was telephoned to them from London during the meeting.

Vassev indicated to reporters that both he and Gromyko are satisfied the affair is over.

being a cabinet minister very great.

Informants said no new associate defence minister will be appointed, for the time being at least.

MUST RESIGN

There was no announcement about Mr. Pickersgill's successor as Newfoundland's representative in the cabinet. He has to resign his seat in the House of Commons but there was no indication when this will be done.

The 17-member transportation commission will take over the regulation of all transport under federal jurisdiction. It will replace the present board of transport commissioners, the Air Transport Board and the Canadian maritime commission.

Legislation setting up the new commission was incorporated in the National Transportation Act, which Mr. Pickersgill steered through Parliament last winter.

One of the clauses in the act removes it from the provisions of another statute setting retirements in the public service at age 65. Members of the commission may hold office until 70.

Mr. Pickersgill entered politics in June, 1953, as state secretary in the Louis St. Laurent cabinet after 16 years in government service in Ottawa.

He won a Commons seat in the 1953 general election for the Newfoundland riding of Bonavista - Twillingate, which he has represented ever since. He served as citizenship and immigration minister from 1954 until the defeat of the Liberal government in 1957.

STATE SECRETARY

When the Liberals returned to office in April, 1963, he again was named state secretary. But a year later he was appointed transport minister.

Swearing-in ceremonies for Mr. Hellyer and Mr. Cadieux are expected to be held in Rideau Hall, the Governor-General's residence, today.

Mr. Cadieux will be the first French-speaking defence minister since Georges-Etienne Cartier in the first Canadian federal cabinet under Sir John A. Macdonald.

McRae

The arbitrators said there is a "reasonable probability" the site will be on stream.

Saanich said none of the property was zoned for apartments, and it was unlikely ever to have such zoning. The arbitrators said about 20 acres could be rezoned if sewers were provided.

(The questions of subdivision, sewers and land use were important to the price-setting process because they are indices of the possible future values.)

The arbitrators took almost six of their 20 pages to review and extrapolate on the sewage question as it effects the McRae property.

CONCLUSIONS

They examined the capacities of existing sewage systems, their proximity to the property and dialogues between Saanich and the McRaes over the years.

They concluded:

● ". . . while the property could not be provided with sewer facilities immediately, there was a reasonable probability that the property could be or would be sewered several years earlier than the six or seven years forecast by Mr. Life."

(The reference is to the evidence of Neville Life, municipal engineer.)

● "The board also found that if sewer facilities were made available to the subject property that at that time apartment zoning would be provided for approximately 20 acres . . ."

SEWERS SIGNIFICANT

The arbitrators underlined the significance of sewers in the McRae area. One Saanich bylaw forbids apartment buildings in unsewered districts and another bylaw sets the minimum lot size for septic tanks at 8,400 square feet.

The board also pointed out that National Housing Act financing for speculative building is not available for non-sewered areas.

Expo Blast No Bomb --- Russians

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal police said Monday that a time bomb caused a small explosion and fire in the Soviet Pavilion at Expo 67 but Soviet officials blamed the incident on a bursting mercury lamp.

The explosion occurred Sunday afternoon and slightly damaged some wood carvings and frames stored in a cubicle separated by a wall from the exhibit area in the pavilion's cultural section. No one was injured.

Mumps Vaccine Available But Skin Test Worth Try

Your Good Health

By JOSEPH MOLNER, MD

Dear Dr. Molner: I have heard talk for months about a "mumps vaccine." Is it just talk or has a vaccine been found that is in the testing stage?

In short, is there hope that we will soon be able to be immunized? Many grownups who didn't have the disease when they were children are understandably fearful of it, as I am. — M.C.

There is an effective vaccine for mumps now — but, more important, there is a skin test which will show whether a person has had the disease. A good many people have had the mumps as children but it was mild enough so it was not recognized, or they have forgotten it.

If the skin tests show an adult has not had mumps, then mumps vaccine is indicated. If a man of reproductive age gets the disease the possibility exists that it can settle in the reproductive organs and cause sterility.

In any event, it can be uncomfortable as well as potentially harmful.

Dear Dr. Molner: For some time I have been troubled by pain and swelling in one foot and ankle. An orthopedist treated me for an over-riding metatarsal and now I am wearing special shoes and doing various foot exercises.

There has been great improvement but my foot still hurts. I am only 29 and not happy at the thought of wearing "stupid" shoes for the rest of my days.

My question: Will wearing them for any special length of time correct the problem? Am I wasting the doctor's time? I see so many people in his office with real problems, and I wonder if I should just grin and bear it.

I broke a toe in childhood and it never healed right and humps up, and I suffered a severe sprain about five years ago. Do these facts have any bearing. — Miss C.S.

I couldn't answer whether the "stupid" shoes will have to be worn indefinitely — but your orthopedist can. He doubtless expects the foot exercises to continue to bring improvement.

There isn't much that can be more aggravating than a chronically painful foot, and if he can make you feel better you aren't "wasting his time." By all means check with him from time to time. Or, better yet, ask him for an estimate of how soon you should see him again, barring any unexpected change which you should, in any case, tell him about. The other foot injuries could have some bearing on your discomfort.

Washington Denies Peace Bid Quashed

WASHINGTON (AP)— The state department has denied charges that President Johnson's administration had "effectively and brutally cancelled" a private peace attempt with North Vietnam by stiffening the terms for peace negotiations.

Assistant State Secretary William P. Bundy, in charge of Far Eastern affairs told a press conference Monday the charge by editor and writer Harry S. Ashmore was misleading.

He said it had taken no account of the published record of Johnson's letter to North Vietnamese President Ho Chi Minh which made reference to contacts in Moscow between American and North Vietnamese representatives.

In addition, the department issued a statement in rebuttal to an article written by Ashmore.

Ashmore, former executive editor of the Arkansas Gazette and now executive vice-president of the Centre for the Study of Democratic Institutions in Santa Barbara, Calif., said in his article the Johnson letter to Ho had hardened the U.S. administration position by adding new terms for peace.

TALKED WITH HO

Ashmore and Editor William C. Baggs of the Miami News talked with Ho in Hanoi in January. In February they sent Ho a letter which Ashmore says was drafted with the aid of the state department and lessened the demands the United States had made for suspending bombing of North Vietnam.

But Ashmore claimed Johnson sent Ho a letter three days before the Ashmore-Baggs message and which Ashmore says made harder demands and undercut the chances for further talks the two newspaper men had thought might bring negotiations.

JOHNSON UPHELD

Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois came to Johnson's defence Monday and said he couldn't conceive of circumstances in which Johnson wouldn't make every possible effort to stop the killing in Vietnam.

Chairman J. W. Fulbright (Dem.-Ark.) of the Senate foreign relations committee, who has been a critic of Johnson's Vietnam policy, confirmed as accurate Ashmore's account.

"TAINT"

Dirksen said there may be some "taint" about the affair. The study of "Democratic Institutions" with which Ashmore is connected seemed to share ideas with an organization of new politics which met in Chicago this month. There were proposals at the Chicago meeting to nominate a "peace candidate" to run against Johnson next year.

Baggs wrote in the Miami News Monday that "the plain fact is that Ho was conciliatory, as Ashmore has written and that he said talks to end the war could begin once the bombing of his country was stopped."

"SOFTEST POSITION"

He added that the Ashmore-Baggs letter "expressed the softest position our government had taken on terms to end the war."

But he said that the U.S. government was at that time maintaining a separate and secret direct Moscow channel for negotiations with North Vietnam that only a handful of U.S. officials knew about.

It was decided not to tell Ashmore and Baggs about the secret Moscow channels.

Monsoon Traps Marines

SAIGON (UPI) — Unexpectedly early monsoon rains triggered unprecedented floods along the demilitarized zone Monday, isolating and endangering U.S. Marine frontier forts holding back a North Vietnamese thrust force.

The flood waters have killed at least 10 marines and scores of civilians, as well as creating a major supply problem.

Spokesman said the headquarters town of Dong Ha had 18 inches of rain in 24 hours.

Romney Fourth

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Pollster Louis Harris said Monday Michigan Gov. Romney has dropped to fourth place in the 1968 Republican presidential derby because of his claim he had been brainwashed about the Vietnam war. A poll put Nelson Rockefeller first, Richard Nixon second and Ronald Reagan third.

Sihanouk Cancels Pullout

PHNOM PENH (Reuters) — Cambodia has reversed a decision to withdraw diplomatic staff from Peking following a message from Chinese Premier Chou En-lai, the Cambodian head-of-state, Prince Norodom Sihanouk, announced Monday.

The prince gave no details of the message in a statement to the press, but he reaffirmed recent pledges to halt Communist Chinese subversive propaganda here, mentioning the New China news agency specifically.

SEPARATE DECISION

He said Monday a separate decision to close Cambodia's embassy in Canberra, Australia, still stands.

Diplomatic circles in Canberra had earlier speculated Cambodia might have closed its embassy in Australia, one of its closest "Western" friends, so it could then argue the Peking withdrawal was not an anti-Communist move.

There has been no suggestion Australia will close its embassy in Phnom Penh.

Three Targets

New Port Strike Reported by Hanoi

SAIGON (AP) — A broadcast dispatch from Hanoi said U.S. planes struck again Monday at Haiphong, following up attacks Sunday on three targets within that major North Vietnamese port.

The official North Vietnam new agency, without specifying bomb damage, said four planes were shot down over Haiphong. It reported one plane was felled in a raid elsewhere, site unspecified.

There was no immediate comment from American authorities.

Ground action in South Vietnam was described as scattered. The U.S. command in a delayed report said a battalion landing team from the 3rd Marine Regiment stormed ashore Saturday from U.S. 7th Fleet ships in Qyang Tin province.

In the political field, a revision of the announced lineup of the South Vietnamese Senate in this largely Buddhist nation seemed to mean that Roman Catholics will hold 26 of the 60 seats.

Tanks Rumble in Canton

HONG KONG (UPI) — Tanks clanked through streets of Canton and sandbagged virtually every intersection in a Red Army attempt to halt the virtual civil war sweeping China's southern industrial city, press reports said Monday.

Heavily armed rebels who oppose Communist party Chairman Mao Tse-tung threatened to "bloodwash" China's largest southern city from the countryside, refugees from the heavy fighting reported.

DEFENCE BARRIERS

They also said factions loyal to Mao are trying to mobilize 400,000 civilians to set up defence barriers in the city. There was no indication whether the army was taking sides or just trying to stop the fighting.

Earlier reports said Peking had ordered five army divisions into the area because of the bloody battles between pro and anti-Mao forces.

OTHER AREAS

The situation in Canton, and reported in several other areas, had become so serious that Mao made a personal appeal to the people.

Radio Peking Monday quoted Mao as saying "recently" that the troubles are caused only by some leaders who are more interested in personal ambitions than the cultural revolution.

"Among the workers class, there is no basic conflict over interests," Mao was quoted as saying. "There is no reason to develop diametrically opposed factions."

Dubious Decision

THE FEDERAL GOVERNMENT, in the name of economy, has decided to cut its military manpower by 6,000 men to a total of 100,000 for all three arms of the "unified" service. By this means, it is suggested, a saving of $30,000,000 will be effected in the military budget for 1968-69.

It will be a matter of some concern that the government in its search for a means of implementing Prime Minister Lester Pearson's promise of savings of "hundreds of millions" in the budget should have selected the armed services as the first to feel the knife. This is a practice followed too frequently in the past.

It might have been thought, for instance, that the government would first have had a long, hard look at the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation's operations.

Finance department estimates show the CBC will bill the government for a deficit of $143,960,000 in this fiscal year, up $29,476,000 from last year.

This approximates the amount of the savings to be effected by an armed services pay cut.

Apart from the fact that CBC programs are frequently severely criticized on the grounds of good taste, quality, authenticity and economy, there is some excuse for the examination of the efficiency and business judgment of the organization from facts available.

Ensconced in its sumptuous and soaring Ottawa headquarters building, the CBC has consistently multiplied its spending since it was established in 1936. But, in 1957, it appeared to be costing a reasonably acceptable $50,000,000 over and above its earnings. Today, with the prospect of a nearly $144,000,000 deficit just ten years later, it is permissible to question whether this extravagance is justifiable. Extravagance seldom is.

In the CBC's present executive establishment, headed by Mr. Alphonse Ouimet, the president, with a salary of $40,000 a year, are ten vice-presidential posts:

Vice-president of the corporation, vice-president and assistant to the president, vice-president planning, vice-president administration, vice-president engineering, vice-president finance, vice-president programming, vice-president and general manager regional broadcasting, vice-president and general manager French networks, vice-president and general manager Caribbean project.

What is more, when Mr. Ouimet shortly retires, his responsibilities will be shared by two officials of equal rank and, presumably, equal $40,000 salaries.

The Corporation in the past has refused to answer Parliament's perfectly proper questions as to salaries on the grounds it is privileged as an independent Crown agency. It has disclosed only the president's and his corporation vice-president's pay. But its public relations division admits the vice-presidents all receive in the same—$25,000—salary range.

From this the top executive salary bill is calculated at $330,000 for next year, with two top men getting their $40,000 each.

In addition, of course, are the retirement benefits, amounting to a year's pay on the basis of precedent, plus pensions ranging from the vice-presidential $16,000 annually.

In order to help maintain such a luxury Canada is now to cut 6,000 men from her military payroll.

Mutually Needed

VANCOUVER'S Mayor Tom Campbell is a colorful figure. He obviously sets out to be. Attention-getting talk is to be expected of him. But he is quite out of order when he says that while Vancouver's problems are metropolitan in nature, the Union of B.C. Municipalities "gets lost among the myriad problems of wolf and sage-brush control in upper B.C."

This is a reason he gives for considering whether Vancouver should withdraw from the municipal association, although he also notes the more acceptable one that Vancouver operates under its own charter while the rest of the local councils of the province are governed by the Municipal Act.

Certainly at UBCM annual meetings there are usually resolutions more pertinent to small-town than to big-city administration, although far from the extreme that Mayor Campbell suggests. But it is in policy on major problems of common interest—particularly in the realm of provincial-municipal financial relations—that the UBCM's important work is done. And in this field, Vancouver needs the support of the rest of the municipalities and they need the support of Vancouver if any impression is to be made on the provincial government.

Even in considering a split between city slickers and country hicks—he might as well have said it—he weakens the position of all local taxpayers, including his own.

No Need to Blow

OFFICIALS OF EXPO have decided to abandon plans to mark with special emphasis the visitor whose entry to the now famous centennial exhibition puts the attendance total ahead of the Brussels world fair of 1958.

They feel now that this would not be very good taste. Neither it would, and it would be redundant into the bargain.

It would also reflect the fetish about records that has become so prevalent especially in North America. Records are cited nowadays about almost everything under the sun.

As it happens, Expo expects in a few weeks to exceed the number of people who passed through the turnstiles at the Brussels exhibition. That should be satisfaction enough, without making invidious comparisons.

Arithmetical records do not of themselves tell the whole story of any achievement in any case. And the merit of an accomplishment is not to be summed up in statistics. It is the quality inherent in anything, be it world fair, sports, or other realm, that is the real criterion.

A small fair could be more attractive, informative and of intrinsic worth than a big one, for that matter.

Expo 67 has been a smashing success, and a credit to the national centennial theme. It has won encomiums from all quarters, at home and abroad. It has put Canada on the map in a manner that should be of lasting value.

And if the final attendance total proves to be larger than that drawn by any previous world's fair, so much to the good. Expo and the country at large can rest content without blowing about it.

War Casualty

Aqaba Looks Ahead

By IRENE BEESON
from Aqaba, Jordan

A NEW town is springing up at Aqaba — the place at the head of the gulf which provided the spark for the Arab-Israeli June war. A new commercial centre of 120 shops is complete, and all of them are sold. Four banks are going up and work begins next month on the first of four new housing projects, which is expected to be finished in 20 months.

The odd thing is that the war never touched Aqaba, the port founded by King Solomon, which had become only a small fishing village when the modern kingdom of Jordan was founded. Eilat, in Israel, is on the other side of the three-miles wide bay, and the reflected lights of the two towns almost meet in the sea they share. But barbed wire and an invisible barrier of hatred prevent one from walking along the beach from one town to the other.

Of course they expected action here in June. A British shipbuilder, who found himself the only guest at the Aqaba Hotel, told me that the sandy shore — Aqaba's showplace in less troubled times — was thick with soldiery.

But all that is past. Aqaba has plans and a hustling man in charge. Farhat Hawamleh is a one-man band. He is director of the port, director of the Stevedores Company, and director of the Aqaba Planning Committee. And he rides roughshod over obstacles.

Building a modern port at Aqaba began only in 1957, and in that year exports totalled 90,000 tons. In 1963, when an additional cargo berth and transit shed were built, the tonnage jumped to 273,000. Last year phosphates alone accounted for 650,000 tons. Mr. Hawamleh expects this figure to be two millions in 1970, and a new extension of the port will give room for ships of up to 100,000 tons.

The port already employs 800 out of Aqaba's population of 12,000. The population will rise to 45,000 when the new town is finished. And it is through exploitation of rich deposits of potash in the Dead Sea that Aqaba looks for prosperity. All transport to and from the port overland is by lorry, but Germans have been called in to study a project for a 136-kilometre rail link from the sites. This would reduce transport costs by five shillings each lorry load.

According to Mr. Hawamleh, there is sufficient water underground all along the way from Aqaba to the Dead Sea to irrigate large tracts of land for resettling farmers and settling Bedouin families.

For the moment the Israeli occupation of the West Bank of the Jordan and the closure of the Suez Canal are crippling Aqaba.

Loss of the West Bank has reduced the tourist flow to a trickle, since most visitors came to Aqaba after visiting the holy places of Jerusalem, and other sites in what is now Israeli-occupied territory. Closure of the Suez Canal has reduced shipping activities to a mere fraction of pre-June traffic.

"But when the West Bank is returned to us," says Mr. Hawamleh, "we shall extend the road to Jericho."

Liberals Prepare to Duplicate Tories' Political Extravaganza

By RICHARD JACKSON
Colonist Ottawa Bureau

WHILE probably you can't stand the thought, better begin preparing yourself psychologically for an encore, maybe as soon as next spring, of the sort of wonderful nonsense the Conservatives presented in their convention carnival.

It'll be a Liberal show this time, and because the Grits, party-wise, are better heeled, it should be even more of a political spectacular.

For the Liberal underground, members of federal government intelligence were there in the thousands that shared in the fun and games — and even the work of leadership selection — in the hotel lobbies, the policy committee rooms, the hospitality suites, and in the stands at Toronto's Maple Leaf Gardens when the Conservatives traded in their evangelical prairie prophet for the quiet man from the Maritimes.

It took only $10 to purchase convention credentials as an "observer," and the curious and vitally interested Liberals were spending it.

In the political dictionary, an "observer" by convention context is merely a more pleasantly acceptable term than "spy."

So, on the "observer" fringes of the Conservative convention, sharing in the rites of leadership selection, were agents of the National Liberal Federation's Ottawa headquarters, there to pick up tips on what — and what not — to do when they stage their own extravaganza.

They learned that with inflation increasing the cost-of-conventioneering, the organizational price-tag of any party's check-up and leadership change-over has more than doubled.

The new outward-bound Conservative national organizer, Dr. Jim Johnston, may or may not have told them that 11 years ago it cost the Tories only $73,000 to drop George Drew for John Diefenbaker, but $178,000 to dump Dief for Robert Stanfield.

Among members of the Grit underground scouting the Tory convention were the personal agents, some assigned, others volunteers, of the men who aspire sooner or later to Liberal leadership, including Paul Hellyer, Paul Martin, Allan MacEachen, Mitchell Sharp, Robert Winters, Jean Marchand and John Turner.

Agent Lee successfully penetrated the leadership candidates' committee headquarters, branch offices and hospitality suites masquerading behind their buttons, banners and bonnets.

Going into Mr. Stanfield's command post he would display the proper Maritime insignia. Scouting George Hees' many campaign encampments, he would be correctly decked out with the designated decorations.

It may come as a shock to the Liberal leadership candidates to learn that if they're going to do the thing up in the grand and glorious — if unhappily unsuccessful — style of the ebullient George Hees, they better be prepared to peel $175,000 from the bankroll.

In one hospitality suite alone — and the sky's-the-ceiling, "Georgie Boy," had one in every big midtown hotel — the bartender said he was "pouring a thousand bucks a day."

Busy, hub, asked a free-loader.

"Nah," shrugged the bartender, setting them up about one every 20 seconds, "this is the coffee break, like it's quiet."

What happens when it's not quiet? asked somebody else who had just happened in sociably from the street, making like he was one of the boys.

"We lay on another couple of bartenders."

Then there are the bands, baloons, shimmers, hordes of teeny-boppers, booze-up breakfasts, lunches and dinners, badges, banners, even buses to pay for.

The Tories were financially fortunate, with three millionaires, Stanfield, Hees and McCutcheon, all spending for their entertainment and edification.

It's not going to be easy for the Liberals to match it all — but match it and more they must.

In Rhodesia

Churches Oppose Apartheid Trend

By GEORGE NICHOLAS from Salisbury

THERE has been sharp reaction among Rhodesia's church leaders against the government's proposed introduction of legislation restricting residential areas in towns and cities to separate races.

The Anglican Bishop of Matabeleland, the Rt. Rev. J. K. Skelton, who is also president of the Christian Council of Rhodesia, has stated that his council is deeply disturbed by the knowledge that provisions for separate development of the various racial communities of Rhodesia are being discussed and considered for inclusion in a new constitution.

"We believe that the legal and physical separation of our people into racial groups would be an offence against Christian ideal: of the brotherhood of all men under the fatherhood of God," he said. "We believe that such separation would be against the economic and political interests of our land."

The bishop urged all Christians to challenge apartheid.

The Anglican bishop of Mashonaland, the Rt. Rev. C. W. Alderson, has no objection to voluntary segregation, but draws the line at state action.

"Some people would welcome a cold-blooded South African apartheid policy, applied with logic and rigor and no concern for individual human beings, while others, not really wanting this form of racial segregation, are attracted by a policy where communities may preserve their identities, traditions and customs, under legal and governmental compulsion," he said.

"Any segregation should be regulated by human beings themselves, without intervention or compulsion of law. Similarly with education, parents and not laws have the principal right to decide if different races and classes should be educated together."

The annual conference of the American Methodist Church in Rhodesia passed a resolution opposing separate development.

The resolution reads: "We view with deep concern the intention of the government to introduce the policy of separate development for the various communities of Rhodesia. We believe this policy is repugnant to the teachings of Christ and that it is our duty as Christians to oppose and repudiate it.

"It is fallacious and a travesty of the truth and justice to believe that human needs and aspirations can best be served by grouping people in ethnic communities."

Rhodesia's five Roman Catholic bishops also have criticized the government's proposed residential areas plan. They say it is introduced it will bring dishonor to the country. They have called upon all Christians to take a firm stand against the introduction of legislation that can restrict residential areas to separate races.

In a statement read to all Roman Catholic congregations throughout Rhodesia, they say: "We consider the proposed apartheid legislation a contradiction of the unmistakable message of the Gospel and for that reason alone it stands condemned in a Christian country. We can find no justice nor charity in the plan and we consider it our duty before God to protest in the strongest possible terms."

An advertisement in Rhodesia's main Sunday newspaper inviting Roman Catholics to oppose the stand of their bishops has met with angry protests from many Catholic worshipers. The advertisement said the views of the bishops are purely private and they do not represent all Catholics.

According to one Catholic priest, many of his congregation spoke of "their horror at the gross public disobedience to the bishops by publication of the advertisement."

The sponsor of the advertisement, B. Stapleton, himself a Catholic, replied: "As Catholics we have never disobeyed the bishops on anything else. But no one will ever change our minds that this is not a purely political matter. Many Catholics have indicated that they are tired of the pulpit being used as a political platform."

Rhodesia's Jewish religious leaders have stated that the government would erect artificial barriers between man and his fellows if it introduced the proposed legislation.

"We appeal to those in authority, with all the moral persuasion at our command, to refrain from such a step which ultimately may result in great unhappiness to some of the inhabitants of our country," they said in a statement.

The man who intends to pilot the proposed legislation through Parliament is Minister of Local Government and Housing Mark Partridge — himself a staunch Roman Catholic.

Quest for Power

Israel's Activists Ask No Compromise

By HENRY BRANDON from Tel Aviv

THE struggle in Israel between the "old guard" and the activists is gaining momentum. One senses this from the partisan arguments.

Some refer to it as a contest between generations, some simply say it is the contest for the succession to Prime Minister Levi Eshkol. The activists call the traditionalists compromisers and men too sensitive to world opinion; they themselves do not believe that past compromises have paid off or that world opinion really matters.

National interest alone should dictate policy, they think, and the reason they feel their oats is that they are given most of the credit for the decision to fight, and, hence, also for victory.

I asked an Israeli cabinet minister whether the fact that RAFI, the small activist party which is also Defence Minister Moshe Dayan's party, is joining MAPAI, the party in power, meant that the big, well-entrenched party was trying to smother the ambitious Moshe Dayan, or whether he was hoping to capture the majority party from within. He replied, smiling, that it was a bit of both.

However much Eshkol tries to denigrate Dayan's contribution to victory, the general remains the hero of the war. He is as controversial here as Bobby Kennedy is in the United States. He engenders the same kind of ardent loyalty and bitter resentment. A leading politician among the traditionalists, when I asked how he estimated Dayan's chances of becoming prime minister, said: "It's better to have few enemies than too many friends."

When I questioned Gen. Dayan about the significance of his party joining MAPAI he took what could be called the official line and perhaps it is the one which, at least in the next few months, will matter most: "We are heading into a difficult post-war period. The conflict about the existence of Israel will now be played out in political terms; it is most important therefore to have a strong, broadly-based government and as much internal unity as possible."

Another small radical party, Ahdut Avodah, led by Yigal Allon, the minister of labor, has also joined MAPAI.

What surprised me about Gen. Dayan was that on first sight he looks more like a supply officer than a field general. His body looks flabby, his trousers are baggy and his eye patch is a little too big and faintly transparent. It is only in conversation that one senses the strength, the decisiveness of his personality and his leadership quality, whether one agrees or disagrees with him.

When I asked him how he envisaged Israel's position in 10 years' time he replied, speaking entirely for himself: "The existence of Jordan will become a bigger problem than Israel. It will therefore be essential for Jordan to have close co-operation with us. It has a very serious water and electricity problem and we have the means to solve these problems for Jordan."

Thus Jordan as foreseen by him would regain national sovereignty over the West Bank but the Jordan River would remain its military frontier. The West Bank would be demilitarized except for two or three small Israeli military outposts.

In Jerusalem, all religious shrines would have extraterritorial rights and those belonging to Muslems would fly the Jordanian flag.

With Egypt and Syria he foresaw only a formal relationship, with troops remaining on the Suez Canal. In the end, he thought they would make the necessary concessions.

He threw cold water on the idea that large numbers of refugees could be resettled in the occupied territories. He had been to El Arish and also to the Bitter Lake, where the Egyptians had made impressive attempts at irrigation at considerable financial costs but had failed.

"I am afraid," he said, "the resettling of Arabs in significant numbers in the occupied territories is physically impossible. Nor could we find room for them in Israel. One million Jews have replaced the Arabs and whether it's moral or not, there simply is no room."

When I suggested that some statesmen believe that in 10 years the Arabs may be in a position to seek their revenge by force of arms, Dayan rejected the idea that the balance of forces between Israel and the Arabs would have changed significantly. "If the Arabs will have bigger forces and more equipment, so will we. However much the Russians teach them how to use their arms, they will not be able to teach them how to fight.

"They can improve them but not to the extent that we will not be able to cope with them. Not only can we increase the number of our pilots and our armor but we can also do what we have avoided up to now — fortify our borders. We have had no artificial fortifications, no mine fields. We did not want to sit behind a wall. I do not like defensive concepts. But we could fortify our borders if necessary.

"The situation would, of course, be different if the Russians decided to fight for the Arabs as the Americans are fighting for the South Vietnamese today, but I doubt whether they would do that."

No Soviet Pressure

Israeli intelligence, I was told elsewhere, had no indications that the Russians were pressing for a naval base of sorts in Syria, a story which seems to have emanated from NATO quarters. It is doubted here whether the Russians would want to commit themselves to such an extent.

"They are too late for the game of imperialism," a seasoned diplomat here suggested, "and so is the United States, as it is finding out now in Vietnam. The real superpowers of today are Israel and North Vietnam."

When I inquired whether Israel had any intention of strengthening its deterrent powers by building nuclear weapons, Gen. Dayan replied: "Only if an Arab country acquired one."

Others thought that it was a more effective deterrent not to develop nuclear weapons but to maintain the capacity to do so if necessary.

The Israeli government cannot be simply divided into hawks and doves but rather into those who have an old inbred inferiority and persecution complex and those who are overconfident, or into those who pay too much and those who pay too little attention to world opinion, into those who are men for all seasons and those who are men for great historical occasions.

Of course, as long as the Arab countries show little interest in negotiations, those who will hold sway in the cabinet will be the over-confident about continued occupation of the conquered territories, those who feel that they control the situation on the West Bank and in Gaza, who believe that the longer a solution is delayed the more the Arab position in the occupied territories will erode and the present temporary frontiers will harden into permanent ones.

As long as the Arabs refuse to negotiate, the military viewpoint is bound to prevail. For Israel, which has been the underdog for years, finds that playing the top dog is a new, troublesome, perplexing, but also exhilarating experience.

William Joyce was sentenced to death 23 years ago today — in 1945 — after spending the years of the Second World War in Nazi Germany broadcasting anti-British propaganda.

Joyce was born in the United States but lived 18 years in Britain and in 1933, by declaring himself a British subject, obtained a British passport. He renewed his passport in 1939 and was employed by the German radio one year later. Despite an appeal to the House of Lords, Joyce was executed.

1881 — U.S. President James Garfield died of wounds inflicted 11 weeks earlier by an assassin's gun.

1907 — Canada and France signed their first commercial agreement at Paris.

First World War: Fifty years ago today — in 1917 — the Argentine Senate voted to break off relations with Germany. The United States Army announced it had 1,500,000 men under arms.

Second World War: Twenty-five years ago today — in 1942 — the Russians defeated German troops in a five-hour battle for a hill commanding the heart of Stalingrad. A Communist party announcement placed German casualties in the South Russia drive at 1,200,000 killed.

Angry Trustees Fed Up with Government

By BILL STAVDAL
Colonist Education Reporter

A too-long-delayed letter is going to trigger some tough questions by Greater Victoria school trustees when their provincial organization meets in Vancouver next month.

Here's why:

Eleven and a half months ago in Penticton, the B.C. School Trustees' Association passed 46 resolutions at its annual convention.

Later, a delegation of the BCSTA executive came to Victoria and presented the resolutions to Education Minister Peterson, along with a written brief.

But early this month, with the 1967 BCSTA convention three weeks away, Mr. Peterson had not replied, despite frequent requests.

B.C.'s 83 school boards, therefore, were in the dark as they prepared new resolutions last winter and spring. The 1967 resolutions were printed and distributed for the Vancouver convention without anyone knowing how the government felt about the previous ones.

This non-event will finally trigger a long-brewing debate when the BCSTA meets in the Hotel Vancouver, Oct. 3 to 6.

South Island trustees — and probably others as well — are going to ask the question:

Is the B.C. School Trustees' Association a real force for improvement in public education, or is it a debating society?

More specifically, is the BCSTA willing to flex its political muscles and make itself heard and respected by the government?

Or is the annual convention and slate of resolutions merely a time to get together and blow off steam harmlessly?

meetings over the past several years, the trustees have been indicating their feeling that the government doesn't listen when school boards — any school boards — talk.

I have heard trustees and educators of the capital region and up-Island say the same thing: they believe that education department policy depends far more on the decisions of Premier and Finance Minister Bennett than on the needs of our schools.

John Young, principal of the progressive and nationally-known Campbell River high school, explained his district's success this way in Victoria last August:

"The (Campbell River) school board is committed to quality education.

"They don't want the bare, minimum standards laid down by the provincial government. Not the department of education — the provincial government," he said with emphasis.

The sheafs of resolutions that go to the education minister from the expensive annual conventions are generally met with polite refusal, or given answers which aren't answers, or directed elsewhere on grounds that they aren't the business of the department.

A good example is the reply to a resolution from the 1965 BCSTA convention. It advocated zonal salary bargaining with teachers instead of the existing district-by-district negotiations.

Trustees have long sought zone-wide or even province-wide bargaining with B.C.'s 18,000 teachers, to avoid having one board played off against the other. Teachers, naturally, have steadily fought such a move.

Mr. Peterson's reply to the resolution was:

"Zonal salary and bonus schedules may be determined by bargaining if both school boards and the teacher associations concerned are agreeable."

Quoting a well-known provision of the Public Schools Act amounted to an insult to the intelligence of the trustees. The resolution had asked, in effect: 'What are you going to do about it?'

This year, three similar resolutions will again come before the convention, and presumably at least one will be forwarded to the education minister to continue the cycle.

Some resolutions keep bobbing up year after year. Until the legislature approved pay for trustees last winter, the BCSTA used to ask for action perennially.

When a resolution asked for a specific amount, it would be rejected on grounds that it was too specific. If the resolution asked an unspecified amount, it would be labelled too vague.

It was the lack of any answer at all to last year's resolutions that settled things for Peter Bunn, chairman of the Greater Victoria School Board.

"It's rather absurd that we should have the resolutions for this year's convention printed up before we even have the replies to last year's resolutions," he commented not long ago.

Mr. Bunn prodded the school board office to find out what had happened. On Sept. 6, the BCSTA head office in Vancouver replied:

"... The association has been attempting to obtain the minister's replies since early spring. Letters and telephone calls have been exchanged with the department of education on and off since that time.

"As recently as last Tuesday, president Frank Beinder telephoned the minister of education long distance and explained the potentiality of trustee delegates raising serious criticism at the convention if 1966 replies were not on hand at that time.

"The minister indicated his concern on behalf of the school boards' interest in this matter and advised Mr. Beinder that he could look into the matter immediately," said the BCSTA letter.

On Sept. 11 one copy of the minister's replies to 1966

BACKGROUND

resolutions arrived at the Greater Victoria School Board office.

"It's an indication of the treatment given to lower-level public bodies trying to deal with the government," Mr. Bunn remarked. "You see the same thing happening to the municipalities."

The feeling of the Greater Victoria board, shared to some extent by the Sooke and Saanich boards, is that the BCSTA as a whole is dominated by rural trustees unaware of the urgency of today's education problems.

For example, at the October convention, the Vancouver School Board (75,000 pupils) will sponsor a resolution asking the government to employ a consultant on educational television.

Birch Island School Board (750 pupils) will seek an amendment to legislation concerning correspondence education.

Both rural and urban problems are real enough, but the feeling in Victoria is that proportionately little is done for the cities.

It's the same sort of situation which prompted Vancouver's Mayor Tom Campbell last week to suggest withdrawal from the Union of B.C. Municipalities on the eve of the UBCM annual convention.

Mayor Campbell said that the hinterlands were concerned only with "wolf and sage-brush control," reflecting the ancient gulf between city and country cousins.

Greater Victoria's impatience with the 'go slow' thinkers was declared flatly a month ago. Several trustees suggested that the Greater Victoria board leave the Island branch of the BCSTA and align with the big districts of the Lower Mainland.

An alternate suggestion was that Greater Victoria be given permanent representation on the BCSTA executive through the Island branch.

The dissatisfaction was all the more noteworthy because the chairman of the Island branch of the BCSTA is John Porteous, a Greater Victoria trustee. Mr. Porteous endorsed the move for better representation for Victoria.

There is an underlying political split, too. Urban trustees are far less inclined to back the government than rural trustees in the Interior, where Social Credit strength lies.

Greater Victoria is also at odds with BCSTA education finance policy, which backs property taxation to pay for schooling. The Greater Victoria board says ownership of a big house does not prove ability to pay, and wants all education dollars to come from general revenue of the province.

Next month on the floor of the convention the Greater Victoria trustees will launch an energetic appeal for more militant organization.

They will try to make fellow trustees of the 83 school districts more aware of their potential power. After all, it will be noted, trustees speak for citizens just as much as municipal councillors do and for 440,000 B.C. school children as well.

They expect opposition—or more likely, apathy — but they will make the pitch anyway.

Their main hope of success, it seems, lies in the possibility that other school boards large and small are fed up with the feeling of impotence that permeates many BCSTA debates.

"This should be a fighting organization," said Mr. Bunn last week. "I would like to see our organization fired up; I would like to see the teachers fired up, to make the government give top priority to education."

CURRENT EVENTS

By MARVIN D. LIPTON

It is barely three months since the chorus of critics reached crescendo level in condemnation of the United Nations' helplessness during the Middle East crisis. This week the General Assembly commences its 22nd annual session and in many quarters people wonder if the world body can still play a useful role.

The detractors of the international organization, mindful of its shortcomings in June, claim that the UN is plagued by power politics and conflicts of national interest and is beset by myths of representation. What was intended as a peacekeeping tribunal, say the faultfinders, has become a propaganda factory.

The four leading members — the United States, the Soviet Union, Britain and France — have all been caught lying in the UN at one time or another; the U.S. over the Bay of Pigs invasion of 1961, the U.S.S.R. over the Cuban missile crisis of 1962, Britain and France over the Suez invasion of 1956.

In the last emergency session, the Arab states 'grandstanded' on network television as inoffensive victims of a vast Western conspiracy. Israel ignored with impunity the UN resolution not to alter the status of Jerusalem.

Pint-Sized States

Numerous pint-sized states count for as much as the U.S., France or Britain in voting. The island of Formosa 'represents' 700,000,000 Chinese on the mainland but in fact this is without substance.

The two halves of Germany and the warring parts of Vietnam are not seated.

Although its main task is peacekeeping, the United Nations is either unwilling or unable to take any significant hand in moderating or ending the Vietnam war.

When a major crisis breaks, too often the UN becomes entangled in oratory and indecision. To many, it seems no more than an empty shell.

These charges do not go unchallenged. One supporter of the UN points out that "its impotence reflects the realities of power."

A great deal of the disenchantment over the world association is caused because many of us expect too much of the UN and hold a wrong conception of its status.

The drafters of the UN Charter did not intend the international organization to be a world government. They specifically retained the sovereignty of nations by allowing the big powers to veto proposals in the Security Council.

Furthermore, the charter states that it does not "authorize the United Nations to intervene in matters which are essentially within the domestic jurisdiction of any state . . ."

The UN cannot issue orders to member states. It has no police force.

Parallel Policies

Events have illustrated that the UN can function effectively on salient issues only when there is a parallel policy in Washington and Moscow.

When these powers are at loggerheads, the United Nations is paralyzed. This is a reflection of world realities; it is not the fault of the peacekeeping body. In many instances these two nations eventually strike a compromise.

In large part, the United Nations operates unobtrusively through its social agencies providing food for the hungry, healing the sick, and giving shelter to the homeless.

Winston Churchill once observed that it is better to jaw-jaw than to war-war. Although at times the frustration runs exceedingly high, the UN provides the worlds' only forum in which nations can talk.

WHAT DO YOU THINK?

Prof. K. E. Boulding of the University of Michigan states, "The nation is a means towards the orderly development of mankind, yet there are people who would be willing to condemn mankind to extinction rather than to suffer even the slightest diminution of power of their particular nation."

Do you agree with Boulding? Why would you favor world government or oppose it? Is it now practical? Why?

Vietnam War To Go to UN? Not Very Likely!

By JOHN BEST
from New York

Every once in a while, when the prospects of peace in Vietnam look particularly depressing, there is a renewed outburst of talk about tossing the issue to the United Nations.

It is possible to have serious doubts as to what good the United Nations can do in present circumstances.

External Affairs Minister Martin says the issue "certainly must be and certainly will be" discussed by the Canadian Assembly session opening today.

However, there is a vast difference between discussing Vietnam and doing anything about it. Mr. Martin's own recent statements make it clear that he believes, there is little hope of progress toward peace talks at present.

Even the Americans have admitted that their soundings indicated the essentially dismal outlook for any effective action by the world body.

If the outlook for peace negotiations were otherwise than dismal, chances are that this would be manifested in some other forum than the United Nations — to which neither North nor South Vietnam nor Communist China, an interested party in the conflict, belongs.

A more plausible forum for thrashing out a settlement would be a reconvened conference of the Geneva powers who concluded the original Indochina truce agreement in 1954.

Britain, co-chairman of the conference, has been trying to get Russia, the other co-chairman, to join in recalling it. However, the Russians say they can't take such an initiative without a mandate from North Vietnam.

It comes down to a question of a halt to the American bombing of North Vietnam.

The North Vietnamese say that once the bombing ends — and only when it ends — talks can take place. UN Secretary-General U Thant, for one, agrees that an unconditional halt to the air raids is a prerequisite for peace talks.

Washington argues that there must be an advance, reciprocal undertaking by North Vietnam to stop the infiltration of men and supplies into South Vietnam.

The two sides have been thus deadlocked for nearly two years. It is difficult to see how discussing the issue at the UN Assembly can change the situation.

B.C. Erecting Barriers Against Hippie Invasion

B.C. is trying to head off a reported invasion of hippie groups coming west to escape ice and snow in the relatively mild winter climate of West Coast cities.

Welfare Minister Campbell said Monday the provincial cabinet, apparently alarmed at the prospects of an invasion by groups which could become a charge on the public purse, is issuing a stern warning.

The government policy created specially to meet this need, Mr. Campbell said, applies mainly to hippie groups; but other transient groups and individuals intending to come here for the winter months should also take heed.

'NOT WELCOME'

The minister added: "As government policy, I want to make clear that transients from other parts of Canada are not welcome in B.C.

"In particular I wish to warn that during the winter, when prospects for employment are limited, these transients need not expect in B.C. to become public charges on any department of this government.

"In particular the policy of cash (welfare) allowances for any individuals without permanent addresses in B.C. will not be forthcoming."

PILOT HOSTEL

"Finally, any groups of these transients who are through press reports apparently on their way to B.C. should not come all the way."

Mr. Campbell said the seasonal influx of transients in the past has forced the government to enter an agreement with Vancouver to provide a pilot hostel in the Lower Mainland.

Other temporary winter accommodation for jobless transients has been provided in the past in the Peace River area.

The minister indicated the government is determined not to let this trend grow without any form of control.

Mystery Name Pulls Bets

LONDON (Reuters)—British bookies said Monday thousands of pounds have been wagered by people throughout the United Kingdom on the name of Cunard's new transatlantic liner, which will be launched at Glasgow Wednesday.

Favored at 3-1 are Sir Winston Churchill and Britannia, while Prince Charles and Prince of Wales are next at 4-1, and John F. Kennedy and Princess Anne are listed at 5-1. The 58,000-ton liner, fourth largest in the world, will replace the Queen Mary.

Castlegar Strike Today?

VANCOUVER (CP) — The International Woodworkers of America are expected to strike at Celgar Ltd. operations today after a breakdown in negotiations at Vancouver with the company Monday.

Jack Moore, regional IWA president, said he expected there would be a strike at the company mill in Castlegar and at its logging operations on the Arrow Lakes.

The IWA was demanding an immediate 50-cent-an-hour pay increase and rejected an industrial inquiry commission report that recommended 44 cents over two years.

SAME DEMAND

The IWA throughout the B.C. Interior has the same demand, but Celgar was bargaining with the union independently and did not ask for a government-supervised strike vote as others did.

The IWA served mandatory 48-hour notice of a strike last week after rejecting the report of the commissioner, Mr. Justice Craig Munroe.

The union wage demand would give its members pay parity with their counterparts in coastal operations.

Didn't Even Lift Phone—Gaglardi

Sometimes it seems, in Ottawa's eyes anyway, as if B.C. is a part of some faraway country like Russia, Highways Minister Gaglardi said Monday.

Mr. Gaglardi complained Transport Minister Pickersgill was in Vancouver last week to discuss engineering studies for the proposed new crossing at the First Narrows, "He never so much as lifted the phone and said, 'Hi, Phil — let's go out and shoot jackrabbits.' ..

Mr. Gaglardi added, "What are we, in Russia or something? Or maybe they're not even building the new crossing in B.C. at all."

The provincial government, Mr. Gaglardi pointed out, had spent 10 years and perhaps $500,000 on engineering studies for the new crossing.

"We're offering something for nothing, something already paid for with taxpayers' money. We already have a study and engineering study by FENCO, the best in the business, and a traffic study by Norman Lea and Associates of Vancouver.

"It seems to me Ottawa is not interested in saving tax dollars but in wasting tax dollars."

Premier Bennett has pledged a provincial contribution of $27,000,000 toward the cost of a new crossing, but said the province will have no part in the federal-municipal venture.

Arab State Seized

ADEN (UPI) — The National Liberation Front said Monday it had seized control of Qaiti State, consolidating its growing power in the 17-state South Arabian Federation and boosting its claims of popularity throughout the region.

Qaiti State rulers, including Sultan Awadh Binghaleb, fled into neighboring Saudi Arabia as the Sultan's armed forces joined NLF nationalists in a swift take-over, the NLF said.

Pro-NLF tribal uprisings threatened the rule of sultans in two neighboring states, Kathiri and Mahara, the nationalist organization said. Collapse of the two states was predicted "shortly."

"We assure the Qaiti people of safety for their lives and property," an NFL statement said. "The administration is functioning normally."

Mideast Priority

Fruitless Debate Presented to UN

From AP, LAT

The inconclusive summer emergency session of the United Nations General Assembly ended Monday by agreeing to pass the Mideast issue to the assembly opening today as a matter of "high priority."

The motion came from Austria, Finland and Sweden.

There was more of the name-calling and recitation of charges and counter-charges that had dominated the special Middle East session that convened June 17 and recessed July 21.

The Israeli delegation has made it known Israel will insist on direct negotiations with the Arabs.

PEACE PLAN

Jordanian Foreign Minister Adib El Amery flew to New York Monday with what he said was a Middle East peace plan.

There was speculation he would unveil it at the UN.

In an operation sometimes resembling military manoeuvers, the Israeli government opened one-fourth of the schools in East Jerusalem.

FEW TEACHERS

Ministry of education personnel with walkie-talkies co-ordinated the arrival of reserve Arab teachers to replace the 62 of 70 regular instructors who didn't show up.

Only about half of the 2,600 pupils were present.

Tito Drops Peace Try

The announcement was made Monday by Yugoslav Foreign Minister Nikezic after his five-day visit, which included talks with President de Gaulle, and followed Israeli rejection of the scheme for big-power frontier guarantees.

LONDON (AP) — Some persons will steal anything, police concluded after answering a call from a temporarily-unoccupied house in suburban Richmond. Thieves neatly cut a floor-to-ceiling Chippendale fireplace, valued at $13,500, out of the wall and made off with it. They also took an antique marble fireplace worth $1,500.

Police Guard Red Premier

OTTAWA (CP) — Security precautions described as the tightest for any Centennial Year visit were in effect Monday as Premier Mika Spiljak of Yugoslavia was welcomed to Canada by Prime Minister Pearson.

A state visits official made the comment as a number of security men watched the welcoming ceremony from rooftops of buildings surrounding Parliament Hill.

There were no incidents during the 30-minute ceremony on the lawn in front of the Parliament Buildings.

LIFE THREATENED

Police feared the possibility of demonstrations by anti-Tito groups against Mr. Spiljak. President Tito originally planned to visit Ottawa and attend Expo 67 in Montreal, but threats against his life prompted Canadian officials to ask him to stay home.

Explosions last January rocked Yugoslav embassies at Ottawa and Washington and consulates in Montreal, Toronto, New York, Chicago, San Francisco and Philadelphia.

Last week, police raided dwellings in Montreal, Toronto, Hamilton and Brantford, Ont., in an attempt to thwart any demonstrations against Mr. Spiljak.

During the ceremony, Mounties stood spaced about 25 feet apart behind a rope keeping the crowd well away from the platform where the Yugoslav premier and Mr. Pearson sat.

Plain-clothes officers could be seen with binoculars on top of office buildings facing the Parliament buildings. There were also security men stationed on top of the East Block and in the lookout under the Peace Tower clock.

Behind the dais, about 20 security men stood five feet apart facing the crowd.

In his welcoming speech, Prime Minister Pearson praised Yugoslavia for its role as "a middle power seeking world peace," and said that as a non-aligned country, it has contributed significantly to the relaxation of tension on the international scene.

The prime minister noted that both countries have recently increased their trade with each another and the number of cultural and scientific exchanges has grown.

In his reply, Mr. Spiljak, 51, who has been premier since May, praised Canada's "constructive efforts for safeguarding peace in the world."

Mr. Spiljak, former premier of the Yugoslav state of Croatia, shook hands with about 50 Canadians of Slav origin who were standing in a roped-off area.

Doman Near Record

By HARRY YOUNG
Business Editor

Doman Industries expects to have record sales in its current fiscal year ended Oct. 31, according to Herb Doman, president of the Vancouver Island transport and lumber firm.

Figures for the nine months to July 31, show sales of $5,805,761, compared with $7,011,818 for the 12 months period of 1966.

Income before depreciation, depletion, interest and income tax amounts to $585,233, against $753,803 for the 12 months a year ago.

NET SUM

After all above charges the net profit for the nine months was $160,000 against the previous 12-month total of $190.145.

Mr. Doman explained this year's depletion was down from $115,453 to $36,127 because of the forest closure which has stopped logging for more than two months. Income tax allowance at $145,000 was higher than the $131,415 of the previous year because of revised accounting practices.

LAST QUARTER

Shareholders were told the last quarter is expected to be good.

"The lumber export business has recovered and lumber prices have risen," he said. "The new sawmill at Ladysmith is now operating at over 80,000 board feet a day, and is beginning to show a profit."

On the other hand, costs were rising, he added.

NICKEL RISE SPREADS

An increase of 10 per cent in the price of nickel has been announced by Canada's two largest producers — International Nickel of Canada and Falconbridge Nickel.

The new prices are 94 cents a pound (U.S.) and 101½ cents a pound (Canadian). The previous prices were 85½ cents and 92.15 cents respectively.

Inco's price increase takes effect immediately, and Falconbridge's Oct. 1.

Similar increases were announced last week by Sherrit Gordon Mines Ltd.

'KICKER' PREFERRED

The Canadian government appears to have created quite an interest by introducing the "kicker" of a conversion feature to its current $525,000,000 financing offering.

Three separate bonds are offered on a short-term basis, but the third and longest — due April 1, 1971 — gives holders not only a 6-per-cent coupon over that period, but also, up to April 1, 1970, permits holders to exchange their bonds into securities.

Bond dealers said this privilege, which protects holders against long-term deterioration of interest rates, and also gives the opportunity of capitalizing on current low bond prices, is popular.

QUICK SALE

"We sold out our allotment of the convertibles very quickly this morning," said one dealer.

In addition to the 6 per cent issue, the government is offering a 4¾ per cent bond due Dec. 15, 1968, at 99 to yield 5.617 per cent, and a 5½ per cent bond due Dec. 15, 1960, at 99.25 to yield 5.86 per cent.

The Bank of Canada has undertaken to purchase $175,000,000 of the offering.

OIL EXPORTS GROW

Canadian oil exports to the U.S. rose to a record 483,548 barrels a day in July, according to the U.S. interior department.

Most of the increase was west of the Rockies where most of the additional 75,000 barrels a day was shipped by tanker from Vancouver to San Francisco.

The over-all oil trade position was little changed because the export expansion in the west was offset by higher Canadian imports in the Maritimes and Quebec.

MIDEAST FACTOR

Reshuffling of tanker transport to deal with pipeline shutdowns in Arab countries and the closing of the Suez Canal were held resposible for the changes in the oil marketing figures for July.

The department says there will be some levelling off in the August figures and September should again be almost normal.

LITTLE LAND FARMED

Libya, with a population of 1,677,000, uses less than 1 per cent of its land for cultivation.

Socialistic Overtone Charged to Carter

Canadian Press Business Editor

MONTREAL (CP) — The Carter report on taxation has socialistic overtones that are "part and parcel of a carefully constructed plan for a whole new system of governmental control over the individual and business," the Canadian Chamber of Commerce was told Monday.

C. B. Neapole, president of the Montreal and Canadian stock exchanges, told 900 delegates at the chamber's 38th annual meeting that the royal commission which drew up the report seemed to accept as a principle the idea that business is the fiscal servant of the government.

"If we ever accept this as a precept, then free enterprise and the democratic principle that the government is the servant of the people will drift away and we shall lose by default because we did not fight for these ideals," he said.

His remarks to a general policy session starting to study the implications of the Carter report, which calls for widespread reforms in Canada's tax system, were echoed by another speaker.

W. H. Flynn, of Toronto, Ontario general manager for Canadian Industries Ltd., said parts of the 2,600-page report have been interpreted as suggesting that economic fluctuations should be controlled almost entirely at the expense of the private sector in the economy.

A. R. WILLIAMS: the lift-truck people.

We think we've got the best team, the greatest product and the most efficient Parts and Service department in British Columbia. Quite a claim, isn't it? We have our reasons, though. And CLARK Equipment Company, the world's largest manufacturer of materials handling equipment, must have agreed with us. They named us dealers for their famous line of lift-trucks. They liked our representatives – bright, knowledgeable fellows, who get straight to the heart of materials handling problems. Your problems. And they liked our Parts and Service department, too. Those boys really believe that time is money. They work fast, but they won't cut corners. We think we're the best in the business – but it doesn't mean a thing until our customers think so. Now why don't you just give us a call and make us prove it?

Nahmint Bay Best Waters

The best place for tyee and large springs seems to be Nahmint Bay in the Alberni Inlet this season.

A considerable number of fish has been taken all along the inlet, but Nahmint Bay has produced the bulk of The Daily Colonist King Fisherman Contest entries.

However, the largest tyee in the contest so far was taken at Frenchman's Pool near Campbell River by Joe Lapiant, 90 9th Avenue, Campbell River. He caught the 67-pound fish on a Lucky Louie.

It's hard hat off, ball cap on when Lee Hyssop's work day ends

Lee Hyssop is a B.C. Telephone Company lineman. On the job, he builds telephone facilities. Off the job, he builds character in youngsters.

Take three kinds of gloves, two sets of spikes, a pair of blades, a broom and ice. Mix well with sturdy physical build, warm personality and desire to succeed.

There you have a recipe for a man—not just any man, but a man named Lee Hyssop.

It's a name with a familiar ring in Nelson and the Kootenay regions of British Columbia where many will recognize the significance of the ingredients because they know the man.

They know that as an employee of the B.C. Telephone Company he wears the climbing spikes and leather gloves of a telephone lineman, a man who builds telephone lines whether in 90-degree summer heat or in 16-below winter cold.

A Champion's Coach

They know that when he's through his workday chores in summer he puts on the spikes and glove of baseball to coach a championship Little League team, which includes one of his own four children.

They know, too, that in his off-work hours in winter he's frequently found wielding a broom at the curling club or wearing the gloves and blades of hockey as coach of a Pee Wee ice-hockey team, which also includes one of his two sons.

And, if they've followed the sports-page accounts of the senior Western International Hockey League for any length of time, they know that Lee Hyssop was league scoring champion twice during his ten years as a Nelson Maple Leaf centre.

Lee Hyssop has established himself as quite a man in the 36 years since he was born in Coalhurst, a tiny community just outside Lethbridge, Alberta. He became a hockey player while growing up in Kimberley and Nelson and as a youth played with the Lethbridge Native Son juniors. After two years with the amateur New York City Rovers, he returned to Nelson to play with the Maple Leafs.

That was in 1952. The same year, he joined the B.C. Telephone Company team as a member of the construction force. He became one of fewer than 5,300 employees with B.C. Telephone then.

The company was spending about $1 million a month throughout the province at that time to build new telephone facilities, and when Lee went to work to set poles and string telephone lines, his crew often included as many as ten men.

Today, the company is spending more than $1 million every week to construct new telephone communication facilities for British Columbians.

More Than 7,200 Employees

Lee Hyssop's work crew now numbers two —himself and a helper—who with the aid of costly machines and equipment are able to build more in less time than the larger crews of the past. Yet, the number of employees with B.C. Telephone today totals more than 7,200.

Not all of these telephone people can claim the athletic prowess of a Lee Hyssop.

Nor do all of them hurry from work to the ball park or the hockey arena to guide youngsters in the skills of sport and sportsmanship as Lee Hyssop does.

Not all of them are linemen, for it takes thousands of people with dozens of different skills to operate and maintain the $480 million telephone communications network B.C. Telephone has built in this province.

But all of them are people; people with ambitions, desires, hopes and fears like anyone else; people active in their own ways in their own communities; and people not only working hard to enable B.C. Telephone to continue to provide more of the vital communications facilities which tie British Columbia together, but to do it better.

LINEMEN ARE BUILDERS

Lee Hyssop is one of eight linemen in the B.C. Telephone Company's Nelson construction force. His working territory is the West Kootenay district and his work day may find him helping to set poles by helicopter at Duncan Lake, stringing cable across the Columbia River at Castlegar, or scaling a 65-foot pole on a mountainside to maintain lines carrying not only telephone calls but radio and television programs.

More than 220 other B.C. Telephone Company linemen carry out similar tasks in other areas of the province, building and maintaining telephone facilities in cities like Prince George or Kamloops or Victoria, in villages like Atlin or Horsefly or Invermere, and throughout the rural areas.

They are telephone people helping to link telephone customers together throughout British Columbia's 366,000-square-mile area.

Nobel Prize Winner

Nuclear Pioneer Dies at 70

CAMBRIDGE, England (CP) —Sir John Cockcroft, 70, eminent nuclear scientist who prepared the foundations of Canada's atomic program, died Monday after a brief illness.

The Nobel Prize winner, who as a boy frightened his parents with chemical explosions in his bedroom and who later became one of two men who first split the atom, was found by his wife in his lodge at Churchill College where he was master.

Death came just a few days before Sir John hoped to attain a long-cherished ambition, to become president of the Liberal party.

PILOT IDEA

His great work was in the post-war development of nuclear power in Britain. But during the Second World War when British research was transferred to Canada and the United States Canadians will remember him as the pioneer who headed Canada's National Research Council atomic research establishment at Montreal in 1944.

He then became director of the Canadian research plant at Chalk River, Ont., which blossomed from a pilot idea into one of the world's most important research centres. Sir John remained there until 1946.

When he and fellow-Briton Prof. Ernest Walton split the atom in 1932, Sir John was in great excitement. He and his companion had done what the U.S. had spent millions of dollars trying to do. But later he at times expressed sorrow that atomic energy had ever been discovered. He dreaded the bomb.

Cockcroft

He won the Nobel Prize for physics in 1951. Britain's greatest honor was to bestow the Order of Merit on him in 1957.

BACK TO BRITAIN

Sir John had a vast capacity for scientific work. While much of his wartime effort was concentrated at Chalk River, it was disclosed only after the war that he also had worked on radar and directed development of equipment to protect convoys, control the guns of Dover as well as anti-aircraft guns and searchlights.

He returned to Britain in 1946 to initiate British atomic research plans at Harwell, where he became the first director. He was knighted in 1948 and honored by Canadian and other universities.

In his autumn years, Sir John paid increasing attention to the problems of scientific training.

Violence Flares In School Strike

From UPI, AP

Angry parents touched off a flurry of violence in the New York City school strike Monday after lengthy negotiations failed. There was speculation agreement would be speeded by settlement of the two-week teacher strike in Detroit.

Angry parents besieged board of education headquarters in Brooklyn, shouting obscenities at policemen who refused to let them enter the anteroom to the office of school superintendent Bernard Donovan.

13 ARRESTED

Seven women and five men, who said they were members of the Brooklyn chapter of the Congress of Racial Equality, were arrested as trespassers when they broke through police lines and attempted a sit-in. Two people were slightly injured.

In Detroit, teachers returned to work Monday after winning an across-the-board pay raise of $8.50 in each of the next two years in a walkout that delayed the opening of school for 300,000 pupils.

Classrooms will open today, two weeks late.

Detroit teachers voted ratification by 3,316 to 376, after their union, Local 231, American Federation of Teachers, told them "that is the best we can do," following a final all-night bargaining session.

When negotiations first opened, the teachers demanded $1,700 more immediately. They will get $1,700, but spread over two years.

Fire Lines Reinforced

VANCOUVER (CP) — Record-breaking high temperatures over the weekend sent reinforcements to the fire lines in the Kamloops forest district as hazard ratings began to climb, a forest service spokesman said Monday.

Search Ended

A search of B.C. has been called off for a 33-year-old Ontario man suspected of being bitten by a rabid racoon. Tests showed the animal was not rabid. The man, Brandon Lee, was believed visiting B.C. when the alarm was sounded last week.

French Air Cadets Here on Weekend

Eighty-three French air cadets and 15 staff members from L'Ecole De L'Air of Salon de Provence, France, will visit the Victoria area this weekend.

The cadets will arrive at Patricia Bay Airport at 10:30 a.m. Saturday in two French Air Force DC6-Bs. They will be lodged at CFB Esquimalt, tour Royal Roads Saturday afternoon and attend a dance there Saturday night.

The cadets, on a Sept. 12-27 tour of Canada as part of the second year of their academic training, will leave Patricia Bay at 8:30 a.m. Monday.

Their tour also includes Canada's other military colleges in Kingston, Ont., and St. Jean, Que., Expo, Vancouver, Ottawa, Toronto, Portage la Prairie, Edmonton, and Quebec City.

MRS. J. E. BOND

Despite her considerable culinary talents, nothing Mrs. J. E. Bond could do for her husband seemed to please his palate. Then she tried Colman's Hot Ready Prepared English Mustard. That brought a gleam to his eye. The modern little Colman's jar with the traditional nip has since become a fixture on the Bond table.

Holy Cow! Said Motorists

PORT ARTHUR, Ont. (CP)— Twenty-seven cows disrupted the normally well-regulated traffic on Highway 17 near Kakabeka Falls early Monday.

The animals, breaking through their pasture fence, took a leisurely stroll on the highway, which is posted for 60 miles an hour. Before order was restored, total damage of $1,700 was caused to four cars and three persons were slightly injured. One cow was killed.

Gallant Loser Sturrock

Intrepid Completes Cup Sweep

NEWPORT, R.I. (UPI) — The United States handed Australia another million dollar lesson in sailboat racing Monday as Bus Mosbacher on Intrepid held fast to the America's Cup with a fourth straight win over a plucky but completely outclassed Dame Pattie.

The 116-year-old competition went 4-0 to the U.S. with such utter ease and lack of excitement that it was a sad comedown for Jock Sturrock and his Aussies who had come to Newport in such high anticipation this summer.

Intrepid won the final race by three minutes, 35 seconds and a distance of more than a half mile.

It was in many ways a carbon copy of the first three races, with the 12 meter yacht designed by Olin Stephens scoring a competitive scrimmage at the starting line and simply moving through the water so much more smoothly and with more effective sails.

The horns of the 21st U.S. victory since 1851 sounded from a small spectator fleet of 75-100 boats contrasted to the 700 which had put out on the first day's race Sept. 12 and Mosbacher now a two-time winner, and his men headed for iced champagne at port to celebrate keeping the bottomless old silver mug.

In a display of Australian good humor, Sturrock as he crossed the finishing line broke out the flag signifying that Dame Pattie did not care to race tomorrow.

Within hours after the end of the 1967 Amercia's Cup Race, Britain challenged the United States to race again for the cup in 1970.

Commodore Percy Chubb of the New York Yacht Club revealed that he had received a communication from the Royal Dorset Yacht Club of Weymouth, England. Chubb said he expected other challenges; almost certainly one will come from the French.

William Strawbridge, head of the syndicate which built Intrepid, disclosed that the French had made an offer to buy the new champion. He said Intrepid at this time was not for sale and particularly not to a foreign nation.

Sturrock and Mosbacher were in cordial good spirits at a news conference after the race. Sturrock said the reason Dame Pattie lost was that "we didn't go as fast" and he acknowledged that the best boat won.

Commodore Chubb said that serious consideration would be given to the idea of elimination series' between foreign contenders — for example between the British and French.

Mosbacher was smiling but quiet. He repeated that Intrepid was the fastest 12-meter built and said he and his crew were "almost in awe at the boat and the sails were given to work with."

Asked whether he would sail in the America's Cup again, he replied: "I haven't been asked." The Intrepid crew, standing in the back of the room, shouted in unison: "we ask you."

Up until almost the last moment there had been doubt whether Monday's race could be sailed. A heavy fog lay at sea off the great mansions of Newport and the host New York Yacht Club held up the race until 2 p.m. to let it burn off.

Chicago Surge Checked

Bosox, Twins Catch Tigers

Don't look now but there is another three-way tie for first place in the thrilling American League pennant chase. Not only are the standings tight, Monday's important games were all decided in the ninth or tenth innings.

Boston Red Sox, Detroit Tigers and Minnesota Twins are tied for first, Chicago White Sox are just one half game off the pace just as they were 24 hours ago but then there was only one team ahead of them.

Red Sox forced the tie when they defeated yesterday's leaders, Detroit, 6-5, while Twins were keeping pace with a 2-0 win over Kansas City, both in 10 innings and Chicago's surge was checked, 3-3, by California Angels.

Red Sox won on Dalton Jones' third home run of the year.

46TH HOMER

Jim Northup had doubled home Al Kaline in the eighth to put Detroit ahead, 5-4, but Carl Yastrzemski hit his 40th homer with one out in the top of the ninth inning to send the game into extra innings.

Yastrzemski's blow was the first homer of relief pitcher Fred Lasher this season. Jose Santiago blanked the Tigers in the ninth and 10th innings to gain credit for the win.

Jim Kaat, of Minnesota, and Jim "Catfish" Hunter, 11-16, were locked in a scoreless pitching duel after nine innings at Kansas City.

Kaat had lost all four previous starts against the Athletics but was extremely sharp this time, striking out 12 batters while limiting Kansas City to six hits and not allowing a runner past second base as Twins won, 2-0.

Twins broke a scoreless streak of 22 innings in the top of the 10th inning when Hunter gave up three of the six hits by Minnesota.

Bob Allison started the two-out rally with a single; Rod Carew walked and Ted Uhlaender lashed a line shot to centre field to score Allison. Carew scored when Joe Nossek bobbled the ball.

At Anaheim, Rick Reichardt's two-out single in the ninth drove in pinch-runner Roger Repoz to give California Angels a 3-2 victory over the White Sox.

The loss ended Chicago's win streak at five games and spoiled their bid for sole possession of first place.

Chicago trailed, 0-2, until the eighth inning when they struck for two unearned runs to tie the game.

Angel starter Ricky Clark had only allowed one hit and retired 17 batters in a row before White Sox scored their runs.

In the other game, Baltimore used three pitchers while shutting out New York Yankees, 2-0, on run scoring singles by Dave Johnson and Curt Blefary.

Jockey Basil Frazier Takes to Sandown

By JIM TANG

Most impressive performer after two days of the 1967 thoroughbred meeting at Sandown Park has been Basil Frazier.

Other jockeys have had better starts than the four victories, three seconds and two thirds Frazier has managed from 12 rides but few have looked as good doing it.

Despite the fact that he finished as the third leading rider at Exhibition Park, where he had 60 winners and 135 of his 335 mounts in the first three, Frazier has gone to the post on the mutuel favorite only twice at Sandown.

PLAYER'S DELIGHT

He didn't make it on Prince Scorpion Saturday and got only show money on Littlebitofsugar yesterday, but he's been highly successful on less highly regarded steeds. He has been a horse-player's delight — a rider who can get and keep them going in the stretch.

He started quickly at Sandown, winning the first race by taking 3-2 Mission Man from the outside to win a stretch battle with favored Western Chief.

Then he left them talking with his great finish on Wallaroo in Saturday's fourth race, steering through a small opening on the rail in the last strides to get the camera dicision in the four-horse scramble.

SIX IN MONEY

There was more of the same yesterday as Frazier won twice, placed twice and got show money twice in his six rides.

He kept veteran Amazing Message, who usually likes it longer, close to the pace in the third race, then caught Whip'n Blinkers late in a tough stretch run for a $19.50 payoff.

Frazier was right back in the next race. Up on Mobil Maid, whose form shows she has had to lead to win, Frazier didn't try to beat the outside post position his mount drew. He just got her well placed, then surprised knowing race fans by getting up in time to get a camera verdict in another four-horse scramble.

EXACTO PAYOFF

It was an $11.40 straight return and when 12-1 Satin's Kin was lensed out as second, the Exacto return was $96.

Frazier had two other serious shots at victory. He missed by a length with Velvet Morn in the fifth when favored Alcaloe refused to buckle and then by a nose in the eighth with Siouxson, a gelding who usually can't stay close enough early to be close late in the sprints.

A 12-1 outsider, Siouxson combined with the 6-1 Waraway for a $107 Quinella payoff.

BREAKAGE: Wayne Harris, who was leading rider at Exhibition Park until he fractured a collarbone in a spill, is due to Sandown tomorrow. Track officials report he will also stay for racing Friday and Saturday at least ... mutuel play of $82,363 yesterday was up about $4,008 over the same day last year ... Sandown's racing surface is deep and about a second slower for six and a half furlongs than the strip at Exhibition Park but owners love it ... some of the crowding just out from the six-and-a-half furlong chute has been caused by loose footing. Mending is being done ... a stewards' objection was flashed after the fourth race yesterday but after a long look at the pictures, stewards felt that the one-two horses were equally to blame and no change in placings was made ... the camera couldn't separate Ellabhal and Jokellina for place money in the first race, which brought two quinella payoffs.

Vancouver Near Lacrosse Crown

VANCOUVER (CP) — Defenceman Bill Robinson and forward Gary Stevens scored three goals each as Vancouver trounced Brooklin, Ont., Redmen 13-4 Monday night and moved within one game of the Canadian senior lacrosse championship.

The well-balanced Vancouver team leads the best-of-seven Mann Cup final 3-1 with the fifth game scheduled Wednesday.

A crowd of 2,450 watched Vancouver take a 5-2 lead in the first period and increase the margin to 10-3 after 40 minutes of play.

Goaltender Skip Chapman turned in another top performance for Vancouver and has now allowed the Redmen only 14 goals in the last three games.

Gord Frederickson scored twice for Vancouver with Sid Warick, John Cervi, Pete Black, Dennis Nagy and Bob Babcock adding one each.

Brooklin goals came from John Dale, John Davis, Ken Thompson and defenceman Bruce Wardess. Davis, picked up from Peterborough, has scored six goals in the series.

Racquet Club Orders Pool

Racquet Club of Victoria has awarded the contract for a 25-metre, six-lane swimming pool to Alca Pool Construction Co. of Vancouver.

The pool, which will be closed in at a later date, is expected to be ready in November. Work on the pool will start immediately.

Next development planned at the club is a six-sheet curling rink with overlooking lounge which will open current rink for more skating and hockey.

O'Keefes Lose Warmup

Victoria O'Keefes have two practices left before they open their defence of the Pacific Coast Soccer League season's title next Sunday against UBC Thunderbirds at Royal Athletic Park.

And the chances are that those practices will be centred around the cohesion of the wing-halfs and inside forwards.

The linkage wasn't there on Sunday when O'Keefes dropped a 0-1 decision to the same UBC team in an exhibition match at Royal Athletic.

INTO OWN NET

Victoria goalkeeper Barry Sadler accidently knocked the ball into his own net after making a diving save on a low shot by Ken Elmer 30 minutes into the first half for the only goal of the game.

Bruce Ballam came up with several outstanding saves in the second half to preserve his shutout. Dune McCaig had the best chance for O'Keefes but shot high.

Fullbacks Dave Stothard and Don McIntosh and centre-half Bill Hamilton were O'Keefes strong point. Brian Robinson was sharpest at the wing half spots while Jim Menzies played well at centre forward.

Ray Telford of Nanaimo was signed Sunday by manager Frank Gregaly bringing O'Keefes total to 16 players.

Castaways Win Debut

Castaways made an impressive debut in their first Victoria Rugby Union regular league match Sunday, trimming Cowichan, 11-10, at Brentwood College.

Dave Clark paced the victory by scoring one try and a convert. Gerry Carr and Dick Hales scored one try each for the winners.

Derek Hyde-Lay converted both Cowichan tries which were scored by Blair Bellis and George Westarp.

Held Lead Since June

Cards Clinch Pennant

To absolutely no one's surprise, St. Louis Cardinals will represent the National League in the World Series.

The Cardinals clinched their 11th pennant Monday with a 5-1 victory over Philadelphia Phillies on the three-hit pitching of Bob Gibson.

Held without a hit for five innings by lefty Dick Ellsworth, the Cardinals erupted for four runs in the sixth to make manager Red Schoendienst a pennant winner in his third year at the helm.

Shortstop Dal Maxvill started St. Louis' winning rally with a single to left. Gibson sacrificed him to second and Lou Brock doubled, scoring Maxvill. Julian Javier singled home Brock.

After Curt Flood struck out, Orland Cepeda was purposely passed. Mike Shannon doubled scoring Javier, and Cepeda came in on a throwing error by Cookie Rojas.

GIBSON WINS 13th

Meanwhile, Gibson, who earned his 13th victory and third straight since recovering from a broken leg, limited the Phillies to one run. Tony Gonzalez singled to open the seventh, moved to third on Bill White's double and scored on an infield out.

It was St. Louis' sixth victory in the last seven games and their 15th in the last 18.

The Cardinals thus boosted their National League lead to 13 games over idle San Francisco with only 12 games left to play.

The Cardinals, who either held or were tied for first place since June 17, lead all National League clubs in Series play with seven fall victories in 10 previous tries, including its seven-game victory over the New York Yankees in 1964.

This was the second straight year the pennant was clinched in Connie Mack Stadium against the Phillies. Los Angeles Dodgers won it here on the last day of the 1966 season in the second game of a doubleheader with Sandy Koufax registering his final victory.

In other Monday action, Deron Johnson and Tony Perez smashed home runs helping Cincinnati Reds to a 4-0 victory over Atlanta Braves as relief pitcher Ted Abernathy recorded his 25th save of the season. Rookie Tom Seaver scattered eight hits and Ken Boswell drove in two runs in his first major start as New York Mets whipped Los Angeles, 7-2, ending a seven-game losing streak. And Doug Rader lashed four hits and drove in four runs, leading Houston Astros to a 14-4 romp over Pittsburgh Pirates. Jim Wynn scored four runs as the Astros rode a 15-hit attack to their seventh straight victory.

Brabham Wins

OULTON PARK, England (AP) — Jack Brabham of Australia, driving a Repco Brabham, won the Gold Cup auto race Saturday with a circuit record of 108.51 miles an hour on the final lap.

Jackie Stewart of Scotland was second after leading in the early part of the 124-mile race.

Golf Invitations Irk British Pros

LONDON (CP) — British golfers protested Monday against invitations offered to eight players, including George Knudson of Toronto, to compete in the £20,000 ($60,000) Piccadilly match-play tournament.

For the first time no Briton was asked to play, prompting British professionals to brand the Oct. 21 event at Wentworth, England, "an exhibition match" and "a disgrace to British golfing."

OTHERS ASKED

Besides Knudson, other professionals invited are Gary Player, Arnold Palmer, Gay Brewer, Billy Casper, Roberto de Vicenzo, Bruce Devlin and Peter Thompson. Jack Nicklaus declined earlier.

"This is further proof that golf is controlled more and more by managers," stormed Dai Rees, captain of Britain's Ryder Cup team.

SAYS 10 GOOD ENOUGH

"I reckon any of our 10 Ryder Cup boys were good enough to get into the final eight selected."

Philip Wilson, tournament committee chairman, said:

"Sadly we believe no Briton has achieved more internationally than these eight and that is our criterion," he said.

Knudson was invited because of his victory in the individual Canada Cup championship last year in Japan.

Seattle Rangers Whip Bombers

EUGENE, Ore.—Tom Hulett threw five touchdown passes Sunday to lead Seattle Rangers to a 35-14 win over last-placed Eugene Bombers in Continental Football League action.

Tom Roth, former Washington State University quarterback who tried out with B.C. Lions, took over from Hulett with the score, 28-0, but had two passes intercepted by Eugene's Greg Hartman and Hugh Oldham who ran the ball back for touchdowns.

Hulett finished the game.

The winless Bombers may have some more player help coming from Los Angeles Rams. The Rams have already sent guard Dennis Brewster to Eugene.

Vancouver Rejects Soccer Playoff Bid

VANCOUVER (CP)—Vancouver Firefighters have withdrawn from the Canadian inter-provincial soccer playoffs, team manager Doug Greig said Monday.

He said the club was not given sufficient time to prepare for the playoffs and would be handicapped if it entered them because the soccer season is just starting in B.C. but concluding in other parts of Canada.

The Firefighters, who play in the Pacific Coast Soccer League, won the right to represent B.C. in the playoffs by downing North Shore Luckies 1-0 in the Province Cup final last spring.

"If we had known two months ago that the tournament was being held we would have kept the team together and kept training," Greig said.

He said that the Firefighters were not contacted about the playoffs until three weeks ago and blamed the Canadian Soccer Football Association headquarters in Winnipeg for failing to inform the team sooner.

"We would have liked to have entered the tournament but the time element was just too hard to beat," Greig said. "We have just started training."

Scottish Open Cup Defence

Canadian Scottish opened the defence of the McGavin Cup, with a 2-0 win over University of Victoria Vikings, last years' finalists, Sunday at Heywood Avenue Park as The Victoria and District Soccer League season got underway.

Jack Breuker and Gil McIlraith scored for Scottish.

In the other first-round cup matches, Red Lion Inn defeated Hourigan's Kicker's, 2-1, and Luckies edged Tally-Ho, 2-1, at Central Park while Gorge Molsons dumped Victoria West, 5-3, at Heywood.

John Treger scored both Red Lion goals while Bill Cameron scored for Kickers. Alec Stewart and Tom Walker scored Luckies' goals while Bud Livingstone replied for Tally-Ho.

Former goalkeeper Larry DeCosta paced the improved Gorge squad with three goals while Rick Lamoureaux added two. Howie Anderson scored twice for Wests and Brian Howe once.

Next Sunday's semi-finals have Scottish meeting Gorge and Red Lions playing Luckies.

In second division league play, London Boxing blanked Falcons, 4-0, Island Tug edged Gorge, 2-1, Sidney Hotel dumped Victoria West, 3-0, and Mayfair Clippers sied Colony Inn, 2-2.

London Boxing (4)—Harry Robbins, Rick Allan, Don Shaw, Brian McIntyre; Falcons (0).

Mayfair (2)—John Crabair 2; Colony Inn (2)—Lou Budoson 2.

Conn Smythe Sued In Tax Test Case

Conn Smythe

TORONTO (CP) — The federal government has filed suit for taxes against the president of Toronto Maple Leafs and two former executives of the National Hockey League team.

Action began Monday in Exchequer Court before Mr. Justice H. F. Gibson.

The Crown alleges that Conn Smyth, former president of Maple Leaf Gardens, Stafford Smyth, his son and now president of the Leafs, and Clarence Day, former team coach, owe taxes on money received in 1961 when they sold their shares in the corporation, C. Smyth Ltd.

The Crown claims the price of the shares was income, not capital gain.

Crown attorney Walter Williston said the case is one of a series to determine whether tax is owing under the law on transactions of this type.

The amounts in dispute are: Conn Smyth $238,827; Stafford Smyth $123,084 and Day $55,044.

Packers Given Scare As NFL Season Opens

Near defeat for the highly-favored Green Bay Packers was only one of the features as the National Football League opened its 1967 season in sensational style.

Except for the 17-17 tie the Packers finally salvaged in their game against Detroit Lions, there was only one upset but the eight games were replete with spectacular running and passing and they attracted 463,007 fans.

HUGE CROWDS

Biggest crowd was at Cleveland, where 81,039 fans watched the Browns take a 21-14 defeat from Dallas Cowboys but it was almost matched at New Orleans, where the Saints made their league debut before 80,879 customers.

Bart Starr, who had only three passes intercepted all last season, had four picked off in the first half as the Lions built up a 17-0 lead and had a touchdown called back because of a penalty.

Starr brought his team back slowly against the tough Detroit defence, finally pulled even with a pass to Elijah Pitts which ate up 84 yards and enabled Don Chandler to kick a field goal with less than two minutes left.

Cowboys held Cleveland's vaunted running game to a minus five yards and got the winning touchdown when linebacker Chuck Howley went 28 yards after an interception.

RUNS BACK KICKOFF

New Orleans fans got a tremendous send-off when rookie John Gilliam scored by going 94 yards with the opening kickoff. The Saints made it tough but finally succumbed to Los Angeles Rams.

It was just as spectacular in Baltimore, where Colt-quarterback John Unitas passed for a career high of 401 yards to lead his team to a 38-31 victory over Atlanta Falcons.

Unitas and Tom Matte combined for an 88-yard touchdown on the first Baltimore play from scrimmage, then Bob Smith tied it up by taking the kickoff all the way in from his one-yard line.

New York Giants were the surprise winners, taking St. Louis Cardinals by 37-20 as Fran Tarkenton got untracked in the second half.

After making only two completions for 37-yards in the first two quarters, Tarkenton threw touchdown passes of 70 and 38 yards to Homer Jones and 13 yards to Del Shofner.

Gale Sayers ran a kickoff back for 103 yards but Chicago Bears were taken, 41-13, by the defensively-tough Pittsburgh Steelers. The Bears got only six first downs, 16 yards on the ground and 79 in the air.

OTHER SCORES

In other games, San Francisco 49ers took Minnesota Vikings, 27-21; Philadelphia Eagles whipped Washington Redskins, 35-24.

Houston Oilers snapped a 13-game losing streak in the American Football League, defeating Buffalo Bills, 20-3.

Oakland became the first AFL team to win twice, trouncing Boston Patriots, 35-7, and Miami Dolphins brought Denver Broncos back to earth with a 35-21 win.

Abner Haynes, traded by the Broncos, broke a 21-21 tie with two fourth-quarter touchdown runs, one of them 65 yards.

Winslade Re-Elected

PENTICTON (CP)—Some 200 delegates to the 48th annual British Columbia Amateur Hockey Association convention Sunday re-elected Don Winslade, of New Westminster, as president for a one-year term.

Also re-elected to the BCAHA executive were Leo Atwell of Trail, first vice-president; Milo Fabro of Trail, second vice-president, and Ivan Temple of Victoria, secretary-treasurer.

Immediate past president is Leo Margolis of Nanaimo.

POSITION CHANGED

Temple's position as secretary-treasurer was changed somewhat at the convention. He is now a full-time paid employee of the BCAHA and does not have voting privileges at future conventions.

Clem Bird of Penticton was elected president of the newly-formed British Columbia Junior A Hockey League for a one-year term.

Lions Lose to Esks

Bombers, Ti-Cats Score Upsets

Winnipeg Blue Bombers and Hamilton Tiger-Cats were generally relegated to the Canadian Football League scrap-pile before the season started but the old Grey Cup foes still pack a wallop.

Tiger-Cats, getting a last-second field goal from Tommy-Joe Coffey, took the favored Ottawa Rough Riders, 16-14, in one of Sunday's three games to open up a four-point lead in the Eastern Conference.

ACCOMPLISH IMPOSSIBLE

Still hobbled by injuries, the Bombers did the "impossible" in their victory, yielding Saskatchewan's Roughriders a 16-0 lead, then storming back to win, 17-16.

Defeat kept Saskatchewan from gaining a first-place tie in the Western Conference with Calgary Stampeders while victory kept Bombers within a point of Edmonton Eskimos in the scrap for the third playoff spot.

Eskimos, playing with star halfback Jim Thomas on the bench with a foot injury, stayed ahead of the Bombers by scoring a 19-8 victory over the inept B.C. Lions.

LAST PLAY WIN

Coffey booted Ti-Cats' winning points with one second left on the clock after quarterback Joe Zuger all but flubbed the chance by calling for a running play with the ball on Ottawa's 24-yard line and only 13 seconds left.

The play gained three yards, Coffey connecting from the 28-yard line.

It was Coffey's third field goal of the game. Hamilton got a touchdown from Willie Bethea and a single on a punt by Zuger for its other points.

TWO FOR STEWART

Ronnie Stewart scored both Ottawa touchdowns. Moe Racine converted one and the other Rider point came when Don Sutherin booted the opening kickoff through the Hamilton end zone.

A blocked kick by Norm Rauhaus early in the third quarter turned the tide against Saskatchewan's Riders, who had built up a 16-0 lead in the first half and were almost completely dominating the play.

Wayne Dennis grabbed the ball after Rauhaus had broken through to get in front of Al Ford's attempted punt and carried within six yards. Quarterback Kenny Ploen was injured on a second-down pass attempt but Bill Van Burkleo came in to throw a touchdown pass to Ken Nielsen.

NO STOPPING THEM

There was no stopping the Bombers after that although placement-kicker Ernie Kuzyk failed to make the convert and got only one point from his first two field goal chances.

Kuzyk got one point from 24 yards after runs of 33 yards by Dave Raimey and 14 by Ron Kirkland, then missed again from 35 after Van Burkleo had passed Bombers close.

But Van Burkleo kept hitting and a 32-yard pass to Nielsen gave Kuzyk a chance from the 32-yard line. He got the three points for 10—16, then kicked what was to be the winning point after Van Burkleo had tied it by carrying over from one yard.

TWO CHANCES

Saskatchewan came smashing back and got two scoring chances. Jack Abendschan missed a field-goal try from 46 yards the first time, then Bombers almost lost the game with a roughing penalty on what would have been the last play of the game.

It gave Abendschan another chance from 32 yards but he was wide and Rick Wozney just got the ball over the goal-line to avoid the tie as the final gun sounded.

In Edmonton, the Lions played their usual spotty game, picking up long yardage at times on forward passes but not able to mount a consistent attack.

ONLY TOUCHDOWN

Jim Young got their only touchdown on a pass play with Bernie Faloney which covered 52 yards but a fumble on a third-and-one situation with Edmonton leading, 11-8, and the ball on the Eskimos' 12-yard line early in the fourth quarter was the end for the Lions.

Leroy Sledge was the best of the Lions, making four great catches for 141 yards. Faloney did most of the quarterbacking after newcomer Henry Schichtle couldn't get anything going in a starting assignment.

Sikes' Surge Collars Classic

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Dan Sikes came from four strokes off the pace, collared the collapsing George Archer with a four-under-par 68 Sunday and won the $110,000 Philadelphia Golf Classic with a 72-hole total of 276.

Sikes, a 36-year-old former lawyer, finished two strokes ahead of Archer, who led the third round.

Sikes' total tied the tournament record of 276 set by Jack Nicklaus in 1964.

The 6-foot-6 Archer, a former cowboy from California, led the field by four strokes starting the final 18 holes.

SCORED EAGLE

He came apart on the front nine, however, with two bogies and a double bogie for a three-over par 39, and finished with a 35 for a 74 and a total of 278.

Archer made a desperate comeback on the last two holes as he scored an eagle on the 485-yard 17th and came within a whisker of a birdie on the final green.

Wilf Homenuik of Winnipeg shot a 73 Sunday to finish well down the list with 295. He had a 77 Saturday.

In a tie for third place were Billy Casper, Bob Charles and Mason Rudolph, each with 72-hole totals of 280.

Grouped at 282 were Miller Barber, Arnold Palmer, Wayne Yates, Bobby Nichols and Jim Colbert.

This was Sikes' second tour victory of the 1967 season — he won at Jacksonville — and made him the seventh player this year to go over the $100,000 mark in earning $112,693.

It also marked the first time in his seven-year pro career that Sikes had won two tournaments in a season.

Sikes missed a five-foot putt and went one over par on the second hole before he got hot and reeled off three birdies to overtake Archer and gain a one-stroke lead after nine holes Sunday.

FOUR MISSES

Archer struggled, missing birdie putts of six feet or less on the first four holes.

He went one over par on the fourth and fifth completed his collapse going two over par on the eighth where he hit out of bound.

Nichols, who shot a final round 71, Rudolph, with a 71 and Casper, with 70, each made a charge at Sikes. At various stages, each pulled within a stroke of the lead, but couldn't maintain the surge.

In the other game, Oak Bay trounced winless James Bay Mustangs, 26-8 at Macdonald Park to move into second place tie with Hornets.

Courtroom Parade

Decision Due Today On 'Planted' Drug

A youth whose counsel said he had marijuana "planted" on him was remanded one day in central magistrate's court Monday for judgment on a charge of possession of marijuana.

Ricky G. Kardera, 18, of CFB Esquimalt, testified his comrades at the naval base did not care for him because he belonged to a motorcycle club, and "the public image of motorcycle clubs is Hell's Angels."

BACK INTO BASE

Thomas Cino, a fellow-ordinary seaman, testified he met Kardera at the parking lot outside HMCS Naden (now CFB Esquimalt) late on the night of Aug. 2 and "asked him if he had the stuff with him."

He said Kardera had gone back into the base, and on his return to the parking lot had been arrested before he got out the main gate.

Cino said the purchase had been set by himself and friends, in conjunction with the RCMP, because he "saw a friend of mine come into the canteen high on dope," and attributed the supply to Kardera.

NOT RIGHT

He took the action, he said because "I just don't think it's right to sell dope anywhere."

RCMP constables who took part in the arrest testified the small amount of plant-like substance found in a cellophane package on Kardera had been identified as marijuana.

The defence testimony, called by counsel Lloyd McKenzie, acting with David Wilson, centred on the story offered by Kardera himself and his fiancee, 18-year-old Darlene Kraft of Vancouver.

TO HIPPIE HOUSE

Kardera said he and his fiancee had gone riding on his motorcycle that evening, and had gone to collect some motorcycle tools he had left in "the hippy house on Hillside."

He said he had frequented the residence, "a ramshackle old place," at 1109 Hillside, and that people would just go there to listen to music and relax.

He said he found, however, "everybody just sat around and looked sorry for themselves."

INVITED IN

On the night in question, he said there was only one hippie at home. He and his fiancee were invited in to wait for a friend of his (Kardera's).

Noticing a small cellophane bag with a plant-like substance on the table (less than a third of an ounce, RCMP estimated), he asked about it.

The hippie told him it was a herb-like substance he could either smoke or drink, and it had healthful properties. In her evidence, Miss Kraft named it as mint tea.

Kardera said he bought the bag for $4, putting it in his pocket where it was subsequently found by the RCMP.

Miss Kraft substantiated this story.

Kardera repudiated Cino's story about arranging a purchase of marijuana and denied any connection with Cino's friend, who had been high on marijuana, according to Cino.

USED DRUG

He said another seaman, named by Cino as having used marijuana, was an habitue of "the hippie house on Hillside" and "blew his mind," with the halluzinatory drug.

Kardera said he and his father went to a hippie spot in Vancouver early in September and purchased a substance that "looked and smelled like marijuana," and smoked it in the house of his fiancee's mother.

NOT IDENTIFIED

Mrs. Kraft took some cigarette butts to the RCMP Sept. 10 or 12, and the substance was not specifically identified, except that it was not marijuana.

In argument, defence counsel McKenzie said the chance of raising a reasonable doubt on the possession case would have been higher on the evidence of possession alone, and the explanation.

ADMISSIBLE

Magistrate William Ostler had ruled that crown testimony on trafficking, offered by Cino, was admissible, although recent rulings on the conduct of narcotics cases stipulate possession and trafficking must be dealt with separately.

Prosecution counsel Rodney Taylor said he felt it was difficult to imagine how a "plant" could be engineered, since Kardera had no prior plans of going to the Hillside house where he got the package he claimed was mint tea.

Magistrate Ostler will give his judgment this afternoon on possession. The evidence on the second aspect of the charge, "for the purpose of trafficking," will follow.

Barry A. Letherby, 28, of Santa Maria, Cal., asked if there was no way he could obtain free legal aid, similar to the method used in the U.S., since "there are going to be several instances of this."

Magistrate Ostler remanded him for a day without plea, instructed the crown to supply him with written particulars of the charge, which Letherby said he didn't understand, and suggested the Salvation Army was the agency to contact for legal aid.

Letherby was chargd with obtaining money under false pretences, under $50, by exchanging a dress for money at the Bay, Sept. 12, when he knew it had not been purchased.

He is awaiting sentence on a similar charge he pleaded guilty to earlier.

Wilfred D. Philibert, 28, of 2580 Prior, was fined $350 on impaired driving and $10 for failing to change auto registration. His licence was suspended.

Robert Fraser, 22, of 946 Goldstream, was fined $50 each on charges of supplying liquor to a minor and consuming liquor in a public place. The default period was 60 days, and he was not given time to pay.

The evidence showed he was drinking by the fountain in Centennial Square Saturday evening, and had thrown a beer bottle in the fountain on the approach of police. Five full bottles were found nearby and he admitted ownership.

Explanation is that, on doctor's orders, family rigged Cindy's ears like end-zone barrier to strengthen ear cartilage so ears won't flop down.—(AP)

Dog-Poison Probe Started

The SPCA said Monday it has begun an investigation into poisoning of two dogs by strychnine in James Bay Saturday.

One of the dogs, a terrier owned by Theodore Ivanoski of 533 Ritbet, died before it could be taken to hospital. The other, a spaniel belonging to John Chabaslewicz of the same address is being treated by a veterinarian.

Pickups Out for 38

Discounters Suffer In Tax-Slip Scheme

VANCOUVER (CP) — A scheme whereby fraudulent income tax T-4 slips are used to obtain tax rebates in advance from discounters is being investigated by police and income tax inspectors.

City police fraud squad has pickups out for 38 persons it wishes to question about income tax rebates made in their names.

Detectives say they do not necessarily suspect these persons of fraud, as other persons may have used their social security numbers without their knowledge.

According to police some persons are obtaining blank T-4 slips and filling in fictitious company names and incomes.

They then turn these phoney T-4 slips over to legitimate discounting houses for immediate payment of the tax rebate, less the discounters commission. They sign over their interest in the tax rebate much as a store owner signs over money tied up in a bad debt to a collection agency.

The discounter then files the return and, some months later, receives the full amount.

However, this year the department has discovered at least 38 fraudulent returns in the Vancouver area.

Police say many of these were returned to the discounters without payment but some have inadvertently been honored and income tax rebates paid by Ottawa.

Turkish Rioters Avenge Deaths

ISTANBUL (Reuters) — Rioters burned down a hotel and destroyed 13 shops Monday in the central Turkish town of Sivas, in a feud that started at a soccer match.

Police made 11 arrests as they and troops tried to restore order among thousands of Sivas residents seeking revenge on the people of Kayseri, 110 miles away.

A man from Sivas also was arrested at Kayseri.

THOUSANDS MARCHED

Police in Sivas tried to head off trouble Monday by banning people travelling to Kayseri.

But rioters turned their attention to Siva property owned by Kayseri residents, setting fire to the Belediye Hotel and wrecking 13 stores.

Thousands marched through the streets of Sivas demanding the government secure the return of the bodies of residents killed in Sunday's clash in Kayseri.

Police forces in Sivas were swamped by rioters. Authorities called in three battalions of troops from outside the city, and later appealed to the neighboring province of Yozgat for reinforcements. The central government ordered a 160-man police squad sent from Istanbul.

U.S. Anti-Missile System

Billions for 'Thin Line'

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Defence Secretary McNamara announced Monday that the United States will start building soon a $5,000,000,000 Nike-X anti-missile defence against possible nuclear attack by Red China in the 1970s.

"It would be insane and suicidal for her to do so, but one can conceive conditions under which China might miscalculate," McNamara said.

"We wish to reduce such possibilities to a minimum."

MORE THAN UMBRELLA

The defence secretary said that in addition to throwing an umbrella over the population areas of the United States, the planned anti-missile system would provide greater protection against Soviet missile attack for part of the force of 1,000 U.S. Minutemen intercontinental ballistic missiles poised in underground launch pads and aimed at targets in both China and the Soviet Union.

Further, McNamara said, such a "thin" anti-missile system would guard against possible accidental launch of an intercontinental missile by any of the nuclear powers which may develop them, and would counter Chinese nuclear "blackmail" against other nations in Asia.

BETTER SYSTEM

At the same time, McNamara served notice he will continue to resist pressure against building a much more expensive—estimates run up to $40,000,000,000—anti-ballistic missile defence (ABM) against a Soviet-style threat involving hundreds of Soviet missiles equipped with decoys.

The way to deal with the Soviet threat, he said, is to mount a big enough and modern enough missile force to penetrate any Soviet anti-missile defence. McNamara said the United States has such a force and is improving it.

As for the Chinese, McNamara said that despite their internal strife, there is evidence the Chinese are devoting "very substantial resources to the development of both nuclear warheads and missile delivery systems."

He recalled that he had told Congress last January that the Chinese will have: Medium-range ballistic missiles—about 700 to 900 miles in range—within a year; a beginning intercontinental ballistic missile capability in the early 1970s, and what he called a modest force of intercontinental ballistic missiles in the mid-1970s.

Bennett Cheers Report

Premier Bennett chorused "hear, hear" to the Economic Council of Canada report which warned Monday that government and business must pull up their socks if good times are to continue in Canada through the 1970s.

"That's just exactly what the premier of B.C. has been saying in his budgets for a number of years," Mr. Bennett said. "I told them some of those foolish policies would catch up with them, and they have."

The premier applauded the section of the report which noted the continued absence of discipline in government spending at all levels.

REPEATS CHARGES

Mr. Bennett repeated his earlier charges that federal deficit financing and heavy borrowing were slowing down economic growth of the nation.

These policies force the federal government to enter the money market in competition with private enterprise, sending interest rates up and causing a shortage of funds for housing and other vital needs in a fast-growing country, he said.

DYNAMIC POLICIES

"The great press of British Columbia continues to back those Siamese twins, the Liberals and Conservatives, who pursue these foolish policies. But B.C. looked ahead, saw where this course would lead, and instituted our own dynamic policies."

In the years ahead, Mr. Bennett said, this province will show up in such a favorable light that "even our most rabid critics" will be forced to concede.

Psychiatric Nurses' Goal Criticized by Colleagues

Other provincial government employees object to special treatment on salaries sought by psychiatric nurses in B.C. mental institutions, a fact-finding panel was told Monday.

E. P. O'Connor, general secretary of the 10,000-member B.C. Government Employees Association, said he was sympathetic to the nurses' cause, but felt all government employees must be treated equally or chaos would result.

Since the government was not bound by the Labor Relations Act and collective bargaining rights were denied civil servants, Mr. O'Connor said, the only equitable basis for salary discussions is comparability with industry.

Later, Mr. O'Connor told reporters that general salary increases to government employees last April 1 placed registered nurses in mental hospitals on a par with those in other Lower Mainland hospitals.

Psychiatric aides, however, who come under BCGEA rather than the Psychiatric Nurses Association, are still receiving some $30 a month less than orderlies in other hospitals, Mr. O'Connor said.

Meanwhile, in the hearing which continues today, D. L. Wenham, executive secretary of the 850-member B.C. Psychiatric Nurses Association, said the stand taken by Mr. O'Connor probably explained why the BCGEA represented only 30 per cent of civil servants.

LBJ Praises CIA At SRO Birthday

WASHINGTON (LAT) — The super-secret Central Intelligence Agency held a private 20th birthday party Monday, but the word seeped through from its massive secluded headquarters across the Potomac at Langley, Va.

President Johnson sent a letter praising the CIA as "the best in the world" in the highly competitive field of international intelligence.

Vice-President Humphrey appeared in person at the ceremonies in the 498-seat CIA auditorium at which CIA director Richard Helms gave awards to employees who have served the agency for more than 10 years.

Eight hundred three persons who have been with the agency since its beginnings in 1947 were honored at the 498-seat ceremony. No one would say how many employees are on CIA'S payroll now.

Canada's first Prime Minister created an estate with the stroke of a penand the help of Standard Life

An entry from our 1846 ledger... the 100th year of our service to Canadians.

Let the Standard Life help you do the same today!

Here is an example:
A monthly premium of only $25.41 will secure a whole life policy for $20,000 for a young man now 25 years old under the Standard's Canadian Series. This creates an immediate estate of $20,000—plus valuable dividend additions every year!

Under this special plan, dividends (declared annually) are credited in the form of fully paid-up additions to the face value of the policy, so that the estate created increases every year. Assuming our present rate of dividend to be continued, the face value of the policy would amount to $40,040 when the policyholder reaches the age of 65!

The plan is flexible. If, for example, the assured wanted to drop the policy at age 65, $25,407 would be available in cash—more than double the amount paid in. This amount of $25,407 is made up of $11,700 in guaranteed cash value and the balance in the cash value of accumulated dividends. Alternatively, the assured could take a retirement income payable for the rest of his life.

This example is based on our present dividend rate. The rate cannot be guaranteed as it depends on the earnings of the Company. It is worth remembering, however, that the Standard's dividend record is outstanding and that accumulated dividends on all policies in force today are at least equal and, in virtually all cases greater, than what would have resulted through continuance of the rates in force when the policies were taken out.

If Two Can Paddle It 'Vessel' May Race

Anything that floats and can be paddled by a crew of not more than two persons will be eligible to compete for a cash prize in Saturday's canoe and kayak race from Inner Harbor to Portage Inlet and back.

The new open class was announced Monday by the Greater Victoria Centennial Society.

Twenty entries have already been received for the canoe race and four for the kayak race. Persons who want to compete in the new open class can use anything from a barn door to a surfboard.

'Negligence' in Welder's Death

Inquest Jury Blames Shipbuilding Firm

Management of Yarrows Ltd. was found negligent by a coroner's jury Monday in the death by fire of a 24-year-old welder Sept. 7.

The marathon inquest took three nights to complete and brought in an overflow crowd to the small magistrate's courtroom in the Victoria law courts. It was investigating the death of Steve Williams, who died when fire swept through a 350-foot newsprint barge.

SAFETY RIDER

The jury ruled the cause of death was accidental due to negligence on the part of the management, "the said Yarrows Ltd."

Also brought in was a rider that in future all safety regulations should be strictly enforced.

The jury was out an hour considering its verdict in the inquest which involved close to one dozen witnesses.

The questions were asked by lawyers, Mrs. Marney Stevenson, Rodney Taylor and Louis Lindholm, and Workmen's Compensation Board inspector Richard Hill, with coroner Edmond Jorre de St. Jorre presiding.

Safety officer Hugh McKenzie testified he had complained there would be a fire hazard aboard the barge to yard manager William Maddock and that the amount of fire extinguishers had been increased.

TRICKY WELDING

They had run into tricky welding on expansion joints on the barge, because they had a tendency to catch fire, but when a fire watcher was in attendance with an extinguisher playing on the weld, it could be controlled, the inquest was told.

Peter Russell Herold, a marine wireman, told the jury he had asked a welder to weld a "gland" and the welder proceeded to do so.

He said he normally checked inside the hull before endorsing something welded. "But I didn't do so in this case. I wish I had, but I didn't."

He said he had checked the area a half hour before. He estimated that the sprayer who was applying the insulation material was at least 60 feet away from the point where he wanted the welding done.

NORMAL PROCEDURE

He said the normal procedure was to check on the other side before a weld went on but it was not always carried out.

"There was a welder standing by the door. It seemed perfectly clear to me what to do," he said.

Welding foreman John Douglas Forgie said his welders had instructions to work at least 50 feet away from any place where the insulation was being applied. He said he instructed his welders in some instances not to move if anyone came and asked them to do a job. They were told to check with me," he said.

Mrs. Stevenson pointed out that there were two sections in the Workmen's Compensation Act forbidding hot work when there were volatile substances in use, but new construction superintendent Robert Main said the barge was too big to be considered a tank as referred to in the act.

Truck Loggers

Williston Pressed For Slash Probe

Resources Minister Ray Williston said Monday he would be willing to consider asking the legislature to hold a full inquiry into protection of B.C. forests at the next session.

The Truck Loggers Association headquartered in Vancouver asked the lands and forests and water resources minister for such an inquiry. (See also Page 26.)

Runaway slash fires over the weekend forced the B.C. Forest Service to revoke slash-burning permits Monday for southern Vancouver Island.

BROUGHT TO LIGHT

The association said the past dry, hot summer had brought to light some misunderstandings about the responsibilities of industry, government and the general public for the maintenance of the forests.

"The inquiry should cover all facets of the problem, including forest closures, limitations on use of forests by other industries, recreation during hazardous periods, provision of fire protection measures by the highways department, railways, fire-fighting wages and slash disposal," the association said.

Mr. Williston said he felt the association should elaborate on what it considered the need for such an inquiry. But he added: "I would be willing to put this matter before the standing committee if something useful is to be gained. In fact, I welcome it."

More Time Likely For Appeal

An appeal by the United Fishermen and Allied Workers Union which opened in Victoria Monday probably will continue three more days.

One of the lawyers appearing before five judges of the British Columbia Court of Appeal said the hearing probably will end Thursday.

The UFAWU is appealing a $25,000 fine imposed for contempt of court. Homer Stevens, secretary-treasurer of the union, president Steve Stavanes and business agent Jack Nicol are each appealing one-year jail terms.

Mrs. Lowe gives away dolls

* * * * * *

...And in Spare Time She Makes Big Dolls

By NANCY BROWN

She's a plasterer singer, artist and sculptor, the mother of nine children, and in her spare time she makes life-size floppy dolls.

Mrs. Elizabeth Lowe, 35 South Turner, is a busy woman whose happiness shows in her youthful face.

"My latest hobby is making these goofy dolls," she said Monday. "It takes about an hour to make one when the children are out—three hours if they're home."

'So Lucky'

"There are so many things to do, and life's so short, I must pack every minute full," she said.

"I'm so lucky. I love my children and I'm married to a good man."

Of the nine children, only one—Dan, 22, twin brother to Syvia—has left home.

The others range in age from 16-year-old Georgia to Gordon, who's nearly four.

Richly Furnished

Their home is neat, and richly furnished with a loving atmosphere.

On the walls are Mrs. Lowe's paintings, both oil and water color. They range from impressionistic swirls, and a picture of Eve, to portraits and still life drawings.

Daughter Sylvia treasurers her mother's soap carvings and clay sculptures.

Mrs. Lowe's husband, Walter, is an outside worker for the city, and at home a woodworker.

Built Boat

"He built his own boat, you know, and it rides like a swan," boasts Mrs. Lowe.

Two evenings a week, Mrs. Lowe goes out for her lessons.

"I am taking singing and art lessons, and I'm waiting to hear if I'm accepted for the Choral Society."

How does one woman cope with a large family?

"If they frustrate me, I go outside and look at the world and realize how small I am, and then I see all the beauty and wish I could capture it all."

Biggest Outlay

Discipline is no problem.

"I have such good children," Mrs. Lowe says with serenity.

Food is the biggest expense. "No matter how much I spend, they'll eat it all.

"If we're having cake, then I make four and they eat the lot. I just don't buy what I don't expect the family to eat, because there's never leftovers for another meal from these children."

She became a plasterer when plaster fell off the bedroom walls.

White All Over

"I mixed 35 pounds of the stuff, and it took three days.

"My family didn't know me. I was white all over. At first the stuff would 'fall off the wall all over me before I could get it smoothed in."

The children like to draw, sing or play instruments.

"Perhaps," muses Mrs. Lowe, "they'll do some of the things that I can't pack into my life."

Problems seem non-existent because they aren't allowed to become over-sized.

"One day," said Mr. Lowe, "I saw the children out at the swing with an axe.

"I asked why they didn't go whole hog and chop the thing down, and the next thing I knew they were really attacking the thing. They don't understand sarcasm."

Part-Time Job

In case her life isn't full enough, Mrs. Lowe has considered taking a part-time job. "It would help pay the taxes, and I have some spare time now I only have Gordon home.

"I would like to have day-care children, and teach them songs, and some of the things I know about painting, and read stories, but my application was turned down. I don't have double sinks, and it seems you just can't beat double sinks for looking after children."

Mrs. Lowe is young in looks, and in her manner proof that happiness and contentment can never be measured by money or ease of living.

School Board:

All Will Pay For Parking

Greater Victoria school board took a first step Monday toward charging teachers and students for parking.

But the board made no comment on when it intends to start the plan.

The board voted unanimously to charge staff, students and administrative personnel "a nominal amount" to cover cost of acquiring and maintaining parking lots around Greater Victoria schools.

The policy will be implemented "as circumstances permit," the board added.

No money will be spent immediately on purchase of parking land, said Dr. Carron Jameson, chairman of the buildings and grounds committee.

Trustee Ted Wood warned that a student-operated plan in Calgary flopped. He suggested the board study the experience of other cities in handling parking.

In other business, the board voted to close the school of art at the Institute of Adult Studies. Only 14 pupils enrolled this month, and the school faced a deficit of $5,000 this winter, said John Dalgleish, director of adult education.

The board learned that 430 full-time academic students and 537 part-time evening students have registered at the institute.

A new television series telling the public what's happening in the schools will be made in Victoria this winter, the board was told.

Three classes in Greater Victoria have 40 or more students this fall, the board learned from assistant superintendent A. J. Longmore. The B.C. Teachers' Federation has warned that teachers will refuse to instruct classes of more than 39.

Mrs. Kory Regan, president of the Greater Victoria Teachers' Association, said after the meeting she expects no problems if it is shown that the over-39 classes are a satisfactory teaching situation.

Victor Thomson, director of secondary education, reported that 169 Greater Victoria students earned government matriculation exams last spring.

Castle Alternative Too Expensive

Greater Victoria school trustees agreed Monday that the board would love to relinquish Craigdarroch Castle, but can't afford to.

The board moved its headquarters out of the 78-year-old castle last winter, but continues to use it for offices and as a multi-purpose educational centre housing teaching aids.

Trustee Dr. Carron Jameson said at the board's Monday meeting he was convinced the castle would be better used as a museum or showpiece.

"It's time we got out of there," he said.

Others agreed with him, but the board balked at the alternative of holding a plebiscite to raise funds for another building.

Dr. Donald Shorting suggested an old school might be used when one becomes vacant.

Michael Allan Code, 17, a 1967 graduate of University School, has won a $2,000 renewable scholarship from the B.C. government for study at Atlantic College in Wales. Mr. Code, son of Mrs. Deirdre Code, 2260 Millstream Road, will spend two years at the international school at St. Donat's Castle.

THE DAILY BRITISH COLONIST

September 19, 1867

The Good Templars of this city, accompanied by numerous lady friends proceeded in boats to Cattle Point yesterday, where a pic nic was indulged in. The day was the anniversary of the lodge. The weather was delightful and the joy of the participants unbounded. A band accompanied the party and upon nearing the wharf on the return played the National Anthem.

The gas company announces a discount in the price of gas of five per cent (37½ cents per thousand feet) to consumers burning from one to two thousand feet of gas weekly, and of 10 per cent (75 cents per thousand feet) to consumers burning 2,000 feet or upward.

Mr. Basham sold at auction yesterday, at Stolly's Yard, Johnson Street, about 30 hogs which realized very satisfactory prices. The sale was numerously attended by farmers and others desirous of improving the breed of this class of stock.

No Vacancies

Children, like nature, abhor a vacuum. Newly cleaned-up yard of photographer William E. John challenged youngsters until they scrounged empty refrigerator cartons from neighborhood construction project. Result: instant slum.—(Maxine John)

The engagement is announced of Linda Craig, elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Ledley McMaster, 572 Linkleas Avenue, to Mr. Edgar Emile Sparling, son of Mr. and Mrs. George H. Diocesan Council CWL Presents Scholarship to Member's Son

Highlight of the September quarterly meeting of the Victoria Diocesan Council of the Catholic Women's League was the presentation of the $500 scholarship scroll to Mr. Nicholas (Nick) Hall - Patch whose average was 88.75 per cent in the B.C. provincial scholarship examinations. The scholarship is awarded annually to the son or daughter of a CWL member attaining the highest average in the government examinations. Nick's mother, Mrs. Michael Hall-Patch is a member of St. Patrick's Council, Oak Bay. Nick is a graduate of Oak Bay Senior Secondary School after attending Grades 1-8 at St. Patrick's School.

The meeting extended congratulations to another member of St. Patrick's Council, Mrs. V. G. Stuart who is one of three Canadians chosen to attend the ninth gathering of Catholic Guiders and Commissioners to be held in Belgium in October. Mrs. Stuart is lieutenant of the St. Patrick's 10th Victoria Guide Company, which she organized in 1961. In recognition of this honor the meeting proffered a cash donation to help with expenses of the trip. St. Patrick's and St. Andrew's councils have led the way for others to follow.

Diocesan president, Mrs. C. J. Harman, Port Alberni, chaired the meeting which was held in St. Andrew's Cathedral Hall.

Nicholas Hall - Patch was awarded $500 scholarship scroll at quarterly meeting of Diocesan Council of Catholic Women's League.

Following Island councils were represented: St. Andrew's Cathedral; Sacred Heart, Lakehill; Queen of Peace, Esquimalt; St. Patrick's, Oak Bay; Star of the Sea, Belmont Park; Our Lady of the Assumption, Brentwood; Our Lady of the Rosary, Langford; Queen of the World, Cobble Hill; St. Edward's, Duncan; St. Mary's, Ladysmith; St. Francis, Alberni; Notre Dame, Alberni; Holy Family, Port Alberni; St. Elizabeth's, Sidney.

Mrs. G. H. Breen, Happy Valley, announced the proposed program for a Day of Recollection to be held simultaneously in three Island centres: Victoria, Nanaimo and Courtenay, on Wednesday, Oct. 25 from 10 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. She also called attention to the Children's Day of Peace, the first Saturday in October.

Mrs. J. K. Meavoy, president of St. Patrick's, Oak Bay, asked for further donations towards the purchase of a washing machine for St. Clare's Monastery.

At the request of Mrs. Harmon, Rev. W. Mudge, director of Our Lady of the Assumption, spoke on the Indian Apostolate. He said a committee, consisting of clergy, Indian and non-Indian laity, is being organized to deal with this apostolate.

"We must listen to what the Indians have to tell us and what they expect of us," Father Mudge said. "We must also listen to plans they have as they gradually become integrated. We are certainly past the period of handing out a box of clothes."

The speaker further pointed out "we must be trusted and accepted by the Indians. The road goes both ways, to and from the reserve."

Following Father Mudge's talk, Mrs. Rogers referred to the delegation from the Cowichan Band that called on the provincial government and presented their views of the "inequality of recompense between Indian and white foster homes."

A panel discussion organized by members of Holy Family Council, Port Alberni, was another highlight of the meeting. Diocesan social action convener, Mrs. L. Shelling of Chemainus chaired the panel and topic was the Role of the CWL in the Lay Apostolate.

Rev. H. D. McIntee, OMI, Duncan, director of Queen of the World Council, addressed the meeting. He congratulated the women of Holy Family Council on the panel.

He suggested the Day of Recollection be backed to the fullest and promised it would prove "most enjoyable socially and spiritually." He commented briefly on the idea of a Retreat House at St. Mary's Priory and hoped plans would materialize.

Other directors present were Rev. D. Johnson, Port Alberni; Rev. W. J. O'Brien, Langford, and Rev. J. Barette.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: I would like to form a club called the "Down With Hippies Society" or something like that. I am tired of reading about weirdos, pot smokers, LSDers, draft-card burners and the rest of those creeps. Why do we waste valuable magazine, and newspaper space and prime TV time on blobs who contribute nothing and amount to nothing?

These oddballs have the idea that they are something special because they are attracting so much attention. They go around ruining the scenery whenever they appear (just their presence is a blight). They enjoy the stares, hoping someone will start something so they can get into a fight and yell, "I am being persecuted because I am a nonconformist."

I was told recently that I am a square because I have a haircut, a clean neck and wear shoes with laces. I also shower every day and wear trousers that are so loose I can actually sit down in them.

I know I am not alone in my views. There must be others who resent the fact that normal people don't get any time or space or attention. How about it? — DOWN WITH HIPPIES

Dear Down: Here's some space, with more than 50 million readers. I, too, deplore the attention given to people who don't deserve it. But, unfortunately, bizarre and oddball behavior is often more fascinating than decent living. So long as this is one of the unalterable facts of life, the offbeat, the kook and the way-outer is going to grab the center of the stage.

Dear Ann Landers: You probably never heard of a problem like this in your whole life. I am a 12-year-old girl who needs your help. Don't you think a person who is on the verge of being a teen-ager should be able to open the fridge and help herself to a glass of milk or an apple without consulting her mother?

If I were a hog and ate half a pie or a pint of ice cream between meals I would say my mother had a right to be strict about snacking. But I am a sensible girl and not fat or anything.

Yesterday when Mom heard me pouring a glass of milk for myself she said, "Put it back. You must ask me if you want to eat between meals."

Every one of my friends can go into their fridges and eat whatever they want to, and you should see the glop they pack in. What is your opinion? — HUNGRY

Dear Hung: I am assuming your story is the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth — in which case the 13-year-old should be free to help herself to a glass of milk or a piece of fruit without asking special permission.

Dear Ann Landers: I am 42-year-old woman, in good health, and have straight morals. I am unmarried and I always did factory work. Now I have a chance to move into a lovely home and take over as a housekeeper.

I am undecided because I don't know what is expected of a housekeeper. What would I have to do?—IDELLE

Dear Idelle: If you have to ask what a housekeeper is supposed to do, forget about taking the job.

Dr. and Mrs. E. W. B. Hoen have come from Libya for a holiday in Victoria. With their children, Liza, 7, Margot 4 and Zarah, 18 months, they have been visiting Mrs. Hoen's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Hardie, Gonzales Crescent, and have been spending some time at the Hardie summer home on Salt Spring Island. Complexion Beauty

The secret of beautifying the complexion is said to lie in the saturation of the skin with a new type of tropical moist oil. The skin takes on an immediate healthy bloom as the tiny lines and blemishes are gently smoothed away. This saturation treatment with the moist oil of Olay is recommended by skin care consultants, who advise its daily use as a powder base to give the complexion day-long beauty. Your druggist will help you to obtain a supply for your personal needs.

Toronto Home Planned For Victoria Newlyweds

Following their wedding in St. Mark's Anglican Church, Mr. and Mrs. David Coburn flew to Toronto where they will be making their new home.

The bride, the former Michelle Vivian Bradshaw, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Bradshaw, 1101 Hampshire Road. The groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Coburn, 1900 Townley Street.

White gladiolus and chrysanthemums, edged with ivy, decorated the church for the service conducted by Rev. C. D. Bledsoe.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a full-length gown of white silk brocade, fashioned on A-lines with pelled sleeves, scoop neckline and slightly en train. She carried a handkerchief of Maltese lace which had belonged to her grandmother. Stephanotis and ivy formed her bouquet.

Maid of honor, Miss Janice Bradshaw, sister of the bride, wore a dress of light blue peau d'elegance fashioned in the same style as the bride. She carried a pom-pom bouquet of white Shasta chrysanthemums with streamers of light blue.

The flower girl, Mary Coultas, niece of the groom, wore a floor-length dress of pink peau d'elegance in a similar style and carried a tiny pom-pom bouquet of white Shasta chrysanthemums with streamers of pink.

Best man was Pat Konkin and ushering the guests were Richard Ogmundson and George Coultas, brother-in-law of the groom.

At the reception following in Holywood House, a tiered wedding cake, topped with a silver vase of pink rosebuds, centred the head table. The white and silver color theme was continued in the arrangements of gladiolus, Shasta chrysanthemums and ivy which decorated the room. Herbert Mallin proposed the toast to the bride.

For travelling on honeymoon, the bride wore a navy blue dress and accessories of navy and white, complemented with a pink orchid corsage.

Many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Caleb Venables attended a reception in honor of the couple at the Salvation Army Hall, Esquimalt, Monday evening to mark the diamond wedding anniversary of the well-known couple. They were married in Fernie in 1907, and came to Victoria in 1934. Both are active members of the Salvation Army. Mr. Venables, who is 91, played in the Army band until a few years ago, and Mrs. Venables, 79, has been a great worker for the Home League and the League of Mercy. Their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. David Venables, live in Saanichton, and they have two married granddaughters, Mrs. Rick (Lynette) Guthrie and Mrs. Phillip (Annette) Giesbrecht.—(Jim Ryan)

Horseshoes from England Bride's Lucky Talismans

Horseshoes for good luck were sent to bride Janet Roseann Gabriel, now Mrs. Douglas Arthur Bolster, by the groom's great grandmother, Mrs. H. Taylor of Essex, England, and his great aunt, Mrs. A. Aves of Huntingdon, England.

Rev. William Mudge officiated at the afternoon ceremony in St. Joseph's Church, at which the bride was given in marriage by her cousin, Mr. Thomas Sampson.

The bride's dress, which was made by the groom's mother, Mrs. H. G. Bolster, was of ice blue brocade, fashioned with lowered round neckline, long sleeves and a bell skirt with full train flowing from the waist. A tiara held her four-tiered blue veil, and she carrid a bouquet of red roses.

Mrs. T. Underwood was matron of honor for her cousin, and bridesmaids were another cousin, Carmilita Sampson and the groom's sister, Jill Bolster. They wore street-length dresses of white lace, with matching floral headpieces, and corsage bouquets of blue chrysanthemums.

Mr. David Bolster was best man for his brother, and the bride's brother, Mr. Michael Gabriel, ushered with Mr. Laurence Joyce. Mr. Thomas Sampson proposed the toast to the bride at a reception at the Royal Oak Women's Institute hall.

TV TALK

By BRUCE LOWTHER

In Tulsa, the TV station had a breakdown so an engineer taped the show coming in from the network and it was shown in full when power came back. In Cincinnati, a bar closed for the program's hour. In Los Angeles, a rock-roll radio station carried bulletins on the program's progress.

And in Baltimore, the station cut an hour from the Orioles' ball game to carry the program! All this was for the final, explanatory hour of the Fugitive. In New York, the show had a fantastic 73.2 per cent of the total audience in a 10-station market.

CHAN, Vancouver's Channel 8, was chosen last week as the first TV winner of the Charlie Edwards award for excellence in general news coverage, awarded by the Canadian Radio and TV News Directors Association. A Quebec station won the radio award. Edwards is the manager of Broadcast News, the radio arm of The Canadian Press.

Primary elections are due today in Washington state. Channel 4 says it will flash results on the screen all evening without interrupting programs, then give a full report on the 11 p.m. news. Other stations presumably will do something similar.

"This program was brought to you live except for me. I am on film."

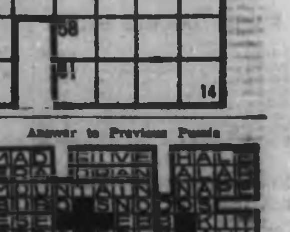
Answer to Previous Puzzle



Winning Contract

By HOWARD SCHENKEN and RICHARD L. FREY

"How could I tell you didn't have the heart king?" asked West after his partner had berated him. Assuming East to be a competent player, there was a way for West to deduce that that card was surely in declarer's hand.

East won the spade opening with the king and returned the jack. When this held the trick, East shifted to the club ten, covered by the king and ace. West was mesmerized by dummy's diamonds, and decided that the defence must cash five tricks quickly. He therefore laid down the heart ace, and South was home.

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 ◇	1 ♠	2 N.T.	Pass
3 N.T.	All Pass

Opening lead: Spade six

Instead of cashing the heart ace — a play that gambles on East to have the king—West should have exited with a diamond, pinning the lead in dummy. Declarer can rattle off seven diamonds, but will eventually have to lead a heart from the table, losing two tricks in that suit.

After the first three tricks, therefore, West is faced with the straight question—who has the heart king? If East is a good player, he cannot have that card—for the following reason: Having won the first two tricks, East will surely place West with the heart ace and the club ace because if declarer had either of those cards he would grab the first or second round of spades and run for home. So, if East had the heart king, he would lay down that card, making sure of beating the contract.

Slash fire under control, burns beside Island Highway near Kelsey Bay

Slash!

It was a quiet weekend, too hot to log the woods.

So logging companies decided the time was ripe for a little slash burning.

Then the forests exploded.

Several slash fires swept across fire lines, and broke into lush timber.

At Lake Cowichan, warm weather, drying winds and no rain were blamed for the slash fires racing out of control.

Companies rushed to recruit fire fighters, and water bombers have been dropping loads of water on the fires for three days.

A slash fire in the Robertson River Valley whipped out of control, and 95 men with five bulldozers were still trying to recapture control Monday.

Roach Logging of Mesachie Lake logs the area for Pacific Logging.

The company lost a yarder and a loader as the fire raged over acres of woods.

A forest ranger at Lake Cowichan said even controlled, the fires will burn until it rains.

B.C. Forest Products slash fire at Koksilah River went out of control Sunday.

Butler Brothers northwest of Sooke has a bad slash fire, which has stopped logging.

The wind changed, and caused the trouble. If the wind changes again, the fires could get worse.

"The weatherman double-crossed us," said officials of Forest Industries Flying Tankers at Port Alberni.

The big water bombers were busy dropping their loads on slash fires.

Crews from both Cameron and Franklin River divisions of MacMillan Bloedel were kept on patrol throughout the night, guarding slash fires that have spread a heavy smoke screen over the Valley for the past two days.

A plant ecologist at University of British Columbia Monday called for legislation to curb slash fires by the logging industry.

Dr. J. V. Krajina of the UBC botany department said the fires damage the province's forest resources.

He said slash should be plied up in a damp section of the forest rather than burned as a blanket over many acres.

Back in Federation

Duncan IWA Pays Dues

DUNCAN — The membership of the Duncan local of the International Woodworkers' of America passed a motion Saturday to re-affiliate with the B.C. Federation of Labor.

Local President Weldon Jubenville said Monday "We will pay our April and May per capita tax, which will enable us to send a delegation to the forthcoming Federation convention.

"We passed a motion Saturday to send a full delegation to the convention which will be held in Vancouver from Oct. 30 to Nov. 3."

Jubenville

The vote was put to the membership after the Federation lifted the suspension which was placed on four locals, for allegedly insulting the CLC vice-president, Joe Morris.

The four locals involved were Duncan, Victoria, Vancouver and the Inspectors'.

The suspension was made June 6 and lifted Sept. 8.

The CLC sub-committee noted in its brief, "The sub-committee recommends the lifting of the suspension in order to enable the representatives of all the workers in B.C. in the forthcoming convention to give full consideration to the propriety and acceptability of the conduct of the parties in this dispute, as revealed through the action of the federation, and the investigation of the sub-committee."

President Jubenville said he would have no other comment to make on the situation until the time of the convention.

The Victoria IWA local also voted to accept reinstatement in the federation.

Victoria IWA president Murray Drew said the decision was made Sunday "for the sake of unity" in the union movement.

Hey, Where Are Your Sails

This catamaran without sails or mast has been designed to give maximum stability for hydrographic work for the U.S. Navy. Tied up at Nanaimo's old customs wharf, strange craft is owned by Honewell Electronics Corp. of New Jersey. It is presently doing classified work at the joint Canadian-U.S. torpedo range at Nanoose. Most of the space on board is taken up by instruments.

Railway Warning Refused

COURTENAY—The CPR has refused to place warning lights on a railway crossing on Cumberland Road, the busy route between Courtenay and Cumberland.

Courtenay council asked for the lights on Cumberland Road and a few miles away on Fraser Road, where a mother and her children were killed by a train several months ago.

G. P. Miller, general solicitor for the CPR, informed council an investigation showed the lights are "not warranted."

"It sounds like another Lytton Ferry," said Ald. Geoff Browning, at Monday night's meeting. The Lytton Ferry is controversial because of attacks on its safety.

● Another resident on Willemar Avenue has asked the city to have the street included within Courtenay boundaries.

If one more property owner agrees, making it unanimous, the city will ask to have the area included.

Willemar Avenue is part of a district that earlier voted not to join Courtenay.

● The city has donated 150 feet of sewer pipe to Beaufort Association for Retarded Children.

The pipe will be used for the association's centennial project at Sandwick, construction of a residence and adult sheltered workshop.

Clerk Bill Morre told council members are urged to attend a regional college meeting Wednesday, where the principal of Vancouver College will speak.

Time for Rooting

By M. V. CHESNUT

If you feel you could use more black currant, red currant or gooseberry bushes, this is a good time to propagate them by taking and rooting cuttings. I should point out, however, that a bush grown from a cutting can never be any better than the parent bush, and if your present plants are elderly pensioners bearing indifferent crops of undersize berries, it is just plain foolishness to build up a bigger stock of the same poor performers.

Black currant cuttings are made from new shoots which have grown out this summer and are sturdy and firm. A piece of shoot about 8 to 10 inches long is best, removing the unripened soft tip with a cut made just above a bud or leaf. The base cut is made immediately below a leaf, using a very sharp knife or an old razor blade to avoid crushing or bruising the wood.

Moisten the base of the cutting and dip in one of the excellent hormone rooting powders such as Rootone or Seradix, and insert in a partially shaded bed of gritty or sandy loam soil. These slips can go in quite deeply, with only the top two buds showing above the soil surface.

Don't plant your slips too close together, as they should make pretty strong growth the first year. About eight inches apart each way will be about right.

If you are buying and planting black currant bushes this fall, they will have to be pruned back hard immediately after planting, much as you would do with a hybrid tea rose. These prunings from young, newly planted currant bushes make perfectly good cuttings and can be prepared and rooted in exactly the same way as slips from old established bushes.

Red currants, white currants and gooseberries are done a bit differently. The cuttings are made a little longer, say, 10 to 12 inches, again from fairly young wood. The preparation is the same, making your cuts immediately below a bud at the base and above a bud at the top to remove the unripened tip. These are not inserted as deeply as black currant slips — push them in to about half their length, leaving about four buds above the soil surface to form branches.

The big difference between black currants and the other members of their family is in their habit of growth. Black currants bear their heaviest crops on young wood, so the plants are encouraged to stool out, forming a bush with a number of shoots coming up from the roots. Hence the deep planting.

Red and white currants and gooseberries bear their fruit on permanent spurs, rather like apples, and the best form is to train them to grow as tiny trees, with all branches originating well above ground level and with a clean-cut "trunk", if only a few inches high.

With this object in mind, it is often recommended to nick out all the below-ground buds from these cuttings. Personally, I prefer to leave them on, for you often get some useful roots from these buried buds, and it is easy enough to remove any branches which may start growing from too low on the stem.

Fig cuttings may be prepared the same as for red currants, but as these are a bit on the tender side, it is best to root them in pots of sandy soil in a coldframe.

Grape vine cuttings can be made of lengths of well-ripened wood three or four buds long, and as a very common error is to plant these upside down, it is best to mark the tip and base in some way. The buds are spaced pretty far apart on grape wood, so a four-bud slip may be a foot or more in length. These are quite hardy and should root readily if inserted to half their length in a shaded bed of sandy soil outdoors.

Rolling Stones Gather Moss

HOLLYWOOD (NANA) — Rolling Stones manager Allen Klein was saying he has been guaranteed $4,000,000 for Mick Jagger and company, for one comprehensive tour of the U.S. Will he take it? You bet he will. The recent publicity obviously didn't hurt at all. And if Jagger comes here, can Marian Faithful be far behind? I love her name.

Mel Ferrer's brother, director Jose Ferrer and his family, spent the weekend with Audrey Hepburn and son Sean in their Swiss home. And guess who dropped out of the skies from Paris to visit them? Why, Mel Ferrer of course. If all separations were as friendly as this one, there would be no sense in being married.

A chum who knows Frankie Sinatra and Mia Farrow very well, was saying their marriage was okay, but that their way of living was at odds. Frankie likes to stay up till all hours, chatting or drinking with chums. Mia is intent on being a great actress, with side trips to the discotheques where her husband sometimes joins her, but all that racket and jiggling around is not his cup of tea. However, he is willing to compromise because of their love.

I've just discovered from Michael Caine why he is thrifty and does not take his fabulous success for granted. "It was about seven years ago, and I'd just seen the reissue of Evergreen starring Jessie Matthews (who was a great child star). I was in the subway going home. The tired, plump woman opposite me loaded down with parcels was vaguely familiar. Then it hit me. She was Jessie Matthews whom I'd just seen on the screen with beautiful legs, tall, slender, dancing, singing and successful. It taught me a lesson about show business. Never take anything for granted."

* * *

Because Hello, Dolly! is a turn-of-the-century girl, nine blocks of New York streets, including 14th Street, of course, will be built on the back lot at 20th Century-Fox in Hollywood. This will take a large bite out of the $20,000,000 the producers have budgeted for the Barbra Streisand starrer.

ART BUCHWALD: Missile Tracker

Ho Chi Mexicali Trail

WASHINGTON — Last week a United States Pershing missile was test-fired from Utah. But it overshot its mark and landed in the town of El Cuervo, Mexico.

The Pentagon immediately announced that the firing was an accident and sent its apologies to the Mexican government.

In spite of the denial there are some people in Washington who are not certain that the firing was accidental, particularly since it took place on the same day that U.S. warplanes bombed four hitherto untouched targets in the port city of Haiphong. These circles insist that El Cuervo, Mexico, was one of the 57 targets that the military has been insisting had to be bombed if we were to hamper supplies going into North Vietnam.

They say this is how the bombing of El Cuervo came about.

Several weeks ago, Secretary of Defence McNamara testified secretly before Sen. John Stennis' preparedness committee, indicating that the administration saw no reason to bomb Mexico at this time. He said, "the bombing of El Cuervo would have little effect on supplies now getting into the hands of the enemy. Even if the bombing closed off all the Mexican routes, the Viet Cong would find alternative ways of getting their material down the Ho Chi Minh trail. Besides, the risk of confrontation with the Mexicans at this time far outweighs the military advantages of bombing the country. This is not only my decision but the president's also."

Chairman Stennis and his committee indicated that they were very dissatisfied with the secretary's testimony and called several generals and admirals to refute McNamara's no-win policy.

The generals complained that their hands were tied by civilians in the Pentagon. An admiral told the committee, "unless we are permitted to bomb the 57 targets which are now off-limits — of which El Cuervo, Mexico, is obviously the most important — we cannot win the war in Vietnam."

The preparedness committee was very impressed with the military's arguments and issued a strong report rebuking the secretary of defence for not letting the air force and navy bomb whatever targets they deemed necessary. "It is our opinion," the report said, "that as long as El Cuervo remains untouched, our military effort in Vietnam will be thwarted."

The difference of opinion between McNamara and his generals reached the press. To prevent it from becoming a public debate, the White House press secretary announced, "the president supports Secretary McNamara's testimony and the administration has no intention of bombing Mexico now. At the same time, the president reserves his options to bomb it in the future if the North Vietnamese do not stop their aggression."

Two days later the Pershing missile was launched from Utah at El Cuervo. This immediately was interpreted by the press as a victory for the Pentagon brass and a defeat for Secretary McNamara.

But the White House didn't see it that way. An administration spokesman said, "There is no rift between Secretary McNamara and the joint chiefs of staff. The bombing of El Cuervo has been under consideration for some time, and under our 'selective target' policies, the missile launching had the full approval of the president, the secretary of defence and the joint chiefs."

When asked by a reporter if the bombing of Mexico was an escalation of the war, the spokesman said, "Absolutely not. The president has no intention of widening the conflict and his only aim in shooting a missile at Mexico is to make Hanoi realize that the United States has no intention of getting out of Vietnam."

A reporter asked, "With the bombing of Mexico, there are now only 56 military targets that American warplanes still may not attack. Could you tell us what the next off-limits target might be?"

The spokesman replied, "Would you believe Expo '67?"

Looks at Gifts

At lunch the other day, a friend of mine was grumbling because a man for whom he had done a good turn, at considerable inconvenience to himself, hadn't even bothered to thank him.

His complaint reminded me about the remark of Judge Samuel Liebowitz, the former criminal lawyer, who saved 78 men from the electric chair. "Not one of these men," Liebowitz later said, "ever sent me a Christmas card."

When Aristotle was rebuked for giving alms to an old reprobate who didn't even thank him, he answered, "I did not give it to the man — I gave it to humanity."

This is the only sensible attitude to take toward acts of generosity. "Every time I fill a vacant office," sighed Louis XIV, "I make 10 malcontents and one ingrate."

It is depressingly true that the people for whom we do favors rarely are as grateful as we expect them to be. The solution is not to stop doing favors, but to stop doing them for the sake of the individual.

Our emotional structure is so sensitive that we are more likely to resent a favor we need than to appreciate it. This explains why underdeveloped countris seem to scorn American benevolence as much as they require American aid. It cripples their dignity to admit they need to be helped to their feet.

Gratitude is among the noblest of human virtues, because it is among the rarest. Most of us cannot afford to feel obligated toward another; and so, as time passes, we find reasons for depreciating the act of generosity, and thus put ourselves in a more favorable light.

The act of giving ought to be its own reward, and its own sufficient pleasure; when it is not, when we expect to be honored for it, we are invariably disappointed. Yet, our motive in giving is often as impure as another's motive in taking.

Aristotle could not be disillusioned because he did not expect the beggar to act any better than he could; he gave to make himself a better person, not to improve the beggar's character. This is why there remains some difference between Aristotle and us.

Cash Warning Given To All Governments

OTTAWA (CP) — John J. Deutsch, one of the country's most widely-respected economists, has retired from the Economic Council of Canada with a warning to all governments to plan ahead and not move from crisis to crisis with crash spending programs.

He also told the country it must improve its productivity to sustain its growth, face more open international competition, and prepare now for the problems of the 1970s — pollution and congestion in growing cities, the costly burden of higher education, and finding jobs for a rapidly - expanding, younger and less experienced labor force.

Deutsch

Mr. Deutsch, who becomes principal of Queen's University, Kingston, Ont., next year after spending a year teaching economics there, cited housing as the No. 1 problem of the present and immediate future. He said its growth to crisis proportions was easily foreseen.

Governments at all levels should avoid uneven deficits and foster a climate of confidence by showing that they intend to promote growth in line with the economy's expanding potential.

"It is a striking fact, that, in spite of the very large increases in defence expenditures which took place in the United States in 1965 and 1966 as a result of the increased involvement in Vietnam," the report said, "government spending rose more rapidly in Canada than in the United States in these two years.

"... the accelerated increase in government spending in 1966 and 1967 is outpacing the growth of government revenues at existing tax levels.

"This necessarily raises troublesome questions about the possibility of increases in tax levels—perhaps of major dimensions if the present very high rate of increase in government spending continues—and of sharper conflicts in competing claims for the use of resources. Such conflicts could lead to sharp rises in prices and costs."

Arthur J. R. Smith, new council chairman, said the 27-member government - appointed but independent advisory group still is working on a report sought by the government on ensuring strong competitive forces in the economy.

It also will look in future into regional impact of federal policies, income distribution and other sources of economic growth not yet studied by the council in detail.

The fourth review said governments, when embarking on new spending programs, should review existing ones to weed out those that have run their course and that might be in conflict with present needs.

Mr. Deutsch said he was sure there were some obsolete spending programs still draining away tax dollars. Government support to the dairy industry is expensive, but, in its present form of subsidy, "isn't going to lead to any cure."

The council was really concerned about the longer-range developments facing Canada into the 1970s. Hitherto the council, set up in 1963 and making its first review in 1966, has studied the problems of the balance of the 1960s.

The next decade would have to deal with programs of rapid family formation, urbanization, social capital needs, and expanded university facilities.

"We suggest that these all have wide implications that have to be dealt with in good time. If we don't deal with the problems before they become crises, they become very difficult to do anything about."

The council was concerned last year that the country's house - building activity was not filling the need.

"Now we are in a housing bind, as you know," he said. "The rate of family formation and urbanization was foreseen."

The problems of the future continue to flow from the young-adult population growth. Canada's labor force in the years ahead will expand 50 per cent faster than the U.S. labor force, and jobs have to be found in an expanding economy.

The new study of the economic future said Canada's output should increase by five per cent a year until 1970 and then more moderately, by 4½ per cent a year, until 1975. The population, which in June 1967, was 20,400,000, should be 25,100,000 in 1980.

In the wider context, the council said Canada must gear itself to greater international competition, resulting from lowering of tariffs and other restrictions between nations. Canadian industry will have to specialize more, and get the benefit of economies which come from longer production runs of specialized goods.

Announce New Healing Substance... Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch

Exclusive healing substance proven to shrink hemorrhoids...and repair damaged tissue.

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the injured, inflamed tissues.

One hemorrhoidal case history after another reported "very striking improvement." Pain was promptly and gently relieved . . . actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

Among these case histories were a variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. Relief even occurred in cases of long standing, and most important of all, results were so thorough that this improvement was maintained over a period of many months.

This was accomplished with a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue. Bio-Dyne is offered in ointment and suppository form called Preparation H.

In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids, Preparation H lubricates and makes elimination less painful. It helps prevent infection which is a principal cause of hemorrhoids.

Just ask your druggist for Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment (with a special applicator).

Satisfaction or your money refunded.

Britain Frees Red Scientist

LONDON (AP) — The British returned a Soviet scientist to Russian diplomats Monday after satisfying themselves he wants to go home. But Moscow levelled a formal charge he had been kidnapped to undermine relations between the two countries.

The Soviet foreign ministry said in a note to the British Embassy in Moscow that Britain would be held responsible for any recurrence of the violent incident at London airport that brought a weekend of recriminations and diplomatic protests.

The foreign office said the note had not yet reached London.

Officials said, however, that the last thing the British government wants is to undermine relations with Moscow. Improvement of these relations, they said, is a cardinal principle of Prime Minister Wilson's foreign policy.

British police and secret agents removed Vladimir Tkachenko, 25-year-old Soviet physicist who had been studying low temperature physics at Birmingham University, from a Soviet airliner late Saturday on the suspicion he was being kidnapped by Russian agents.

He was released Monday after the British government was satisfied he wanted to return home rather than seek asylum here.

"In accordance with medical advice, and with his own wishes now freely expressed, Dr. Vladimir Tkachenko is going to the Soviet Embassy," said the home office.

He and his wife will return to the Soviet Union today, the Russians said.

British officials, meanwhile, puzzled over the reasons for the Soviet action in apparently trying to smuggle the post-graduate student out of Britain.

There was some speculation

Saanich Weighs Award

McRAE PRICE 'WITHIN REACH'

By JOHN MATTERS

Saanich councillors, in Prince George for a convention today will weigh an arbitration board award that sets $1,200,000 as the price their taxpayers should pay for the McRae estate.

"It is higher than I hoped, but lower than I had feared," Reeve Hugh Curtis said of the award, which is about $450,000 more than Saanich's offer for the 132.6-acre property.

He said council could not meet formally in Prince George but "I have a copy of the adjudication coming special delivery, and we will be going over it today." They are at the annual Union of British Columbia Municipalities convention.

The three-member board, which heard evidence for five weeks at Victoria Law Courts, in effect disputes the claims of both Saanich and the McRae family, which has owned the site for about 50 years.

DISENCHANTMENT

Louis Eisdhelm, special counsel for Saanich, observed: "The award is 50 per cent higher than the offer made by Saanich, but it is (about one third) the value the owners put on it. Only they can say, but this may be a measure of the relative disenchantment of the parties to the award."

Robert Price, counsel for the McRaes, was out of town and could not be reached for comment.

"STILL ATTAINABLE"

Saanich wants to acquire the property, part of which is Cedar Hill golf course, for recreational purposes. A capital spending budget adopted by ratepayers in December, 1965, set aside about $800,000 for the deal.

However, Reeve Curtis explained in the telephone interview that the $1,200,000 award still leaves the site in "an attainable category."

"It's not like $2,000,000," he added.

NO EARLY DECISION

The reeve said council has "two or three alternatives" to consider and there won't be an early decision. Councillors will have to wait until they can have a talk with Saanich's lands commissioner, planner, engineer and comptroller.

"We will want to review the other components of the capital budget . . . and not necessarily with a view to abandoning them."

SAANICH PAYS COSTS

Saanich was also ordered to pay the costs of the action, whileff some estimates place as high as $70,000.

The adjucation summarized: Saanich assumed the land would be sold in a single block. The arbitrators said it could be sold in several parcels.

Saanich said it was unlikely the property would be sewered.

Crashed Flyers Bruised

Three Greater Victoria men escaped with only a few bruises Monday when their light plane crashed in a field about 30 miles south of Portland, Ore., the Associated Press reported.

They were A. J. Gillan, pilot, 2381 Hane Terrace, Saanich; his 19-year-old son, James, and a friend of the family, Wayne Smith of Brentwood, who is also a pilot.

The single-engine Beechcraft Musketeer, partly owned by Mr. Gillan, was demolished in the crash near Woodburn.

Hellyer Moves Seat Closer To Grit Throne

OTTAWA (CP)— Prime Minister Pearson confirmed Monday in a statement that Transport Minister Pickersgill, 62, will become president of the Canadian Transport Commission and will be succeeded by Defence Minister Hellyer, 44.

Associate Defence Minister Leo Cadieux, 59, will succeed Mr. Hellyer in the defence portfolio.

Mr. Pearson made public an exchange of correspondence with Mr. Pickersgill concerning the latter's retirement from the cabinet.

Mr. Pickersgill's letter said he had discussed possible retirement with Mr. Pearson some time ago and been assured that if he wished, his appointment as president of the Canadian Transport Commission would be made.

"After a good deal of reflection, I have come to the conclusion that, if you are still of the same mind, I would like to become president of the commission."

Saigon Bomb Kills Two, Hurts 30

Chiang Embassy Shattered

SAIGON (UPI) — Viet Cong terrorists exploded a powerful bomb inside the Nationalist Chinese embassy Tuesday morning in an abortive attempt to assassinate Ambassador Hu Lien.

The blast killed at least two persons and wounded 30. It made a shambles of the three-storey building about a block away from the U.S. embassy, and damaged a bank next door. (See also Page 3.)

First reports said no Americans were among the casualties.

UNDER FLOOR

Authorities said the bomb, made of pastique explosives, was planted under the floor of Ambassador Hu's office on the second floor. He was attending a meeting in an adjacent conference room when the bomb exploded with a roar that was heard in a wide area of the city.

Lu was shaken up but otherwise unhurt.

OFF STREET

The explosion sent a rain of concrete, bricks and glass into the street from the embassy.

It was the first terror attack on a foreign diplomatic mission here since March 30, 1965, when Viet Cong bombers raided the U.S. Embassy and all but destroyed it in an assault that killed 17 persons, including two Americans.

Arrests Now 181 In Egypt

Tuesday morning editions of the semi-official Egyptian newspaper Al Ahram said President Nasser has arrested 181 military officers and civilians in connection with a coup plot and an inquiry into reasons for Egypt's loss of the Mideast war.

The Cairo newspaper said prisoners included the commander of the air force and the former chief of the secret service.

The report identified one of the arrested men as Saiah Nasr, the director of intelligence services, and said he was placed under house arrest on June 5—the day that Israeli forces blitzed Egyptian air bases and knocked out most of the Arab nation's air arsenal. (See also Page 7.)

Stanfield Visits Diefenbaker

By RICHARD JACKSON
Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — "I can't sing — but happy birthday anyway."

This was new Conservative leader Robert Stanfield, Monday at Noon, standing with his hand out at the doorway to old (72) Conservative leader John Diefenbaker's Centre Block suite of offices.

It was a great line, and for once the old chief was caught off guard.

He grabbed Mr. Stanfield's outstretched hand: "Hello, hello, good to see you; come on in."

'LOTS OF TIME'

Together they went behind the big Diefenbaker desk and for a moment exchanged some painfully awkward small talk.

The chief volunteered that he was "in the process of moving," and although "tons of stuff" had been hauled out of the file rooms to the National Archives, it was still a sizeable job.

"Of course, you know," Mr. Stanfield comforted him, "there's lots of time for it."

The chief shooed everybody out and in private the two men had what couldn't have been

Territorial Capital Happy, Proud

Yellowknife Hails New Status

YELLOWKNIFE, N.W.T. (CP) — Someone said there probably wasn't more excitement here in 1934 when gold was discovered.

Yellowknife then was little more than a tent town.

Monday it was the flag-bedecked capital of the Northwest Territories and an estimated 1,000 persons, more than a fifth of the total population, jammed the airport to greet the arrival of commissioner Stuart Hodgson and his staff.

"It's great to be home at last," Hodgson said to cheers.

In all, there were 76 persons aboard the DC-7, 50 of them territorial employees who will work in temporary quarters in a former school.

Mayor G. M Wilkinson said the town had many red-letter days this year — the visit of Princess Alexandra and earlier Northern Development Minister Laing's visit to proclaim it the capital. But the arrival of the government staff topped them all.

"Yellowknife wanted the capital, asked for the capital, and got the capital," the mayor said.

"We appreciate the responsibility and accept it."

Mr. Hodgson thanked the crowd for its "tremendous welcome" and said the territorial employees accompanying him were the best to be found anywhere. He hoped northern Canada would accept them as citizens.

R. J. Orange, N.W.T. MP, said he was sure he spoke for Mr. Laing in saying this was only the start of self-government for the north. He looked to the day when the Territories assumed all the powers of a provincial government.

Earlier the chartered craft carrying the employees touched down at Churchill, Man., for a 30-minute stop.

"We really didn't have to stop but we thought we would show them a real northern frontier town," Mr. Hodgson said.

"After Churchill, we are sure Yellowknife will look like a million bucks."

Angry Trustees Fed Up with Government

By BILL STAVDAL
Colonist Education Reporter

A too-long-delayed letter is going to trigger some tough questions by Greater Victoria school trustees when their provincial organization meets in Vancouver next month.

Here's why:

Eleven and a half months ago in Penticton, the B.C. School Trustees' Association passed 46 resolutions at its annual convention.

Later, a delegation of the BCSTA executive came to Victoria and presented the resolutions to Education Minister Peterson, along with a written brief.

But early this month, with the 1967 BCSTA convention three weeks away, Mr. Peterson had not replied, despite frequent requests.

B.C.'s 83 school boards, therefore, were in the dark as they prepared new resolutions last winter and spring. The 1967 resolutions were printed and distributed for the Vancouver convention without anyone knowing how the government felt about the previous ones.

This non-event will finally trigger a long-brewing debate when the BCSTA meets in the Hotel Vancouver, Oct. 3 to 6.

South Island trustees — and probably others as well — are going to ask the question:

Is the B.C. School Trustees' Association a real force for improvement in public education, or is it a debating society?

More specifically, is the BCSTA willing to flex its political muscles and make itself heard and respected by the government?

Or is the annual convention and slate of resolutions merely a time to get together and blow off steam harmlessly?

meetings over the past several years, the trustees have been indicating their feeling that the government doesn't listen when school boards — any school boards — talk.

I have heard trustees and educators of the capital region and up-Island say the same thing: they believe that education department policy depends far more on the decisions of Premier and Finance Minister Bennett than on the needs of our schools.

John Young, principal of the progressive and nationally-known Campbell River high school, explained his district's success this way in Victoria last August:

"The (Campbell River) school board is committed to quality education.

"They don't want the bare, minimum standards laid down by the provincial government. Not the department of education — the provincial government," he said with emphasis.

The sheafs of resolutions that go to the education minister from the expensive annual conventions are generally met with polite refusal, or given answers which aren't answers, or directed elsewhere on grounds that they aren't the business of the department.

A good example is the reply to a resolution from the 1965 BCSTA convention. It advocated zonal salary bargaining with teachers instead of the existing district-by-district negotiations.

Trustees have long sought zone-wide or even province-wide bargaining with B.C.'s 18,000 teachers, to avoid having one board played off against the other. Teachers, naturally, have steadily fought such a move.

Mr. Peterson's reply to the resolution was:

"Zonal salary and bonus schedules may be determined by bargaining if both school boards and the teacher associations concerned are agreeable."

Quoting a well-known provision of the Public Schools Act amounted to an insult to the intelligence of the trustees. The resolution had asked, in effect: 'What are you going to do about it?'

This year, three similar resolutions will again come before the convention, and presumably at least one will be forwarded to the education minister to continue the cycle.

Some resolutions keep bobbing up year after year. Until the legislature approved pay for trustees last winter, the BCSTA used to ask for action perennially.

When a resolution asked for a specific amount, it would be rejected on grounds that it was too specific. If the resolution asked an unspecified amount, it would be labelled too vague.

It was the lack of any answer at all to last year's resolutions that settled things for Peter Bunn, chairman of the Greater Victoria School Board.

"It's rather absurd that we should have the resolutions for this year's convention printed up before we even have the replies to last year's resolutions," he commented not long ago.

Mr. Bunn prodded the school board office to find out what had happened. On Sept. 6 the BCSTA head office in Vancouver replied:

"... The association has been attempting to obtain the minister's replies since early spring. Letters and telephone calls have been exchanged with the department of education on and off since that time.

"As recently as last Tuesday, president Frank Beinder telephoned the minister of education long distance and explained the potentiality of trustee delegates raising serious criticism at the convention if 1966 replies were not on hand at that time.

"The minister indicated his concern on behalf of the school boards' interest in this matter and advised Mr. Beinder that he could look into the matter immediately," said the BCSTA letter.

On Sept. 11 one copy of the minister's replies to 1966

resolutions arrived at the Greater Victoria School Board office.

"It's an indication of the treatment given to lower-level public bodies trying to deal with the government," Mr. Bunn remarked. "You see the same thing happening to the municipalities."

The feeling of the Greater Victoria board, shared to some extent by the Sooke and Saanich boards, is that the BCSTA as a whole is dominated by rural trustees unaware of the urgency of today's education problems.

For example, at the October convention, the Vancouver School Board (75,000 pupils) will sponsor a resolution asking the government to employ a consultant on educational television.

Birch Island School Board (750 pupils) will seek an

Bunn

Peterson

amendment to legislation concerning correspondence education.

Both rural and urban problems are real enough, but the feeling in Victoria is that proportionately little is done for the cities.

It's the same sort of situation which Mayor Tom Campbell last week to suggest withdrawal from the Union of B.C. Municipalities on the eve of the UBCM annual convention.

Mayor Campbell said that the hinterlands were concerned only with "wolf and sage-brush control," reflecting the ancient gulf between city and country cousins.

Greater Victoria's impatience with the 'go slow' thinkers was declared flatly a month ago. Several trustees suggested that the Greater Victoria board leave the Island branch of the BCSTA and align with the big districts of the Lower Mainland.

An alternate suggestion was that Greater Victoria be given permanent representation on the BCSTA executive through the Island branch.

The dissatisfaction was all the more noteworthy because the chairman of the Island branch of the BCSTA is John Porteous, a Greater Victoria trustee. Mr. Porteous endorsed the move for better representation for Victoria.

There is an underlying political split, too. Urban trustees are far less inclined to back the government than rural trustees in the Interior, where Social Credit strength lies.

Greater Victoria is also at odds with BCSTA education finance policy, which backs property taxation to pay for schooling. The Greater Victoria board says ownership of a big house does not prove ability to pay, and wants all education dollars to come from general revenue of the province.

Next month on the floor of the convention the Greater Victoria trustees will launch an energetic appeal for more militant organization.

They will try to make fellow trustees of the 83 school districts more aware of their potential power. After all, it will be noted, trustees speak for citizens just as much as municipal councillors do and for 440,000 B.C. school children as well.

They expect opposition—or more likely, apathy — but they will make the pitch anyway.

Their main hope of success, it seems, lies in the possibility that other school boards large and small are fed up with the feeling of impotence that permeates many BCSTA debates.

"This should be a fighting organization," said Mr. Bunn last week. "I would like to see our organization fired up; I would like to see the teachers fired up, to make the government give top priority to education."

CURRENT EVENTS

By MARVIN D. LIPTON

It is barely three months since the chorus of critics reached crescendo level in condemnation of the United Nations' helplessness during the Middle East crisis. This week the General Assembly commences its 22nd annual session and in many quarters people wonder if the world body can still play a useful role.

The detractors of the international organization, mindful of its shortcomings in June, claim that the UN is plagued by power politics and conflicts of national interest and is beset by myths of representation. What was intended as a peacekeeping tribunal, say the faultfinders, has become a propaganda factory.

The four leading members — the United States, the Soviet Union, Britain and France — have all been caught lying in the UN at one time or another; the U.S. over the Bay of Pigs invasion of 1961, the U.S.S.R. over the Cuban missile crisis of 1962, Britain and France over the Suez invasion of 1956.

In the last emergency session, the Arab states 'grandstanded' on network television as inoffensive victims of a vast Western conspiracy. Israel ignored with impunity the UN resolution not to alter the status of Jerusalem.

Pint-Sized States

Numerous pint-sized states count for as much as the U.S., France or Britain in voting. The island of Formosa 'represents' 700,000,000 Chinese on the mainland but in fact this is without substance.

The two halves of Germany and the warring parts of Vietnam are not seated.

Although its main task is peacekeeping, the United Nations is either unwilling or unable to take any significant hand in moderating or ending the Vietnam war.

When a major crisis breaks, too often the UN becomes entangled in oratory and indecision. To many, it seems no more than an empty shell.

These charges do not go unchallenged. One supporter of the UN points out that "its impotence reflects the realities of power."

A great deal of the disenchantment over the world association is caused because many of us expect too much of the UN and hold a wrong conception of its status.

The drafters of the UN Charter did not intend the international organization to be a world government. They specifically retained the sovereignty of nations by allowing the big powers to veto proposals in the Security Council.

Furthermore, the charter states that it does not "authorize the United Nations to intervene in matters which are essentially within the domestic jurisdiction of any state . . ."

The UN cannot issue orders to member states. It has no police force.

Parallel Policies

Events have illustrated that the UN can function effectively on salient issues only when there is a parallel policy in Washington and Moscow.

When these powers are at loggerheads, the United Nations is paralyzed. This is a reflection of world realities; it is not the fault of the peacekeeping body. In many instances these two nations eventually strike a compromise.

In large part, the United Nations operates unobtrusively through its social agencies providing food for the hungry, healing the sick, and giving shelter to the homeless.

Winston Churchill once observed that it is better to jaw-jaw than to war-war. Although at times the frustration runs exceedingly high, the UN provides the worlds' only forum in which nations can talk.

WHAT DO YOU THINK?

Prof. K. E. Boulding of the University of Michigan states, "The nation is a means towards the orderly development of mankind, yet there are people who would be willing to condemn mankind to extinction rather than to suffer even the slightest diminution of power of their particular nation."

Do you agree with Boulding? Why would you favor world government or oppose it? Is it now practical? Why?

Vietnam War To Go to UN? Not Very Likely!

By JOHN BEST from New York

Every once in a while, when the prospects of peace in Vietnam look particularly depressing, there is a renewed outburst of talk about tossing the issue to the United Nations.

It is possible to have serious doubts as to what good the United Nations can do in present circumstances.

External Affairs Minister Martin says the issue "certainly must be and certainly will be" discussed by the Canadian Assembly session opening today.

However, there is a vast difference between discussing Vietnam and doing anything about it. Mr. Martin's own recent statements make it clear that he believes there is little hope of progress toward peace talks at present.

Even the Americans have admitted that their soundings indicated the essentially dismal outlook for any effective action by the world body.

If the outlook for peace negotiations were otherwise than dismal, chances are that this would be manifested in some other forum than the United Nations — to which neither North nor South Vietnam nor Communist China, an interested party in the conflict, belongs.

A more plausible forum for thrashing out a settlement would be a reconvened conference of the Geneva powers who concluded the original Indochina truce agreement in 1954.

By JOHN BEST
from New York

Britain, co-chairman of the conference, has been trying to get Russia, the other co-chairman, to join in recalling it. However, the Russians say they can't take such an initiative without a mandate from North Vietnam.

It comes down to a question of a halt to the American bombing of North Vietnam.

The North Vietnamese say that once the bombing ends — and only when it ends — talks can take place. UN Secretary-General U Thant, for one, agrees that an unconditional halt to the air raids is a prerequisite for peace talks.

Washington argues that there must be an advance, reciprocal undertaking by North Vietnam to stop the infiltration of men and supplies into South Vietnam.

The two sides have been thus deadlocked for nearly two years. It is difficult to see how doscussing the issue at the UN Assembly can change the situation.

Ice Arena Bylaw Passed

NORTH COWICHAN — The final reading of an additional debenture bylaw was passed by municipal councillors Monday morning, for the building of an ice arena at Fuller's Lake.

Saturday a 75 per cent majority of Northend residents voted for the supplementary bylaw of $100,000.

The special meeting was held before North Cowichan councillors left for the UBCM convention in Prince George.

Original estimated cost of the arena was $330,000, but when tenders were opened, the bid chosen by the councillors was from Cowichan Construction, amounting to $379,000.

The council now has a total of $430,000 to work with in building the arena.

Saturday's vote was 505 for, 172 against, and nine rejects, making a total of 686 residents who voted out of the 1,700 eligible voters.

Work on the arena is expected to start by mid-October.

During the special meeting, councillors also passed a resolution to accept the ownership of the ball park at Chemainus.

The ownership was accepted from the Chemainus Community Centre.

Coun. John Cannon suggested council start immediately to make improvements on the park's soccer field.

Coun. Dennis Hogen, acting reeve while Don Morton is away at the convention, said "We have drawn up a three-year range program for the Chemainus ball park, with one field being improved each year.

"Work on the football field will be started this fall."

DUNCAN — The membership of the Duncan local of the International Woodworkers' of America passed a motion Saturday to re-affiliate with the B.C. Federation of Labor.

Local President Weldon Jubenville said Monday "We will pay our April and May per capita tax, which will enable us to send a delegation to the forthcoming Federation convention.

"We passed a motion Saturday to send a full delegation to the convention which will be held in Vancouver from Oct. 30 to Nov. 3."

The vote was put to the membership after the Federation lifted the suspension which was placed on four locals, for allegedly insulting the CLC vice-president, Joe Morris.

The four locals involved were Duncan, Victoria, Vancouver and the Inspectors'.

The suspension was made June 6 and lifted Sept. 8.

The CLC sub-committee noted in its brief, "The sub-committee recommends the lifting of the suspension in order to enable the representatives of all the workers in B.C. in the forthcoming convention to give full consideration to the propriety and acceptability of the conduct of the parties in this dispute, as revealed through the action of the federation, and the investigation of the sub-committee."

President Jubenville said he would have no other comment to make on the situation until the time of the convention.

The Victoria IWA local also voted to accept reinstatement in the federation.

Victoria IWA president Murray Drew said the decision was made Surday "for the sake of unity" in the union movement.

NANAIMO—Three young men pleaded guilty to consuming liquor in a public place, and were fined $75 each in magistrates court Monday.

Police following their car along the Island Highway Sept. 5, stopped behind them at Turner Road.

The arresting officer plucked bottles from their hands when he approached them from behind as they stood beside the car.

He also confiscated beer from their vehicle.

Less than an hour and a half later, the officer investigating a complaint by BC Ferry Personnel about a group of young men drinking on the property, found it was the same trio.

An entry from our 1848 ledger... the 19th year of our service to Canadians.

Let the Standard Life help you do the same today!

Here is an example:
A monthly premium of only $25.41 will secure a whole life policy for $20,000 for a young man now 25 years old under the Standard's Canadian Series. This creates an immediate estate of $20,000—plus valuable dividend additions every year!

Under this special plan, dividends (declared annually) are credited in the form of fully paid-up additions to the face value of the policy, so that the estate created increases every year. Assuming our present rate of dividend to be continued, the face value of the policy would amount to $40,040 when the policyholder reaches the age of 65!

The plan is flexible. If, for example, the assured wanted to drop the policy at age 65, $25,407 would be available in cash—more than double the amount paid in. This amount of $25,407 is made up of $11,700 in guaranteed cash value and the balance in the cash value of accumulated dividends. Alternatively, the assured could take a retirement income payable for the rest of his life.

This example is based on our present dividend rate. The rate cannot be guaranteed as it depends on the earnings of the Company. It is worth remembering, however, that the Standard's dividend record is outstanding and that accumulated dividends on all policies in force today are at least equal and, in virtually all cases greater, than what would have resulted through continuance of the rates in force when the policies were taken out.

Slash fire under control, burns beside Island Highway near Kelsey Bay

Slash!

It was a quiet weekend, too hot to log the woods.

So logging companies decided the time was ripe for a little slash burning.

Then the forests exploded.

Several slash fires swept across fire lines, and broke into lush timber.

At Lake Cowichan, warm weather, drying winds and no rain were blamed for the slash fires racing out of control.

Companies rushed to recruit fire fighters, and water bombers have been dropping loads of water on the fires for three days.

A slash fire in the Robertson River Valley whipped out of control, and 85 men with five bulldozers were still trying to recapture control Monday.

Roach Logging of Mesachie Lake logs the area for Pacific Logging.

The company lost a yarder and a loader as the fire raged over acres of woods.

A forest ranger at Lake Cowichan said even controlled, the fires will burn until it rains.

B.C. Forest Products slash fire at Koksilah River went out of control Sunday.

Butler Brothers northwest of Sooke has a bad slash fire, which has stopped logging.

The wind changed, and caused the trouble. If the wind changes again, the fires could get worse.

"The weatherman double-crossed us," said officials of Forest Industries Flying Tankers at Port Alberni.

The big water bombers were busy dropping their loads on slash fires.

Crews from both Cameron and Franklin Rives divisions of MacMillan Bloedel were kept on patrol throughout the night, guarding slash fires that have spread a heavy smoky screen over the Valley for the past two days.

A plant ecologist at University of British Columbia Monday called for legislation to curb slash fires by the logging industry.

Dr. J. V. Krajina of the UBC botany department said the fires damage the province's forest resources.

He said slash should be piled up in a damp section of the forest rather than burned as a blanket over many acres.

Tame Fires Run Amok

Pulp Firm Praised

MLA Defends Smog Grant

PORT ALBERNI — This regional district should ask the B.C. Reserch Council to conduct its proposed study of pollution, said MLA Howard McDiarmid.

Alberni-Clayoquot Region has been granted $10,000 for the pollution survey, by the provincial government.

"That may not seem a great sum, but with all the information already available in this area, it should be enough to get the air pollution survey off the ground."

FOREST WORK

Dr. McDiarmid said the Research Council has been involved in problems of pollution control in connection with the forest industry and pulp mills.

"In many cases the Research Council is quoted as source of reference material in leading public health publications."

NOT VAST

He said:

"They do a lot of work for industry. Much of it has been on problems existing right here in the Alberni Valley.

"Because of the tremendous amount of work here and the information available as a result, it would seem that $10,000 while not a vast sum, might be adequate if the research council can be involved." . . .

Dr. McDiarmid said he was writing to the regional district to make the suggestion to it.

HELP OFFERED

"If they desire to follow it up, I would back any formal request to the B.C. Research Council to the limit of my ability," the doctor said.

"Perhaps now people will finally realize the Social Credit government is sincere in its determination to improve and control the pollution situation."

"I have to commend MacMillan Bloedel for the amount of work they have done," he said.

"However, I feel continuing research and control by the company is needed, particularly in regard to the salt-cake problem."

Campbell River Slams Courts

CAMPBELL RIVER—Municipal council has complained to the attorney-general's department about magistrates finding too many people "not guilty."

On a motion by Ken Forde, council voted to ask Attorney-General Robert Bonner to send a man to the district to investigate the situation.

Coun. Isobel Sandberg said "It appears there is a feeling there are too many cases being dismissed.

"We want someone to look into it, to see if these complaints are justified."

She said council has received a number of objections from residents that too many people are coming into court and the cases against them are dismissed.

A motion by the council indicates the municipality is concerned with the actual guilty-or-innocent verdict, rather than light sentences.

The actual motion says "The magistrate's are being too lenient in dismissing cases."

● Also in council:

Clerk Shelley Knowles has been instructed to ask the Highways Department for an explanation of figures on traffic counts.

The counts were taken at the intersection of the Island Highway and Tenth Avenue.

Council applied in the spring for installation of a traffic light at the intersection in the heart of the shopping district.

Two automatic counts were taken.

Engineer J. H. Harding said "Although this type of count is not directly applicable to signal warrant calculations, it would seem signal warrants were not filled, even on Saturday."

So the verdict, no lights.

● Council is applying for leases of crown land at McIvor Lake for parks and recreation.

For the past three years this area has been cleared and maintained as a popular picnic site by the Lions Club.

● Council approved establishment of a retarded children's kindergarten.

The kindergarten will be in the nursery room of the Four Square Gospel church on Fifth Avenue.

Chiropractors Set Nanaimo Meeting

NANAIMO — More than 100 chiropractors and their wives will gather in Nanaimo at the end of September for the annual meeting of the Chiropractor's Association of British Columbia.

The three days of sessions will be taken up by lectures and clinic by Eric Shrubb of Toronto.

Dr. John F. McCreary, dean of medicine at UBC, will give an address. There will be a seminar on chiropratic techniques.

The conference opens Sept. 28.

Railway Warning Refused

COURTENAY—The CPR has refused to place warning lights on a railway crossing on Cumberland Road, the busy route between Courtenay and Cumberland.

Courtenay council asked for the lights on Cumberland Road and a few miles away on Fraser Road, where a mother and her children were killed by a train several months ago.

G. P. Miller, general solicitor for the CPR, informed council an investigation showed the lights are "not warranted."

"It sounds like another Lytton Ferry," said Ald. Geoff Browning, at Monday night's meeting. The Lytton Ferry is controversial because of attacks on its safety.

● Another resident on Willemar Avenue has asked the city to have the street included within Courtenay boundaries.

If one more property owner agrees, making it unanimous, the city will ask to have the area included.

Willemar Avenue is part of a district that earlier voted not to join Courtenay.

● The city has donated 150 feet of sewer pipe to Beaufort Association for Retarded Children.

The pipe will be used for the association's centennial project at Sandwick, construction of a residence and adult sheltered workshop.

Clerk Bill Morre told council members are urged to attend a regional college meeting Wednesday, where the principal of Vancouver College will speak.

Island School Buses Display Confusing Safety Patterns

DUNCAN—Trustee Gerry Patterson told Cowichan School Board members a meeting will be held in the near future with transportation committees on the school districts as far north as Qualicum.

The meeting has been proposed to discuss the co-ordination between all school buses on the use of flashing red lights and general safety.

Trustee Patterson said "Following the meeting a public announcement will be made, and we hope the co-ordination program will spread throughout the province."

He told the board Monday night, at the present time, some buses are stopping on the shoulder to discharge passengers, while other buses stop on the pavement.

He also stated some buses are using the flashing red lights, while others are not.

* * *

Trustee Efford suggested the co-ordination program include the publication of monthly bulletins in newspapers to keep the safety program before the public at all times.

Trustees got a surprise when they opened tenders for the Mill Bay elementary school addition.

The lowest bid was $4,671 less than the estimated cost of $18,000.

The contract was awarded to Naylor and Talbot Construction Ltd. of Duncan.

'College Deal Better Than Universities'

NANAIMO—If you vote against the Island regional college, you will be turning your back on the twentieth century, said education official J. B. Litch.

A negative vote would show a feeling that no expansion of industry, land values or land development is indicated in the future, he claimed.

"This is not what the past 20 years on the Island indicates."

Mr. Litch, supervisor of high school education here, spoke to the Nanaimo Council of Women.

He said with the present method of financing, there is more money available from government grants, than in the method of financing universities.

"Universities frequently must go begging for money because there is no regular grant structure," he said.

He informed the group that under present methods, 50 per cent of approved capital costs for construction, and 50 per cent of operation costs would be shared by the provincial government.

Litch

Industry Pays Slice

"We're just going to get our own money redistributed," he said.

Under present taxation, industry pays for the greatest share of costs.

The Sept. 30 plebiscite is only to determine how many of the nine school districts north of the Malahat are in favor of becoming part of the regional college district.

"If you vote yes, you are saying you agree with the concept of extending public school education another two years, and are willing to pay for it."

Drop-out problems result in part from the present necessity for students to follow an academic course if they want higher education, which is university training.

Universities demands are frequently too high for, and out of line with interests of too many students, he claimed.

"We have all the universities we need in this province, for the forseeable future," he added.

One of the main reasons for the explosive development of industry in Los Angeles, is the provision for post-secondary education, of which regional college are part, he stated.

Chamber Will Hear Campus Proposals

LAKE COWICHAN—Regional college will be the subject at today's meeting of the Chamber of Commerce.

Representatives of the advisory committee on a regional college will discuss the Sept. 30 plebiscite on the project.

Debate Planned On Financing

PORT ALBERNI — An alderman and a member of the legislature will debate the fate of an Island regional college — but they are having trouble getting together.

Alberni Social Credit MLA Howard McDiarmid wants the college. Port Alberni Ald. George McKnight is against it.

Main issue is the method of financing, and Ald. McKnight blames the provincial government.

But the two men are having trouble making their schedules mesh before the Sept. 30 vote.

When Dr. McDiarmid is in Port Alberni next Saturday, Ald. McKnight will still be away at the UBCM convention in Prince George.

"But I do plan to have this debate somehow," Dr. McDiarmid said.

"Anyone who has read the Marsh Report must see the need."

"What we must remember is that education already takes up a greater share of the provincial budget than any other.

"In effect, I consider what the government has said is this: If you want a regional college in this area, and want it badly enough to share the cost with us, let's go ahead.

"At this time, the government can't start building colleges everywhere, and this is what people all over the province would demand if it were to be built solely with provincial funds."

"I am sufficiently enamored of education and the benefits it brings in better jobs, more interesting jobs and a higher standard of living, to say the projected price is a small one to pay. I think the college is urgently needed."

"While I do not agree with the financing formula, I can see why it must be this way for the time being. If they threw the doors open, everyone would want a college at the same time."

The MLA termed the tax on exports, suggested by Ald. McKnight, a stupid idea."

"Here we are, trying to compete on the world market, and he comes up with a stupid idea like a tax on export sales. That's a sure fire way to put ourselves out of the world market," Dr. McDiarmid contended.

"I don't want to see the taxpayer overloaded any more than anyone else, and I don't believe the amount involved would do so.

"But if we want the regional college, and we want it now, not some years from now, we have the chance to go into partnership with the government on it," the MLA said.

McDiarmid

* * *

"There has been a great deal of criticism and malignment lately of our Alberni Valley young people," he said, referring to the recent controversal television production Young in a Small Town.

Board Buys Staff

PORT ALBERNI — School board here has added new teachers to its staff and some equipment, bolstering courses in English for New Canadians, occupational program and night school.

Earlier the board dropped its English for New Canadians class, believing a drop in immigration would make the course unnecessary.

NO ENGLISH

But the board decided Monday night to hire another teacher, when it learned there are 18 young people in the district with no knowledge of English.

The occupational course is divided into four classes. Two are split again, with a teacher for each half. One is for slow learners, with 17 pupils.

The fourth has 37 students. "That is too many," said Superintendent Bill Gurney, recommending the new teacher be appointed.

The board decided to buy more welding equipment for its night school program.

The course has 40 students in four classes of 10 each, but only two welding machines.

Prospect Lake Votes Yes

Home - owners in Saanich's Prospect Lake district Saturday voted in favor of a $260,000 water system for their area.

Of the 166 persons who went to the polls in the area referendum, 66 per cent cast affirmative ballots.

There were 108 people in favor, 54 against and four rejected ballots.

DISPUTE ENDS

The referendum, called by Saanich council, brought to an end a dispute which has been boiling for at least four years over the question of piped water.

Reeve Hugh Curtis said that while the municipality's engineering department had already done a lot of work on the project there were still details to be completed.

These would be attended to as soon as possible and work on the system will start without delay, he added.

"This is a decisive affirmative vote," said the reeve. "The important thing is that water will be provided."

NO SEWERS

However, he said he hoped councils of future years would not bow to pressures to reduce the minimum size of subdivision in the area.

The district does not have sewers and there have been fears that more septic tank seepage into the lake would seriously menace the quality of that water.

Reeve Curtis said he hoped future councils would show "determination and courage" on that question "but of course I cannot predict what will be done in the future."

Homes on Prospect Lake Road, Esteline Road, Echo Drive, Goward Road, East Lake Road, Westhome and Fairhome Roads will be brought into the water system.

WILL BORROW

Saanich will borrow $143,000, which, with $117,910 interest, will be repaid over 20 years by frontage assessments. The subscribers will also have to pay connection fees plus the regular water bills.

Voters were asked to place their ballots in three separate boxes — one for the east side of the lake, one for west side and the other for the remainder of the area — so that council could accurately assess the feelings of people in each district.

The Greater Victoria Metropolitan Board of Health strongly recommended acceptance of the referendum because many wells were unsafe for drinking. Saanich fire department also wanted a piped water supply in the heavily wooded area.

Here is how Prospect Lake residents voted:

	Yes	No	Rejected Ballots
West side	55	22	2
East side	31	11	0
Remainder	15	15	1
Advance	7	6	1
Total	108	54	4

Workers' Rolls Increase By 5 Per Cent

British Columbia's labor force grew by 39,000, from 751,000 to 790,000, during the 12-month period ending Aug. 20, according to figures released Saturday by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics and the department of manpower and immigration.

The estimates showed that the number of persons employed during that time rose from 724,000 to 760,000, while the number of unemployed rose from 27,000 to 30,000.

FORCE GREW

The entire Canadian labor force grew from 7,805,000 in August, 1966, to 8,101,000 in August, 1967. During that period, the number of employed persons rose from 7,577,000 to 7,854,000 and the number of unemployed rose from 228,000 to 247,000.

The release stated that while the 12-month labor increase was shared by all regions of the nation, "the largest relative gains were in Quebec and British Columbia."

Car Accident Sends Two To Hospital

Passengers Jack Rogers, 52, and Michael Siepler, 50, both of 711 Johnson, were taken to St. Joseph's Hospital and later released after suffering slight injuries when the car in which they were riding was involved in a collision shortly before 7 p.m. Saturday at Superior and Government.

Police identified the drivers involved as James R. Rugg, 245 Niagara and Bruce Ball, 57 South Turner.

Full Moon

Pain in Neck—Police Superstition—Doctor Fish Jump—Museum Stone—Astronomer

By JIM BRAHAN

It's a lover's delight to the young, an orbiting satellite to astronomers. But to police a full moon is one big pain in the neck.

The sight of the huge orange moon rising in all its splendor above the horizon may cause song writers to burble out in rhyme, but it also sends a deluge of complaints into police station switchboards.

Saanich Police Chief W. A. Pearson says that veteran police officers claim the night of a full moon is a good time to be off duty.

The moon reached full stage Monday night.

More Active

"There are people whom we call mooners," Chief Pearson explained, "and they appear to be more active when the moon is full.

"We definitely notice an influx of calls complaining about peeping toms, obscene telephone calls, exposure artists, and men snatching panties off clotheslines, during a full moon."

He pointed out that he believed it was strictly an emotional effect the full moon had on some of the community's less stable characters.

"I doubt if the moon has any physical effect on people," he emphasized.

He also added that many people who are quite stable emotionally are strong believers in moon phases and how they affect weather and crop growth.

Brig. Marsland Rankin, head of the Salvation Army's anti-suicide bureau in Victoria, said that wherever he has been stationed with the army, there was a certain period of the month when the number of calls greatly increased.

"I think the full moon has an effect, but I have no statistics to prove it."

A Victoria psychiatrist said the powers attributed to the full moon are legion, but he doubted if any had foundation in other than superstition.

"About the only effect that can be actually shown is that the bright light from such a moon causes some people to lose sleep.

He's Curious

"This may be why police get called so frequently during the period of the full moon," he explained. "When a man can't sleep he may go for a walk late at night and notice a window shade up an inch or two and become curious. Hence a peeping tom report.

"I imagine a real peeping tom would work in the dark rather than in the moonlight."

Another Victoria psychiatrist said it sometimes seemed that the full moon had powers to affect people.

"It appears this way, but when it is looked at statistically it doesn't seem so obvious.

"The supposed power of the moon on humans is a general idea some people have, but it is mostly myth," he said. "About all it does is create tides."

It's Complex

Dr. Clifford Carl, Provincial Museum curator, said that some animals and various types of fish seemed to be more active during the period of the full moon.

"It is a very complex business and nobody has put his finger on any concrete factor to cause this influence," he said. "The light comes from the moon and tides are influenced by it, so it seems to go hand in hand."

He did not think the moon, other than being pretty, had much, if any, effect on people.

Dominion astronomer Murray Fletcher chuckled at the tale that if a person sleeps with his face in the light of the full moon he will go insane.

"People don't mind sleeping in the sunlight, and it would take more than 400,000 full moons to make up the light of the sun," he said.

"To us, the moon is just a large stone orbiting the earth, reflecting sunlight and affecting tides.

"It is easy to see why so much superstition has become attached to it, because it looks like an interesting object in the skies and early man decided it must have some special significance," he said.

Headaches

Many Maritimers say it is impossible to make a full barrel of pickled herring and sauerkraut because at the full moon the barrel will overflow. This overflowing is attributed to the moon's magnetic pull on the earth, such as it exerts on the oceans.

Other superstitions claim that magnetism from the full moon will have any number of effects on people, from driving them insane, hence the word lunatic, to giving them excruciating headaches.

Astronomer Fletcher pointed out that it did not quite follow that if the moon affected the oceans, it must affect people as well.

"Look at the difference in size. As far as we are concerned, there is no real physical effect on people from the moon. It is strictly an emotional affect, and if they couldn't see it, they would have no effect from it whatsoever.

Decades

"Even with scientific instruments, we have a difficult time measuring any effect it has on earth," he said.

"It also has very little effect on the earth's weather. Any effect it does have is so small it takes computing of statistics taken over decades to find it," he added.

Another myth about the full moon is that hospital emergencies and maternity wards are swamped during this period.

Statistics show otherwise. Both Royal Jubilee and St. Joseph's Hospitals say they are not any busier during the period of the full moon than at any other time.

His Light

To early man, the moon was a very important object and his one source of night illumination by which he could hunt and plant crops. It became an object of worship, and in some parts of the world it is still worshipped.

Although the moon is more than 252,000 miles from earth, and scientists have satisfied themselves it has no physical effect on people, dogs will continue to bark at it, and some people will blame it for making them do everything from spilling the milk to punching their wives in the eye.

Moscow Charges Kidnapping

Britain Frees Red Scientist

LONDON (AP) — The British returned a Soviet scientist to Russian diplomats Monday after satisfying themselves he wants to go home. But Moscow levelled a formal charge he had been kidnapped to undermine relations between the two countries.

The Soviet foreign ministry said in a note to the British Embassy in Moscow that Britain would be held responsible for any recurrence of the violent incident at London airport that brought a weekend of recriminations and diplomatic protests.

The foreign office said the note had not yet reached London.

Officials said, however, that the last thing the British government wants is to undermine relations with Moscow. Improvement of these relations, they said, is a cardinal principle of Prime Minister Wilson's foreign policy.

British police and secret agents removed Vladimir Tkachenko, 25-year-old Soviet physicist who had been studying low temperature physics at Birmingham University, from a Soviet airliner late Saturday on the suspicion he was being kidnapped by Russian agents.

He was released Monday after the British government was satisfied he wanted to return home rather than seek asylum here.

"In accordance with medical advice, and with his own wishes now freely expressed, Dr. Vladimir Tkachenko is going to the Soviet Embassy," said the home office.

He and his wife will return to the Soviet Union today, the Russians said.

British officials, meanwhile, puzzled over the reasons for the Soviet action in apparently trying to smuggle the post-graduate student out of Britain.

There was some speculation

Reeve's Reaction

PRICE FIXED ON McRAE ATTAINABLE

By JOHN MATTERS

Saanich councillors, in Prince George for a convention today, will weigh an arbitration board award that sets $1,200,000 as the price their taxpayers should pay for the McRae estate.

"It is higher than I hoped, but lower than I had feared," Reeve Hugh Curtis said of the award, which is about $450,000 more than Saanich's offer for the 132.6-acre property.

He said council could not meet formally in Prince George but "I have a copy of the adjudication coming special delivery, and we will be going over it today." They are at the annual Union of British Columbia Municipalities convention.

The three-member board, which heard evidence for five weeks at Victoria Law Courts, in effect disputes the claims of both Saanich and the McRae family, which has owned the site for about 80 years.

DISENCHANTMENT?

Louis Lindholm, special counsel for Saanich, observed:

"The award is 50 per cent higher than the offer made by Saanich, but it is (about one third) the value the owners put on it. Only they can say, but this may be a measure of the relative disenchantment of the parties to the award."

Robert Price, counsel for the McRaes, was out of town and could not be reached for comment.

"STILL ATTAINABLE"

Saanich wants to acquire the property, part of which is Cedar Hill golf course, for recreational purposes. A capital spending budget adopted by ratepayers in December, 1965, set aside about $800,000 for the deal.

However, Reeve Curtis explained in the telephone interview that the $1,200,000 award still leaves the site in "an attainable category."

"It's not like $2,000,000," he added.

NO EARLY DECISION

The reeve said council has "two or three alternatives" to consider and there won't be an early decision. Councillors will have to wait until they can have a talk with Saanich's lands commissioner, planner, engineer and comptroller.

"We will want to review the other components of the capital budget . . . and not necessarily with a view to abandoning them."

SAANICH PAYS COSTS

Saanich was also ordered to pay the costs of the action, which some estimates place as high as $70,000.

The adjucation summarized:

Saanich assumed the land would be sold in a single block. The arbitrators said it could be sold in several parcels.

Saanich said it was unlikely the property would be sewered.

Crashed Flyers Bruised

Three Greater Victoria men escaped with only a few bruises Monday when their light plane crashed in a field about 30 miles south of Portland, Ore., the Associated Press reported.

They were A. J. Gillan, pilot, 2831 Ilene Terrace, Saanich; his 19-year-old son, James, and a friend of the family, Wayne Smith of Brentwood, who is also a pilot.

The single-engine Beechcraft Musketeer, partly owned by Mr. Gillan, was demolished in the crash near Woodburn.

Saigon Bomb Kills Two, Hurts 30

Chiang Embassy Shattered

SAIGON (UPI) — Viet Cong terrorists exploded a powerful bomb inside the Nationalist Chinese embassy Tuesday morning in an abortive attempt to assassinate Ambassador Hu Lien.

The blast killed at least two persons and wounded 30. It made a shambles of the three-storey building about a block away from the U.S. embassy, and damaged a bank next door. (See also Page 3.)

First reports said no Americans were among the casualties.

Authorities said the bomb, made of pastique explosives, was planted under the floor of Ambassador Hu's office on the second floor. He was attending a meeting in an adjacent conference room when the bomb exploded with a roar that was heard in a wide area of the city.

Hu was shaken up but otherwise unhurt.

South Vietnamese police traded shots with several men running away from the building seconds after the blast, killing one and arresting another who was armed with a pistol.

The explosion sent a rain of concrete, bricks and glass into the street from the embassy.

It was the first terror attack on a foreign diplomatic mission here since March 30, 1965, when Viet Cong bombers raided the U.S. Embassy and all but destroyed it in an assault that killed 17 persons, including two Americans.

Arrests Now 181 In Egypt

From UPI

Tuesday morning editions of the semi-official Egyptian newspaper Al Ahram said President Nasser has arrested 181 military officers and civilians in connection with a coup plot and an inquiry into reasons for Egypt's loss of the Mideast war.

The Cairo newspaper said prisoners included the commander of the air force and the former chief of the secret service.

The report identified one of the arrested men as Salah Nasr, the director of intelligence services, and said he was placed under house arrest on June 5—the day that Israeli forces blitzed Egyptian air bases and knocked out most of the Arab nation's air arsenal. (See also Page 7.)

Stanfield Visits Diefenbaker

By RICHARD JACKSON
Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — "I can't sing — but happy birthday anyway."

This was new Conservative leader Robert Stanfield, Monday at noon, standing with his hand out at the doorway to old (72) Conservative leader John Diefenbaker's Centre Block suite of offices.

It was a great line, and for once the old chief was caught off guard.

He grabbed Mr. Stanfield's outstretched hand: "Hello, hello, good to see you; come on in."

'LOTS OF TIME'

Together they went behind the big Diefenbaker desk and for a moment exchanged some painfully awkward small talk.

The chief volunteered that he was "in the process of moving," and although "tons of stuff" had been hauled out of the file rooms to the National Archives, it was still a sizeable job.

"Of course, you know," Mr. Stanfield comforted him, "there's lots of time for it."

Hellyer Moves Seat Closer To Grit Throne

OTTAWA (CP)— Prime Minister Pearson confirmed Monday in a statement that Transport Minister Pickersgill, 62, will become president of the Canadian Transport Commission and will be succeeded by Defence Minister Hellyer, 44.

Associate Defence Minister Leo Cadieux, 59, will succeed Mr. Hellyer in the defence portfolio.

Mr. Pearson made public an exchange of correspondence with Mr. Pickersgill concerning the latter's retirement from the cabinet.

Mr. Pickersgill's letter said he had discussed possible retirement with Mr. Pearson some time ago and been assured that if he wished, his appointment as president of the Canadian Transport Commission would be made.

SAME MIND

"After a good deal of reflection, I have come to the conclusion that, if you are still of the same mind, I would like to become president of the commission."

His letter said that while his general health was excellent, he had found the pressures of

Yellowknife Hails New Status

YELLOWKNIFE, N.W.T. (CP) — Someone said there probably wasn't more excitement here in 1934 when gold was discovered.

Yellowknife then was little more than a tent town.

Monday it was the flag-bedecked capital of the Northwest Territories and an estimated 1,000 persons, more than a fifth of the total population, jammed the airport to greet the arrival of commissioner Stuart Hodgson and his staff.

"It's great to be home at last," Hodgson said to cheers.

In all, there were 76 persons aboard the DC-7, 50 of them territorial employees who will work in temporary quarters in a former school.

Mayor G. M Wilkinson said the town had many red-letter days this year — the visit of Princess Alexandra and earlier Northern Development Minister Laing's visit to proclaim it the capital. But the arrival of the government staff topped them all.

"Yellowknife wanted the capital, asked for the capital, and got the capital," the mayor said.

"We appreciate the responsibility and accept it."

Mr. Hodgson thanked the crowd for its "tremendous welcome" and said the territorial employees accompanying him were the best to be found anywhere. He hoped northern Canada would accept them as citizens.

R. J. Orange, N.W.T. MP, said he was sure he spoke for Mr. Laing in saying this was only the start of self-government for the north. He looked to the day when the Territories assumed all the powers of a provincial government.

Earlier the chartered craft carrying the employees touched down at Churchill, Man., for a 30-minute stop.

"We really didn't have to stop but we thought we would show them a real northern frontier town," Mr. Hodgson said.

"After Churchill, we are sure Yellowknife will look like a million bucks."
